PARTED ON THEIR BRIDAL TOUR.

By the author of 'A Forbidden Marriage,' ' That Pretty Young Girl,' etc. CHAPTER X.

WITH THEE CONVERSING I FORGET ALL TIME

The rooms were well crowded when Esmond arrived. The duchess received him with the greatest empressment. He could not help feeling a little flattered. At a little distance he saw his friend Ross, standing by an arched doorway, looking unhappy enough.

CONTINUED.

"Why are you not dancing, my dear fellow, while so many bright eyes are challenging you from all quarters '

"I will tell you what I am doing," said Ross, frowning darkly. "I am keeping watch. You remember that young lady I was speaking to you about. Well, I have just seen her go into the conservatory with that jackanapes of a French count, Monsieur Ballou, I believe they call him. He's a despicable fellow, always hanging around after her. If he wasn't such an expert shot, by the Lord Harry, I'd challenge him to a duel on the spot for persistently annoying that girl. I am sure he annoys her."

"I shall stay here until they come out," declared Ross, determinedly; "they must come out soon; why they have been long enough in there to have examined every plant in the conservatory twice over. Ah, they are coming at last," said Ross, with a great sigh of relief, as he clutched his friend's arm.

"Come, let me present you." Esmond had not the least desire to be presented to this houri with whom his friend was so desperately in love, but he allowed himself to be drawn forward.

"See how that miserable French count bends over her, smiling like a hyena," cried Ross, savagely, crushing something very like an imprecation through his white, set teeth. "Can't you see how bored she looks?"

"Where are they?" asked Esmond, in no little amusement at his friend's anger. "Don't you see the two just coming ou from that green arch, the young girl stopping to caress the swaying crimson blossoms of that India plant? See, they are coming this way; you will have a full view of her face when she turns from that jacknapes to look in this direc-

Following where Ross had indicated, Esmond saw a picture that he never forgot

while he lived. There was a beautiful overhanging plant, green, with rich, crimson flowers that hung down like the tendrils of the jasmine; they formed a beautiful natural arch, and a young girl was standing underneath it. Her face was turned from him. He never saw the man to whom she was speaking, he never thought of him, every sense, every thought, was engrossed in her. He saw a tall, slender figure, every line and curve of which was full of grace, the draperies of palest green silk and fine white lace were looped up with s simple cluster of white rosebuds and long, shining grasses, white rosebuds was mingled with the lace on her breast, and a smalll knot of the same flowers were twined amidst her dark curls.

"She must indeed be a charming creature if her form corresponds with that face," murmured Esmond. "Come, make haste," cried Ross, fairly dragging him forward. The next instant they were standing before her. Esmond drew back with a gasp of joy; as she turned her beautiful face, he beheld the girl for whom he had been searching so long and so vainly, Irene Middleton. She recognized him, instantly, as he could see from the sudden paling and flushing of her face as their eyes met. He never remem bered in what words Ross made that presentation: for the first time in his life Esmond los the debonair self-possession which character-"Miss Middleton and I have met before, he stammered, and it occurred to him tha Ross did not know under what circumstanae (as he had but recently returned to London from college) that he had met this young lady. The count, with a bow, had surrendered search of Victor Ross, much to that young gentleman's intense annoyance, and Esmond's great relief. I will return in a very few moments

Miss Middleton," said Ross, "remember the next waltz is ours," and he bowed himself from her presence, inwardly chagrined at leaving her with so handsome and agreeable a man as Esmond, and mentally wondering why Esmond had not told him that he knew Irene Middleton. It had not occurred to him that he had not mentioned her name, in speaking

Left to themselves, Esmond turned to her quickly, "It is warm here," he said, "and there is some little time yet before that waltz, will you try an ice?"

"It is warm," she answered. I shall be grateful for it." He offered her his arm; she placed her little white hand upon it and they walked off The next half hour that followed passed like a dream to Esmond. By tacit consent neither of them made the slightest allusion to that past which both would fain forget.

