

The Song of the Hair

There are four verses. Verse 1. Ayer's Hair Vigor stops falling hair. Verse 2. Ayer's Hair Vigor makes the hair grow. Verse 3. Ayer's Hair Vigor cures dandruff. Verse 4. Ayer's Hair Vigor makes the scalp healthy, and keeps it so. It is a regular hair-food; this is the real secret of its wonderful success.

GREENBUSH—NOW AND THEN

Editor Reporter.

Kindly allow me space for a few chapters on Greenbush 70 years ago and Greenbush of today. It may be of interest to those who have recently moved here and also to younger residents of Greenbush.

The leading farmers of this vicinity 70 years ago were:

Joel Loverin, who died 1843.
Norris Loverin, died 1900, aged 84.
John Haskard, died 1856, aged 84.
James Haskins, died 1844, aged 50.
W. Williams, died 1859, aged 60.

James Olds, Samuel Olds, William Olds, John Keeler and George Kerr. James Olds held the reputation of being the most wealthy man that ever lived in this part of the township, owning 500 acres of land in this section.

He also owned and operated the first saw mill in this part of the country.

He also owned several hundred acres of land, on which was a large flour and saw mill, two miles west of Morristown and also several hundred acres of land near Black Lake, N. Y. During my younger days Mr Olds lived on the farm now owned by T. W. Smith.

About the year 1855 he leased his property to the late Daniel Blanchard. Mr Olds then moved to Canton, York State, where he purchased a farm situated one mile from town, where he died a few years after. His family of three sons and four daughters have since passed over to the great majority.

A great change has taken place here in the past 70 years. Then the residents mostly lived in small log houses with but one room and no stables. Fire was made in a large chimney place and the daily meals cooked thereon.

No matches in those days; if the fire died in the night some member of the household would have to go to the nearest house and procure fire before the good housewife could cook the breakfast.

No coal oil; the lighting was done by tallow candles.

Seventy years ago most of the farm work was done with oxen and a few horses.

No carriages in those days. The people went to market, went to mill, went to church in double wagons. Then farmers had no cow stables. Their cows had to rest on the sheltered side of a straw stack. Each farmer then kept only 5 or 6 cows; now from 20 to 50. Then they got from $12 to $15 for each cow; now from $40 to $150. Then they got 10c per lb for butter; now from 80c to 35c. Then they received 80c a piece for lambs; now $5.00 is the purchase price.

THE GRAND TOUR

Miss Bessie Wright of Ottawa, with a party of friends, is making the "grand tour" of Europe, and under date of July 9th, writes her mother, Mrs (Rev) Wright as follows:—

We are now in Venice. We spent yesterday sightseeing in Milan. Talk of architecture! I never saw such a grand view as the inside of the cathedral—52 immense pillars holding the roof, only a few chairs in front of the grand altar, the place capable of holding 40,000 people. Of course the paintings are grand. The carving on the outside is like lace work. 8000 separate statues outside and 1000 within. We were also in St. Ambrose's church, the patron saint of Milan. The parks and cemetery are grand. We saw a funeral of some rich old chap who had left and given money to orphanages, etc. The children all walked. Some of the wreaths on the outside of the hearse were about 5 feet across.

Our hotel, the Continental, was so comfortable. All foreign hotels are built around a courtyard, filled with palms and flowers, tables and chairs.

We had a large automobile meet us and had a guide and carriage to see the town. Last night when we got here, a gondola took us to the hotel. We went along the Grand Canal. Our hotel, the Royal Danieli, was formerly a Doge's palace, and situated facing the sea. Opposite our windows a large American yacht is anchored, two Italian men-of-war and gondolas and excursion boats pass and repass. The moonlight on the scene last night was fine.

We have been with a guide all morning and went through the Doge's palace, the church of St. Marco, and saw the pigeons in the square; then through the large lace schools where lace is all made by hand, on pillows with bobbins or in hand looms. I admired a black lace dress. It was only $500 so I didn't take it. The loveliest table linen with lace pieces introduced, berthas, etc. 5,000 Italian peasants work for this place. Patterns are sent to them and they copy them. Last year they brought an Irish girl here to teach them Irish crochet, and now they make parasol covers, etc.

I enjoy the fruit in these places—cherries, plums, peaches and oranges galore.

This afternoon we have a guide and go to the glass factories and other galleries of pictures. Friday we go to Florence and stay over Sunday. We saw the Convent church of St. Zachariah this morning. Some of his bones are here in alabaster coffin; also two of the alabaster pillars from the Temple at Jerusalem. In Milan are two windows—one gives in picture the whole history of the Old Testament, the other the New. We also saw the brazen serpent that Moses used in the wilderness.

I wish you could see the paintings in this hotel. The electric display is grand. The stores in Milan are fine. It is a city much larger than Montreal. We have Dukas and Countesses—Italian, French and English—at this place. I must say our hotels can learn a lot from the foreign ones. I saw more merry widow sailors in Milan than in London, worn by Italians too.

We get European editions of New York papers every day, but never a word of Canada in them. I think I am going to have my picture taken with the pigeons in front of St. Marco this afternoon.
