

Zenoleum Profits In Hog Raising.

Profits in hog raising are not accidental. They come as the result of well directed efforts. Hog health is the basis of hog profit. Good care and thrift that add profit, follow as necessary incidents. Contagion must be avoided; disease germs must be destroyed; stomach and bowels must be purged of worms; lice must be killed. Cleanliness means no hog cholera. Failure to do this ordinary service for the hog invites loss to the feeder.

ATTEND THE GALT HORSE SHOW.

Those who attended last year, the Galt (Ont.) Horse Show will need no further reminder than the date of the coming one, announced in our advertising columns for June 1, 2 and 3. Those who are interested in an exhibition of equines at their best, should, if possible, arrange to take in this annual open-air event, which is counted one of the best things of its kind, and in some ways surpasses in attractiveness the larger tan-bark exhibitions.

Breeders of pure-bred stock should advertise. By so doing they secure not only an outlet for their surplus animals, but at the same time stimulate a demand among others to follow in their footsteps. All good advertising is more or less educational. By it you teach others the value and importance of discarding scrubs and improving the blood of their herds. No one advertises scrub stock. It is safe to say that the increased demand for pure-bred stock has come as much from advertising as any other single source.

WOOL MARKET CONDITIONS.

The wool season is now approaching, and owing to the importance of the wool trade throughout the Northwest, some information is necessary to convey intelligent ideas of the value of the different grades of the present clip grown throughout the Northwest.

Last season was an exceptional one in way of advanced market, and Northwest growers marketed their wool at what was considered extreme prices, and rather above the true value of wool at the time, though the market sustained the values as it gradually grew in strength to December. The strength of the market was largely due to the Russia and Japan war orders, which made the market at times exciting. No other orders equally as large would have advanced the market to the same extent; but the wool trade, like all others, made use of the opportunity, and boomed prices beyond their natural level. When these rush orders ceased, wool values at the January London wool sales declined from 10 to 15 per cent., and at the March London wool sales declined about the same. This was due in part to the heavy supply from South America, New Zealand, and Australia, and it was thought at times the consuming power would not be capable of absorbing all that came, without a very much depressed market; but owing to the renewed activity in war orders, and the strong American demand, the downward tendency was checked. This check is considered by some to be only temporary. It is not expected that the present high level of wool can be sustained, as prices are fully 20 per cent. above the average of the last ten years. Forecasting the conditions of the future market, with the extreme low price of cotton and the largely increased supply of wool from the southern hemisphere, which produces 80 per cent. of the total wool production of the world, these conditions should be considered by the dealer and grower with a view to early marketing of their wool.

Our Canadian woollen manufacturers at the present level of the market are anything but prosperous, as the present tariff is not sufficient protection to cope with the British manufacturers. The Canadian wool industries have been greatly reduced within the last few years, and as the Northwest wool is subject to a duty of 12c. per lb. to the United States, this practically prohibits the exportation of these grades to the United States. The Northwest wools, as a rule, have to be consumed by our Canadian manufacturers, and have to be bought on the level of competing grades. There is still some of last year's Northwest wool unsold, owing to the prices being above similar grades of foreign wool. If the wool growers in the Northwest make sale of the coming clip at last year's prices, they will receive full market value, as the outlook is not so promising as last year.