For the first time in months, smiles came to the lovely crimson lips as she listened to Es-He was a young man particularly gifted, clever and quick of comprehension; he had the great gift of understanding character, and adapting himself to those with whom he was brought in contact. Never before had he exerted himself to interest and please as he did to-night. Can it be wondered that he took Irene's imagination captive, and charmed her artistic beauty-loving mind? She sat with clasped hands, looking into his noble, earnest face, drinking in each word as it fell Suddenly the soft, sweet strains of the 'Soldaten Lieder' floated through the open doors. Esmond looked at his companion. "This is Mr. Ross' waltz with you," he said, "he will be looking for you with the utmost impatience; I sincerely beg your pardon for spiriting you away from the ball-room and keeping you away so long. If I were fond of quotations I would use one now, Miss Middleton, I could say, 'with thee conversing I forget all time."

He offered her his arm, her face flushed as she took it, and she was vaguely conscious that her hand trembled. What did it mean? Why should her hand tremble as it touched his arm. "What is g to me," she thought, impatiently, "surely I am not growing, awkward and nervous." She tried to throw off the feeling, she looked up at him with some careless, laughing remark, and then as suddenly dropped her eyes again, while a hot flush seemed to burn her face, for he was looking at her earnestly and something in that gaze made her slumbering heart beat as it had never beaten before. They went through the long suite of brilliantly lighted rooms, coming at length face to face with Mr. Ross, who looked exceedingly perturbed as he saw her for whom he was searching, slowly advancing, leaning upon Esmond's arm. "I owe you many thanks, Mr. Esmond." said Ross, stiffly; "you knew I would be searching for Miss Middleton, that I was to return to her; your forgot all about it."

"I am sorry, I did forget," said Esmond, flushing and smiling. "I knew you would," said Mr. Ross, driven to desperation by the state of affairs. As he looked at Esmond's handsome debonair face he'said to himself, "Surely he has not fallen in love with her too!"

"Before I relinquish you, let me ask for the waltz that follows this, Miss Middleton," said Esmond, eagerly, and Ross bit his lip with fierce vexation and jealously as he saw her hand Esmond her dainty tablet and he jotted down his name, returning it with a low bow- the great world. The remainder of the evening passed like a dream to Irene Middleton, the homage offered knew,' thought Irene, with a shudder. her, the countless compliments that she received, the music, the lights, and the flowers, were all parts of a confused dream from which shé did hot awaken, until Frederick Esmond with that waltz, a new life-drama was began. Victor Ross stood looking after them with darkening brow and compressed lips, "If he

The way in which they waltzed together who had once been such firm friends. was simply perfection, the very poerty of graceful motion; it was rather floating to the sweetest strains of music than dancing. Ross turned away with some strong muttered words between his teeth, vowing that he hated waltzing. He had never known a waltz so long

During the remainder of the evening both gentlemen lingered by the beauty's side; each ignoring the anygry looks of the other. 'If it is to be a drawn battle between us as to which will win her, so be it,' muttered Victor Ross, 'he will find out this much, I will never give her up.'

CHAPTER XI.

FATE SETTLES THE MATTER. The grand ball was over at last, and an our later Irene was seated before the open window in her room, her lovely dark hair all unbound, falling in dark, heavy curls around her. She had laid aside her magnificent dress, and robed in a pale blue cashmere neglige, she looked even more beautiful than in full dress. The duchess had come in to say 'good night,' and ask her how she had nioved the ball.

'I cannot tell you how much I enjoyed it,' murmured Irene; I was sorry when it was all over, it seemed like coming from Eden back to this cold, bitter world,'

'I think, Irene," said the duchess, 'that some one helped to make it very pleasant for

'I had n great many very nice partners eturned Irene, her fair face flushing. 'We will not talk about it to-night, or rather, so early in the new born day; I see we are in the 'wee sma' hours.' glancing at the ormolu clock on the marble mantel; 'you will join me at 10 o'clock breakfast, and we will talk it over then over our chocolate,' said the duchess, kissing her. 'Good night, Irene and sweet dreams,' and with these words she

Irene must have been tired; but no sleep came to those dark, brilliant eyes; she crossed over to the window, drew aside the heavy silken curtains, and looked out at the stars gleaming in the blue sky. 'For long months the face of Mr. Esmond has haunted me,' she murmured; 'now we have met again.'

