ST. ANDREW'S BROTHERHOOD.

Lord Bishop of London Attending International Meeting.

Washington, Sept. 26.—Marked by an assemblage of distinguished churchmen from abroad, including Rev. A. F. Winnington-Ingram, Lord Bishop of London, and Archbishop Nuttall of the West Indies, the International Convention of the Brotherhood of St. Andrew opened here yesterday, with preliminary meetings of subordinate bodies.

The proceedings began with separate meetings of the United States Council, the Canadian Council, and the international committee, followed by a preparatory and devotional conference of conventions, led by James L. Houghteling of Chicago, founder of the brotherhood, and Rev. Floyd W. Tomblin, pastor of the Holy Trinity Church, Philadelphia, yesterday afternoon.

A QUESTION OFTEN ASKED.

Why take many pills that do worse after taking pills than before? Trouble is that drastic pills are used. No remedial action is obtained, the bowels are irritated and dreadful constipation follows. In using Dr. Hamilton's Pills you're scarcely conscious of having taken medicine. Although very mild, Dr. Hamilton's Pills do regulate the bowels, stimulate normal action of the glands, and create neither nausea, griping or violent action. Positively guaranteed for biliousness, indigestion, stomach, liver and kidney ills. For a safe family pill rely on Dr. Hamilton's. 25c. per box, at all dealers.

PROMINENT MANUFACTURER SPEAKS.

In Vanleek Hill, Ont., no one is better known than Geo. S. Watson. When he says "Catarrh is a real cure," depend on it being so. "My wife," he writes, "was subject to bad attacks of throat irritation and bronchitis. Many remedies were tried but failed to prove of all use. Catarrh is a different. It seemed to get right at the sore spots and brought relief quickly. We have found Catarrh is an absolute cure for bronchitis and catarrh." Nothing cures more quickly, so get it to-day, two sizes, 25c. and $1, at all dealers.

Dear Sirs.—While in the country last summer I was badly bitten by mosquitoes, so badly that I thought I would be disgraced for a couple of weeks. I was advised to try your Liniment to allay the irritation, and did so. The effect was more than I expected, a few applications completely curing the irritation, and preventing the bites from becoming sore. MINARD'S LINIMENT is also a good article to keep off the mosquitoes.

THE SHIP'S RUDDER.

Difference in the Strain That Comes Upon Its Two Parts.

The rudder of a wooden ship is composed of the stalk and the backing, which are so joined together as to form in effect a single piece. The complete rudder is covered to protect it from worms, and then, besides being practically all in one piece, it has that appearance also.

The stalk is the part to which are attached the pintles, or pivots, by which the rudder is suspended and held in place, these going through eyes set in the ship's sternpost. The stalk runs up through the stern of the ship, and to its head is bolted a cap to which are attached the ropes by means of which the rudder is controlled. The backing is the blade part of the rudder.

By far the greater strain comes on the stalk, and the greatest strain of all comes on the head of the stalk, the rudder head, where it is held. The stalk is made of the wood most likely to stand the strain, carefully selected, sound, well seasoned oak, while the backing is made of spruce or hard pine. The stalk is of a single, solid, massive piece, stout as an oak tree and indeed of the dimensions of a small oak, something that a man can pin his faith to, if he can have faith in any wood, while the backing or blade is, like many modern wooden masts, built up. It would be difficult if not impossible to find trees that would yield planks big enough for the purpose in a single piece, and the built up backing, made of pieces of selected wood, can easily be made of ample strength to withstand any strain that will be brought upon it.

As to the stalk, stout and solid as the oak may be, the head may be twisted by the force of a tremendous blow from a wave upon the rudder, or, under the repeated strains of long use, the head may split and so make the stalk useless. Then the rudder is taken out and fitted with a new stalk. A suitable stick is selected and worked down to the proper size and form, and very probably the old backing is attached to it. The life of a rudder stalk would probably be twelve to fourteen years. The backing might last as long as the ship.

A HERO OF THE BUSH.

The Daring and Devotion of a Brave Maori Youth.

Courage is not an attribute peculiar to the white man, nor is self sacrifice the prerogative of civilization. In Mr. J. C. Firth's "Nation Making" is told a story as touching in its brave devotion as any tale of the Victoria cross. The incident occurred at Orakau, where the English soldiers had just defeated the Maoris. A little party of colonial troops, pursuing fugitives, came upon three natives, two old men and one young fellow.

The youth, seeing the soldiers, dropped on one knee and aimed with his gun at the advancing party, which halted a moment, while the old men had thrown away their firearms in order to make escape easier.

The soldiers fired at the youth, but missed. Without discharging his gun he sprang to his feet and ran on in advance until he caught up with the old men once more. Then, facing about, he presented his gun as before, but reserved his fire.

The weary old men gradually drew near cover. Once more the soldiers fired and missed; once more the gallant fellow turned and bounded on. The old men were close to the forest when the youth, nearly fainting, again knelt and took aim, but still did not fire.

