

The Engine is Perfect in the Russell

It has every known improvement that engineers have yet devised to make the poppet valve engine supreme. Simplicity in construction, and economy

Simplicity in construction, and economy and quietness in operation, are its dominant features.

In it, you get that most necessary feature—maximum power with a minimum of weight.

But, besides its wonderful engine, the 1913 Russell "30," as compared with the 1912 model, has $325 worth of new and 1912 model, has $325 worth of new and high grade equipment, including electric self-starter, electric lighting throughout, demountable rims, spare rims, power pump and electrically lighted speedometer and clock.

In brief, the Russell "30" is the ideal—the ultimate—type of valve engine car. If you are interested, write to West Toronto for some interesting explanatory literature.

ACETYLENE

Is Daylight On Tap

An analysis of Acetylene shows it to be almost identically the same as day-light—a pure white light.

Oil lamps, ordinary gas jets and electric lamps give light that has too many red and yellow rays. Gas mantles give light that is too blue.

For this reason an Acetylene light of 24 candle power is easier to read or work by than is an equally brilliant light of any other kind.
Colors and shades seen by Acctylene light look the same as they do by daylight, everything is more distinct, and the eyes do not feel the same strain that is caused by other artificial lights.

When you add to this the greater convenience and lower cost of Acetylene, there seems little reason for sticking to the old oil lamps. Write us for full information about Acetylene lighting. We'll gladly give it, without any obligation on your part.

A Considerate Father.—Customer—"I want to order a new suit for myself. Please measure my son."

Tailor—"Your son?"
Customer—"Yes. You see, he wears my cast-off clothes, and the rascal always complains they do not fit him!"—I.eslie's Weekly.

Costly.—"Why don't you marry Even? Don't you think you could suplyn? Don port her?"

"Support her! Why, I couldn't even pay for her complexion."—Satire.

The Right of Way.

W HEN father drove old Dobbin, he sat upon his load
And frowned on every chauffeur who wanted half the road;
When father got an auto, his feelings seemed to switch;
He glared at every horse he met unless it took the ditch.

Different Now.—"Why have you cut that lady who has just passed? Yesterday you were most cordial toward her?" "That is my dressmaker, and I paid her bill this morning."—Fliegende Blaetter.

A Polite Boy.—This experience of a New Yorker is remarkable enough in these rude and sordid times to merit preservation:

"It is so rare an occurrence to meet a young Chesterfield," said the Gothamite, "that I wish to go on record as having encountered, in the person of the tenyear-old son of a friend of mine, the most striking example one could imagine.

the hall with his sisters, rose politely and opened the door for me.

"'I am very much pleased with this attention,' said I. 'I hope I have given you no trouble.'

"The lad smiled.

"I am only sorry,' rejoined he, 'that I am not letting you in.'"

Get the Jar.

A^S a beauty I am not a star,
There are others more handsome
by far,
But my face—I don't mind it,
For I am behind it;
The people in front get the jar.

What He Needed.—The amateur golfer had not been doing very well, and toward the close of the round he turned to the caddie and said:

"Let me see! Is that one hundred and ninety-five or one hundred and ninety-six strokes?"

"I don't know, sir," was the reply. "What you need is an adding machine, not a caddie."—Leslie's Weekly.

Ignored Small Fry.—Teacher—"What can you say of the Medes and Persians?"
Young America—"I never kept track of those minor league teams."—Harper's Weekly.

Quiet.—Mrs. Kelly—"This neighbour-hood seems a bit noisy, Mrs. Flynn."
Mrs. Flynn—"Yis, th' only time it's quiet here is whin the elevated train goes by and drowns th' noise!"—Puck.