Kinging like sweetest music in her ears was the sweet sound of his voice. How was it? She had heard many voices, yet the memory of one had never lingered with her before; not one accent, not one word was lost upon her, she thought him the kindliest gentleman she had ever met.

'Well, ' said the duchess to her nephew, when she met him in the corridor the next morning, 'How do you prosper with your wooing, my dear tellow?'

Ross thrust his hands deep into his pockets and gazed gloomily from the window. 'I do not prosper at all, 'he answered rusquely. 'How do you expect me to stand any chance of winning so much as a glance from Miss Middleton, when you invite continually such fellows here to meet her as that detestible French count and-and-Esmond, who is known as one of the wealthiest and most eligible men in London, even without the titte which he disdains to wear. How do you expect me only a poor devil of a student, o stand any chance with such men.'

'I am sure you ought to hold your own against any of them, my dear boy,' declared the duchess, looking laughingly at the handsome, disconsolate young student, 'but there is one thing I would advise, Victor,' she went on, earnestly, 'and that is, never allow your impulsive affection to get the better of your judgment. If you see plainly that Irene prefers another to yourself, abandon the field gracefully, that is the best way.' 'Do you mean, give up the field easily? Stand quietly by and see another man woo and win the only woman I can ever love Such advice coming from a sensible woman amazes me. You can depend upon it I am not likely to do anything of the kind.'

When Victor Ross sought Irene in drawing-room that afternoon, he found to his dismay, Esmond was with her. A group of ladies and gentlemen were ex amining some fine engravings that had just arrived. Esmond and Irene were at the piane quite alone by themselves. If he thinks to monopolize Miss Middleton's society after that fashion, he will find he has much difficulty to face, thought Ross, biting his lips with vexation.

He crossed directly over to the piano, and after bowing stiffly to Esmond took his place at the other end of the instrument, and remained there with a pertinacity that was more than annoying to Esmond. Irene tried to distribute her words and her smiles equally between the two gentlemen Neither would address one word to the other but directed his conversation directly to her. 'Will you sing to me?' asked Ross, deermined that his rival should not have one noment's conversation with her if he could prevent it; already he had begun to call Esmond that in his own mind. 'Certainly,' replied Irene, running her slim, white fingers over the keys, murmuring more to herself than to either of them, 'I wonder what it shall be.'

"Sing 'My Queen;" that is my favorite song," said Victor Ross.

'Sing 'I have loved thee since the day I met thee first,' 'said Esmond, in a low vibrating voice. Both gentlemen had spoken to gether, the situation was therefore embarrass ing to Irene. She was too gentle to willingly offend either.

'Suppose I sing you my own favorite,' she aid, and both eagerly assented. 'I read these beautiful words the other day. she went on, 'and they haunted me so, I set them to music and have been singing them sang in a clear sweet voice, that had an under-tone of sadness in it: "There's an end to toiling some day, But its weary the waiting—weary! There,s a harbor, somewhere, in a peace

Where the sails will be furled and the ship will lay At anchor, somewhere, in the far away But its weary the waiting-weary!

"There's an end to the troubles of souls But its weary the waiting —weary!

Sometime in the future, when God thinks He'll lay us tenderly down to rest, And roses 'll grow from the thorns in the breast

But its weary the waiting—weary! "There's an end to the world with its stormy frown, But its weary the waiting—weary! There's a light somewhere that no dark can drown, And where life's sad burdens are all laid down; A crown, thank God, for each cross a crown! But its weary the waiting-weary! 'Very beautiful, but very melancholy,' said a resolution urging the adoption of stand-Victor Ross, when the last note died away. | ard time in that town.

All music should be sad, replied Miss Midlleton, sadness is the key-note of nature, That sounds strangely from the lips of a oung girl, aaid Victor Ross. laughingly; what should you know of sorrow such as fills

The lovely face paled. 'Ah, if he but 'I have sung all my spirits away,' she said, but then, I always do.'