The soldiers shot him as he knelt and rushed to the forest, but failed to capture the two fugitives, who, safe in the dense underbrush, made their escape.

On their return the soldiers found the brave young fellow lying dead. His gun was empty; it had not been loaded at all. With it he had covered the retreat of the old men and secured their freedom by the loss of his own life. No more gallant deed of heroic devotion was ever accomplished in any land.

Dreams of the Healthy.

There has been much discussion as to whether one dreams only on falling to sleep and during the act of waking up, or whether dreams take place at any time during sleep. While not definitely determined as yet, the evidence seems to be rather in favor of the view that one may dream at any time during the night or the whole night through. Dreaming is common to perfectly healthy persons, and in itself is no evidence of disorder.

Mount McKinley.

In mountain climbing the world over the climber usually arrives fresh and unfatigued at the base of the peak he wishes to storm and, as a rule, begins his ascent at a high altitude. On Mount McKinley, as described by a writer in Outing, it is the opposite. There are twenty-five miles of rugged foothills and glaciers to be crossed, with heavy packs before the base of the mountain is reached, and then the climber is confronted by 18,000 feet of rock and ice.

MIXED IN THE THUNDER.

A Scene in "Macbeth" That Was Not on the Playbill.

It is related of Cooke, the actor, that when a youth, being without the necessary cash to pay for a seat "in front," he got behind the scenes one night and hid himself in a barrel. He had for companions two large cannon balls, but the youth, not being initiated into the mysteries of the place, did not suspect that cannon balls helped to make thunder in a barrel as well as in a twenty-four pounder.

The play was "Macbeth," and in the first scene the thunder was required to give due effect to the situation of the crouching witches. It was not long ere the Jupiter Tonans of the theater, alias the property men, approached and seized the barrel, and the horror of the concealed boy may be imagined as the man proceeded to cover the open end with a piece of old carpet and tie it carefully to prevent the thunder from being split.

Cooke was profoundly and heroically silent. The machine was carried by the brawny stage servant and lifted carefully to the side scene lest in rolling the thunder should tumble before its cue.

All was made ready, the witches took their places amid flames of resin, the thunder bell rang, the barrel received its impetus with young Cooke and the cannon balls, the stage struck on the thunderer, who neglected to stop the rolling machine, which, tumbled on the stage, and Cooke, bursting off the cap, head of the barrel, appeared before the audience, to the horror of the weird sisters and to the hilarity of the spectators.—London Mail.

MUSHROOMS.

Those That Are Poisonous Always Carry the "Death Cup."

Mushrooms when poisonous are the most dangerous plants in existence, as there is no antidote for the poison. Without going into the intricacies of the edible "meadow" (Agaricus campestris), and the "horse" mushroom (Agaricus arvensis), which are among the most wholesome and valuable vegetables, and of the numerous other harmless and nutritious varieties, as distinguished by their dark spores from the poisonous kind with white spores, one rule of observation will preserve the health and safety of any one collecting wild mushrooms for eating.

Without the use of a single technical term, the difference in poisonous and nonpoisonous mushrooms is easily shown, even to a novice. What botanists call the "death cup," the volva around the stem, or, in plainer terms, the socket around the stem, is never absent from the deadly mushrooms. Sometimes it is distinct, well above ground, up around the lower part of the stem; then again it is below ground, but not attached to the stem, so as to lose the cup shape, and sometimes it grows upon or is attached to the stem, giving it a bulbous, swollen base. Severely reject every plant that has a bulbous stem or the cup standing out around the stem. All edible and harmless mushrooms have straight stems, the same size from the root to the cap.—Georgia Torrey Denman in Good Housekeeping.

Mythification.

His weakness was prevarication. His wife detested lying and constantly urged him to mend his ways. One morning she said: "Will, see if you can't be perfectly truthful today. Can't tell a lie. Now, promise!" He promised and went away to work. When he came home to dinner, she said:

"Dear, did you keep your promise?" "I did," he replied soberly.

"Then he caught her in his arms. "Darling," he cried, "I will not lie to you. When I said I had kept my promise to you, I did not tell the truth; but, believe me, that was the only lie I told all day."

For twenty-two seconds she was lost in perplexity. Then she gave it up; the problem was too deep for her.

The Part He Lost.

A New England man tells of a prosperous Connecticut farmer painfully exact in money matters who married a widow of Greenwich possessing in her own right the sum of $10,000. Shortly after the wedding he found the wife, to his horror, to be a fortune teller. At the same time observing, "It's a good thing for you, Malachi, marriage that means $10,000 to you." "Not quite that, Bill," said the farmer, "not quite that." "Why," exclaimed the friend, "I understood there was every cent of $10,000 in it for you." "I had to pay $2 for a marriage license," said Malachi.

Gnawed His Way Out of Prison.

