Taken Over By Mr. Roberts Yesterday The Daily Mail was informed that Mr. Job Roberts had finalized a deal to take her over and would fit her out for the sealfishery. Interviewing Mr. 'Roberts on the matter we were informed that the report was correct, that he had procured the steamer from the Messrs. Bowring and would send her to the icefields.

The intention is to send her north with Captain Alfred Burgess, now chief officer of the Kyle, in charge. Capt. Burgess is a native of that historic spot in Bonavista Bay, renowned in local history as the birth place of many vikings of the frozen pans-Greenspond, though for the last few years he has resided in St. John's. Although still a young man Captain Burgess has had a long and varied experience, having been out with the a late Hon. Capt. S. Blandford and Capt. W. C. Winsor.

This will be his first spring in command of a steamer, but he is a hustler and is almost certain to do well. The Kite will take sixty men, and while in the past she had found it difficult to get a full compliment of stalwarts, Capt. Burgess will find it an easy matter to get all the men he needs. He is a worker, himself, and inspires others to hustle, too. Already he has had offers from fine strapping young fellows who wish to go with him, because they believe fortune will favor him and that a good trip of fat will be secured. Clear From St. John's Unlike the others of the wooden fleet, the Kite will sail from St. John's. Captains of the other wooden steamers prefer to clear from Wesleyville or some other nearby port in Bonavista Bay, as they think they are so much ahead by doing so. Captain Burgess does not think there is much gained by clearing from Bonavista Bay, in fact the chances of getting 'jammed' are infinitely greater. The wooden vessels have a few days start on the ironclads, and the Kite it is believed, will do better by starting from St. John's than some starting from St. John's than from some northern port. The Kite will take only 250 tons coal and the cost of outfitting will not be great. She is capable of carrying between ten and twelve thousand white coats, and if she returns loaded Mr. Roberts will make a good thing out of it.