When she rose from the piano the two gentlemen rose with her; they could endure came to claim her for the promised waltz, and that she should leave them both together, neither would have left her first. There is nothing the world enjoys more than a comedy of lovers. The world looked on asks her to dance again I shall hate him," with laughing eyes at the fierce dislike that was growing up in the hearts of these two, 'Which will she choose?' 'How will it end?' were the two questions people asked each other.

It was becoming a serious matter with both Esmond and Victor Ross; both loved Irene, and neither would yield in the slightest degree o the other.

Both decided on the same plan of action: to ask Irene to be his wife, thereby settling this bitter rivalry at once and forever. Both pitied his rival, being confident she would accept himself.

That very evening, fate settled the matter in a strange way for the young student, bringng his dream of love to an abrupt ending. He had gone out into the rose garden to enjoy a cigar in solitude under the trees. Tempted by the beauty of the night he sat ong after his cigar was finished, indulging in fanciful day dreams, dreaming of a bright future with dark-eyed, sweet Irene by his side. Planning how he should work for her day and night, of the name and fame he should build for himself, all for her dear sake.

It was a pity the poor fellow could not have freamt on forever thus, for those airy day dreams were destined to be his last. He was startled at length by the sound of

He did not care to be disturbed; he felt in WF Mitchell o mood to be amiable to any of the young C E Duffy adies, listening to their small talk. and being FCD Bristowe forced to pay idle compliments because they E H Murchie were expected.

I will wait here until the young ladies pass by, he told himself, leaning carelessly back F H Risteen apon the rustic bench. They were very near him; he could see two R F Randolph lender, white-robed forms scarcely ten feet | H D White from him, quite distinctly through the green W Anderson One of the ladies was talking in a low, W Adams earnest voice, which he readily detected as the Gregory McPeake

Victor Ross was no eavesdropper; he dis- L C Macnutt oised anything so mean as to listen to conver- J A Tilton, St John CE Neill sation not intended for his ears; he did not Geo H Clark make his presence known, believing they Jos Purdie would soon pass on. In this he was mistaken; they stopped short B Lemont in the moonlit path, so near the secluded Geo L Wilson nook in which he had ensconced himself, that J Fraser Winslow he could easily have put out his hand and FP Hatt touched them. My dear girl, the duchess was saying, of J A George course you know best; but I should advise Harold Babbitt you to think twice before you refuse such a L W Bailey, jr over if he asks you to wed him. Victor Ross W C Roberts loves you, and the day is not far off when he A C Tabor will tell you so. I tell you this because you are so blind you do not see it. Irene. Then it was Irene to whom the duchess was whole future depend on what her answer

A flow, sobbing cry answered the duchess. hope and pray that he may not care for me, Irene said, huskily; for oh, believe me, it ould never be. I do not love Mr. Ross, and I could never be his wife. You might learn to care for him in time, arged the duchess, he is all that is good and

He is all that I grant you, replied Irene. sadly; but were he a king on his throne I could not marry him. Nothing could change of neglect, thinking more of others than in a faultless manner, taking the place of of St. John, is valued at $80,000. By the the head and its almost certain associate, catarrh. Recently he made use of Dr. Agnew's Catarrhal Powder, and has found pleasure to tell others of the good it has One short puff of the breath through the assages. Painless and delightful to use, ache, Sore Throat, Tonsilitis and Deafness. 60 cents. Sample bottle and blower sent on receipt of two 3 cent stamps. S. G. Detchon, 44 Church St., Toronto. Sold by

TO BE CONTINUED. A WELL-KNOWN CATHOLIC

Of Hamilton, Rev. Father John J. Hinchey, 'Pastor of St. Joseph's Church, Hamilton, Bears Testimony to the Undisputed Worth of Dr. Agnew's Catarrhal Powder.

Wiley. SEVERED THE JUGULAR.