A burglar named Scharschmidt, in prison at Gera, deliberately set to work to gnaw through a thick oak beam in front of his cell window. It was a work of seven weeks. The fragments of wood which were torn away with his teeth he replaced with chewed bread until the beam was almost gnawed through. A final smashing blow was heard by the wardens, but before they could appear Scharschmidt had escaped.—London Chronicle.

WHEN NAPOLEON WALKED.

An Incident of the Tragical Retreat From Moscow.

It was on Nov. 23, at about 7 o'clock in the morning, when we saw the head of the column. The first we saw were generals, a few of whom were on horseback, but the majority on foot. The latter painfully dragged themselves along, almost all having their feet frozen and bound up in rags and pieces of sheepskin and dying of hunger. We then saw what was left of the cavalry of the guard. The emperor came next on foot, with a stick in his hand. He was muffled up in a large capote lined with fur and wore on his head an amaranthine velvet cap edged with black foxskin. On his right marched, also on foot, King Murat; on his left, Prince Eugene, viceroy of Italy; then Berthier, prince of Neuchâtel; Ney, Mortier, Lefebvre and other marshals and generals whose corps had been partly destroyed.

They were followed by 700 to 800 officers and subofficers, marching in order and bearing in the greatest silence the eagles of the regiments to which they had belonged and that had so often led them to victory. They were the remnant of over 60,000 men. My poor Picart, who had not seen the army for a month, gazed on silently, but his convulsive movements showed only too well what he felt. I saw big tears roll down the cheeks and fall on his mustache, from which icicles were hanging. Then, turning to me, "Really, compatriot, I do not know whether I am asleep or awake; I weep because I have seen our emperor marching on foot, a stick in his hand—that was so great and who has made us so proud!"—Mémoires of Sergeant Bourgeois.

FOREIGN MONEY.

A Showman's Experience With Counterfeit Coins in Naples.

"When you are abroad," said a tourist agent, "look out for counterfeit money. In France and Italy especially look out. There are a lot of small souled French and Italians who save up counterfeit money all the year to dump it on the tourist trade in the summer."

"I said to look out, but really that is impossible. An American tourist has his hands full just to count foreign money with its centimes and lires, its francs and centesimi, and when too often he is unable to count this money how can he detect counterfeit in it?"

"Italy is the worst country, and it is safe to say that every tourist loses in had money there 1 or 2 per cent of all that passes through his hands."

"When Buffalo Bill showed in Naples the audience was enormous, but the next day when the business manager went to bank the receipts of the night, lo and behold, over a thousand dollars in counterfeit money had been taken in."

"Buffalo Bill in person went and complained to the prefect, or chief of police."

"They passed a thousand dollars on you in counterfeit?" said the prefect.

"They did," said Buffalo Bill bitterly.

"Just like these Italians," exclaimed the prefect. "What a grand nation!"—Exchange.

Thunder in Various Regions.

Java is said to be the region of the globe where it thunders oftenest, having thunderstorms ninety-seven days in the year. After it are Sumatra, with eighty-six days; Hindustan, with fifty-six; Borneo, with fifty-four; the Gold Coast, with fifty-two, and Rio de Janeiro, with fifty-one. In Europe, Italy occupies the first place, with thirty-eight days of thunder, while France and southern Russia have sixteen days. Great Britain and Switzerland have each seven days, and Norway has four. Thunder is rare at Cairo, being heard only three days in the year, and extremely rare in northern Turkey and the polar regions.

The "Dandy Horse."

The father of the bicycle tribe, the "dandy horse," was invented in 1818 by Baron von Drais of Paris. It consisted of two wheels about thirty inches in diameter running one in the wake of the other and connected by a beam of wood, upon which, half way from each end, was a saddle or perch, an arm rest in front completing the machine. It was propelled by kicking the ground with the right and left foot alternately. It was from such a crude affair that the modern bicycle was slowly evolved.

Taking No Chances.

The court appointed a young lawyer to defend a Georgia dandy, but after the prisoner had looked the lawyer over he said:

"No, Mister Judge, I reckon not. De las' time I got in de penitentiary I had a man dat look dese lak him to defend me, so des leve him out de case en gimme ten years!"

PREYED ON HIM.

Couldn't Stand to See His Wife Harassed.

New York, Sept. 26.—Despondent as a result of ill-health and reverses, Harry Chernock, a garment cutter, aged 30 years, yesterday made an attempt to kill his wife by stabbing her with a pair of tailor's shears, and then jumped from a fourth-story window, receiving injuries from which he died.

For six months Chernock had been so ill that he was unable to work. To support their five-year-old son and her husband, Mrs. Chernock went to work in a sweatshop for small wages. When Chernock saw his wife growing pale and haggard from her toil, it tried on his nerves.

Eyes and Nose Ran Water.—C. G. Archer, of Brewer, Maine, says, "I have had catarrh for several years. Water would run from my eyes and nose for days at a time. About four months ago I was induced to try Dr. Agnew's Catarrhal Powder, and since using the wonderful remedy I have not had an attack. It relieves in ten minutes." 50 cents.