A sad accident happened to little Charlotte Henverge, Wednesday at Montreal, which resulted in her death. The girl who was only about twelve years old, lived with her aunt and uncle, W. V. King. While hurrying out on an errand, she in some way fell through a glass door. Her aunt ran to her aid, but in her excitement fell downstairs with her. A boarder ran down and carried the little one across the street to a drug store, where there happened to be a doctor at the time. He found that the jugular vein had been sev-The song was a beautiful one and Irene ered, and his aid was of no avail as the girl quickly passed away. Mrs. King was but she was greatly upset by the death of more frightened than hurt by her fall,

There is a possibility that the fervor exhibited by all classes for the bicycle, carries with it an element of danger. Exin disease or in those cases where the muscular force is greatly reduced, the use of the wheel should be employed cautiously. The proprietors of the very well known remedy, Putnam's Corn Extractor, attribute the largeness of their sales not to the use of the bicycle by the people of Canada, but to the absolute certainty of their preparation to remove the most painful and obstinate corns in twentyfour hours. Putnam's Corn Extractor is always certain, safe, and prinless. Try it. Word has been received at Moncton from Ottawa that the petition for a Scott Act repeal in Westmorland is passed, and a writ for an election will be issued forth-The St. Stephen town council has passed

THE SMOKING CONCERT.

Given by the Bicycle Club Boys at their Club House Friday Night.

It was an Unqualified Success.

public under obligation for two very in a nonchalant manner: "Why there's pleasant and successful entertainments. The club house was opened early in the autumn by one of the largest and most

The club house was opened early in the autumn by one of the largest and most

People have had $40,000,000 left them by enjoyable balls and receptions ever given wealthy relatives." in the city, and last night the club again opened their handsome building for the exclusive enjoyment of their gentlemen friends. It was a smocking concert and fully deserved the name. Smoke, every dren were sixty-five the teething. If disturbed at the control of their children while teething. If disturbed at body smoked, and there were sixty-five night and broken of your rest by a sick pipes constantly sending their aromatic child crying with pain of Cutting Teeth, menced to arrive shortly after 8 o'clock and found the club room looking most.

Winslow's Soothing Syrup" for children and found the club room looking most cosy and inviting with a blazing log fire sufferer immediately. Depend upon it, in the big fire place, the rooms brilliantly mothers, there is no mistake about it. It illuminated with the Auer light and a profusion of comfortable lounging chairs. and Bowels, cures Wind Colic, softens and Bowels, cures Wind Colic, softens A committee of the club headed by such the Gums and reduces Inflamation. Is agreeable gentlemen as R. S. Barker, D. E. Crowe, G. H. Clarke, A. A. Shute, Jos.

Purdie and others violated the prescription of one of the oldest and best female phyand showed them to the disrobing rooms.

gathered it was found to be Constituted As Follows: Mayor VanWart Frank L. Cooper Jeremy Taylor R B H Phillips G L Fenety Thos Allen H C Mackay N A Edgecombe T Lawson, Andover George Black AHF Randolph H G Nealis A A Shute J C Allen, jr J A Winslow D E Crowe R H Buchanan J T Jennings J F Rogers A J Fowlie W Perkins Louis M Owens

Robt Chestnut Ham Kitchen Fred Magee N Loane, Woodsto Fred Taylor F A Creighton, N Bert Wiley Marvin Ross? F McGoldrick T C Doherty Fred Peters J Holland

W Bailey Frank Bayfield After the usual friendly greetings, pipes were produced from the unfailing club stock, and loaded to the brim with the Fort Fairfield, Maine, for a long time, says choicest of fine cut. Many of the guests the Beacon, is the death of Mrs. Leverett alert. He could surely be pardoned for wait- sat around the tables and played whist, G. Kimball last Wednesday, after having ing breathlessly for the reply that would fall at the same time giving their attention to given birth to twins three days previously from Irene's lips; for did not the issue of his the musical programme presented during The maiden name of the deceased was the evening; this was made up as follows: Edith Savage, and her old home was in Vocal solo... Vocal duett....Geo, L. Wilson, B. Lemont, She was married to Mr. Kimball last Vocal solo.

Instrumental duett...D. E. Crowe, violin, well. R. H. Buchanan, guitar. Vocal solo. Vocal quartette...B Lemont, Geo L Wilson Instrumental Duet.....Fred Magee, piano in an editorial about No-To-Bac, the fam-

Recitation .. Duet Address.... Piano solo. . Prof Bristowe Everybody was vociferously encored and guaranteed by Chas. A. Burchill No cure, no pay. Book free. Sterling and all responded. Mr. Adams made a Remedy Co., 374 St. Paul St., Montreal. Mr. Risteen's "Righteous Daniel" kept everybody laughing. Prof. Bristowe's excellent selections, both vocal and instrumental, were admirable. Dr. Bridges' In the person of the Rev. John T. Hin- famous French address was well received. No internal medicine required. Cures chey of St. Joseph's Church (R.C.), Ham- The instrumental music of Messrs. Crowe tetter, eczema, itch, all eruptions on the ilton, is found one who does the highest and Buchanan was very much appreciated, face, hands, nose, &c., leaving the skin credit to the self-sacrificing work in which and Mr. Lawson's address was very pleaclear, white and healthy. Its great healhe is engaged. His kindly heart constant- santly worded and complimentary to the ing and curative powers are possessed by y prompts to deeds of love and goodness, club. Messrs. Lemont, Wilson and the no other remedy. Ask your druggist for and in the city of Hamilton all who know others who took part in the programme Swayne's Ointment. him are ready to bear testimony to his high also came in for a good share of applause. character and active generosity. As result | Prof. Bristowe played the accompaniments himself, he has been a sufferer from cold in | Charles Hogg, who was unable to be pre- | will £1,000 is to be set apart for the edu-Just before the close of the entertain- the income goes to Mrs. Taylor so long as ment, His Worship the Mayor made a few she remains his widow, and the other half in it so great relief that he deems it a pleasant remarks. On behalf of the club to the son. The contingency for the rehe thanked most cordially all who had in marriage of the widow is provided for any way contributed to the amusement and two-thirds of her proportion is in that and instruction of the company. He event given to her son in addition to his blower supplied with each bottle of Dr. | thought almost every sense had been satis- half share of the estate, and the remain-Agnew's Catarrhal Powder, diffuses this fied, and he hoped it was but the beginning ing one-third of the widow's half is conpowder over the surface of the nasal of a series of such entertainments. His tinued to her on her re-marriage. passages. Painless and delightful to use, it relieves in ten minutes and permanently for Prof. Bristowe, who perhaps more than cures Catarrh, Hay Fever, Colds, Head- any other gentleman had assisted in the programme, and these were given with a Is the truthful, startling title of a book

W, H. Carten, C. A. Burchill and J. M. abundance by the club, from the Queen hotel larder HEIRESS TO $15,000,000.

Lucky One come to light by the sudden, unexpected erage for the city of Belleville as designed inheritance of a fortune of $15,000,000 by by Henry Carre, a member of the Canathe twenty-five-year-old daughter of a dian Society of Civil Engineers, have poor gardener, William Kelly, who lives been accepted by the provincial board of at Philadelphia. Elizabeth Kelly and health and are being carried out under her father have confirmed the story. the local improvement act. Fredericton The legacy comes from the estate of a should seek information there. long dead uncle, Peter Kelly, who amassed an immense fortune in the Australian gold A Graduate of Toronto University says: fields over thirty years ago. in Lancashire, England, when the Austra-Our physician first recommended it and lian gold craze broke out, and he went to now whenever a child takes cold my wife that land to make his fortune. Nothing resorts to this remedy which always efwas heard of him for many years, until fects a cure." IS BICYCLE RIDING INJURIOUS? one day, nearly a quarter of a century ago, his mother received word that he would The C. P. R. depot burned at Ottawa on not come, however, but after some months contained waiting rooms, baggage rooms, a deaf mute, who had been a passenger etc.. all of which have been burned and > including William Kelly, were drowned. | papers. Enquiry was begun, and the son's story valued at $15,000,000.

Some time after Peter's death, the story goes, his brother William, who had come to America before Peter's departure for Australia, learned of the existence of a will in which all the estate was bequeathed to his (William's) eldest child, Elizabeth. William's wages were enough for the support of his family and it is authoritatively asserted that when he first learned of this vast estate, he made no effort to secure it for his then infant daughter. Two years ago, however, he engaged an attorney, and it is declared that the enormous legacy will be placed The members of the Bicycling and at the disposal of the girl next week. While at first reticent concerning the Boating Club, although young as an organization, have already placed the organization, have already placed the organization of the story. Mr. Kelly and his daughter finally organization organization.

FOR OVER FIFTY YEARS

Purdie and others welcomed the guests sicians and nurses in the United States. Then when the whole company had world. 25cts per bottle. Be sure and ask for "Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup."

AROOSTOOK GAME. The report of the Bangor and Aroostook Railroad relating to the amount of game shipped over their lines during the hunting season makes interesting reading The figures, of course, relate only to such game as has been sent away, and bears no reference to the hunting doue by the "natives," which no doubt, would swell the figures to nearly double their present amount. The total number of deer shipped was 669; of moose, 24; of caribou, 10; of bears, 3; and an immense amount of small game, including ducks, partridges, etc.

I was Cured of Rheumatism in Twenty-

I, George English, shipbuilder, have lived in Chatham, N. S., over forty years. Last spring I took severe pains in my knee, which, combined with swelling, laid me up for six weeks, during which time I endured great suffering. I saw South American Rheumatic Cure advertised in The Chatham World and procured a bottle. Within twenty-four hours I was absolutely free from rheumatism, and have not been troubled with it since. Sold by W. H. Carten, C. A. Burchill and J. M. Wiley.

VERY SAD DEATH. One of the saddest events recorded in ... Prof. Bristowe, Williamstown, Carleton County, N. B. ...L. C. Macnutt. winter. The little babies are strong and

......F. H. Risteen. YOU DON'T HAVE TO SWEAR OFF I, C. Macnutt, Frank Cooper. Says the St. Louis Journal of Agriculture Frank Bayfield, violin. ous tobacco habit cure. "We know of .. W Adams many cases cured by No-To-Bac, one g ..Dr J W Bridges prominent St. Louis architect, smoked ...L. C. Macnutt, F. L. Cooper. and chewed for twenty years; two boxes ..Thos Lawson cured him so that even the smell of tobacco makes him sick." No-To-Bac sold

How to Cure All Skin Diseases." Simply apply "Swayne's Ointment."

The estate of the late Byron G. Taylor cation of his son. Of the residue one-half will, the Professor modestly responding.

During the evening the company was served with coffee and sandwiches in served with coffee and sandwiches in irod nerves eliminates the nicotine poison. ized nerves, eliminates the nicotine poison makes weak men gain strength, vigor and manhood. You run no physical or financial risk, as No-To-Bac is sold by Chas. A. Burchill, under guarantee to cure or mon-A Philadelphia Gardener's Daughter the ey refunded. Book free. Ad. Sterling Remedy Co., 374 St. Paul St., Montreal. A remarkable romance in real life has The plans for a complete system of sew-

"My children have been treated with Peter Kelly was living with his parents Scott's Emulsion from their earliest years on return home a millionaire. He did Thursday, as mentioned in our despatches, ercise is essential to vigorous health, but with Peter on the vessel bound for Eng-nothing remains standing but the charred land, appeared and told of a violent storm walls. The superintendent's office was at sea, in which several of the passengers, also burned, and all records and private of his millions was verified, part of the The Orillia, Ont. town council has demoney being in Australian banks. He cided to retain the management of the had never married, and had no relatives handsome new opera house in its own living in Australia. The family received hands for a time with the expectation of the interest on the fortune, which was realizing about $1000 a year from it. One party offered to rent it at $500.

Highest of all in Leavening Power.—Latest U.S. Gov't Report

Wiley's ... EMULSION... My Baby

COD - LIVER - OIL.

Gives Best Results. The Best

Purest and Best Materials Preparation used in Manufacture.

Best Value for the Money. in the Market PRICE CIS. Readily taken by Children. No preparation equal to it, For Building up the System. Everywhere

JOHN M. WILEY, Manufacturer

196 Queen Street, Fredericton.

Featherbone Skirt Bone. For Giving

A light, phable, elastic bone made from quills. It is soft and yielding, conforming readily to folds, yet giving proper shape to Skirt or Dress. The only Skirt Bone that may be STYLE and SHAPE To The Celebrated Featherbone LADIES' DRESSES. Corsets are corded with this mater-

For sale by leading. Dry Goods Dealers,

Lactated Food,

MILK POWDER.

Nestles Food, etc.

For Sale

R. T. MACK & CO.

Tinware.

Just Received

4 Cases Tin Pails, from 1 to

With a full and well-assorted stock of wholesale

Tinware.

JAMES S. NEILL.

STAR VENTILATORS.

Just Received :

1 DOZEN STAR VENTILATORS. They are for chimney cars, to cure smokey chimnies and make a perfect draft. The stor eclipses all in practical conseruction and general efficienc.

Thoroughly storm proof, and warranted to give perfect satisfaction or no sale, money refunded.

For sale only by

R. CHESTNUT & SONS.

Tarred Paper.

R. CHETSNUT & SONS.

R. CHESTNUT & SONS.

300 ROLLS Dry Sheathing Paper, 200 Roll Felt, 4 7ons Gennine Elephant White lead in 25, 5 and 100 lb. kegs; 10 barrels Raw Linseed Oil, pure 1 barrel Bleeched Incline, 1 barrel 1 range Shellac. Just received and for sale at rock bottom prices.

Just Received:

Dry and

12 Doz. Creamers,

12 Doz. Strainer Pails.

75 Doz. Flaring Pails,

12 Gross Milk Pans.

12 quarts,

gallons.

PEPTOGENIC

Swiss Condensed

THE TAILOR.

was a living skeleton; the doctor said he was dying of Marasmus and Indigestion. At 13 months he weighed only seven pounds. Nothing strengthened or fattened him. I began using

Scott's Emulsion of Cod-liver

Oil with Hypophosphites, feeding it to him and rubbing it into his body. He began to fatten and is now a beautiful dimpled boy. The Emulsion seemed to May 21,1894. Cave Springs, Ga.

Don't be persuaded to accept a substitute!
Scott & Bowne, Belleville. 50c. and $1.

FINE

-AND-

Latest Cloth for

Suitings,

-AND-

Similar letters from other

Mrs. KENYON WILLIAMS, supply the one thing needful.

mothers.

Guarantees good fit, and first-class

Come in and see my Cloths and hard Storekeepers.

Glassware, Earthenware,

TRY US!

Cow Ties Halter Chains, etc.

50 DOZEN Cow Ties, 20 dozen Halter chains, 2000 feet Trap Chains, 2 cases Mink. Fox and other Traps. For sale wholesale and retail, JAMES S. NEILL.

Just received:

UNS, Rifles, Wads, Powder, Shot, Capa, and Am munition of all kinds. We have a full Stock R. CHESTNUT & SONS

materials in his MAKE UP pan prices. It will pay you to do so.

NEXT BELOW C. P. R. OFFICE, SPECIAL NOTICE

We can give you Right Prices on:] Lamps, Lanterns, Chimneys, Granite Ironware, Etc. Etc.

White Stoneware,

WILLARD KITCHEN & CO.

Guns! Guns!

Patent Carpet Lining. A LOT of patent folded paper Carpet Lining in rolls. It is economical because it lasts longe and saves the carpet.

LANDING_

Clear Back

Pork.

Oatmeal.

Cornmeal.

7

For Sale Low.

A. F. RANDOLPH & SONS. THE OLD SAYING

Throw Physic to the Dogs; Will not apply to the

5 Cases Oil Cans, from 1 to 5

Present Day.

ALONZO STAPLES, Druggist and Apothecary,

----HAS IN STOCK----New, Fresh Drugs

-AND FULL LINES OF-

PATENT MEDICINES.

A CHOICE LINE OF HAVANA AND

DOMESTIC CIGARS. And all requisites found in a First-class Drug Store.

Physician's prescriptions comunded with utmost care at all hours. Opposite Randolph's Flour Store.

THIS SPACE

BELONGS TO

McMurray & Co.

... WATCH IT ...