A MARVELOUS STORY

TOLD IN TWO LETTERS.

FROM THE SON: "My father reads at 10 o'clock every evening. He has been a great sufferer from headache, and the headache letter will tell you what a marvelous cure it is."

Ayer's Sarsaparilla.

has had in his case. I think his blood must have contained the poison for at least ten years; but it did not show, except in the form of a sore throat, until about five years ago.
From a few spots which appeared at that time, it gradually spread so as to cover his entire body.
I am sure you have seen a man so terribly afflicted, and all object of pity, when he begins using your medicine. Now, there are few men of his age who enjoy as good health as he does. My sufferings were great, and my life a burden. I commenced the use of the SARSAPARILLA in April last, and have used it regularly since that time. My condition begins to improve at once. The spots have all disappeared, and I feel perfectly well in every respect—being now able to do a good day's work, although 73 years of age. Many inquiries I tell them, as I have been tried to tell you, I have been cured. I have used it for years. Yours truly, W. M. PHILLIPS.

FROM THE FATHER: "It is both a duty for me to state to you the benefit I have derived from the use of Ayer's Sarsaparilla."

Six months ago I was completely cured with a terrible humor and scurfous nose. The humor came on in a most insupportable manner, and the skin cracked so as to cause the blood to flow in many places whenever the skin was touched. My sufferings were great, and my life a burden. I commenced the use of the SARSAPARILLA in April last, and have used it regularly since that time.

spots have all disappeared, and I feel perfectly

The Callaghan Murder.

Last week's issue contained a full report of the proceedings before the Coroner and before the Stipendiary Magistrate, up to the time of going to press on Wednesday. The inquest was resumed on Wednesday evening, when the following evidence was received—

THOMAS FLYNN, City Marshall, (sworn).—I received information on Wednesday, 27th of May, between noon and 1 o'clock, that Patrick Callaghan was lying dead in his house at Sherwood Cemetery. Under instructions from the Coroner I notified a jury. We proceeded to the Cemetery between 2 and 3 o'clock of the same day. On arriving there I proceeded to the dwelling house of Callaghan and found it occupied by several persons—men and women. I went into the building and found it at most impossible to make a minute search on account of the number of people that were present. I went into the kitchen into the deceased's bedroom and found the body lying on the floor on its face and hands—his head towards the head of the bed, in the north-west corner of the room.
There was no bedclothing on the top of the body when I arrived. Deceased had his clothes on. The left arm was around the leg of a small table—the hand resting on the bottom of a lantern hanging under the table. I was cutting up the body for a couple of hours strings, a small memorandum book, and two or three other papers, and matches, and tobacco and the lower part of a set of false teeth. The deceased had an overcoat on—dark. It was damp as if he had been out in the wet. He had a sleeved vest on; also damp—brown with rustian sleeves, as if he had been out working and had come in out of the rain. He had on dark brown pants—damp—cotton checked shirt, Hider and drawers, woolen stockings and gaiter boots, and his fur cap was lying in the centre of the floor. There were several marks of blood about the bedstead, which I believe to be the marks of bloody hands. There were marks of a bloody hand on the wall on the north of the room. I also noticed blood stains on the inside knob of the front door. I also noticed blood stains on the inner panels of the door. It was damp on the north end of the room reached the ceiling ten feet high, and on the ceiling; also blood stains on the east wall on opposite sides of the bed. After examining premises, I searched for papers and property belonging to deceased, and also for any trace of the murderers. I found the trunk in his bedroom open, and the papers inside all scattered about as if tossed over by some persons. I found nothing in the trunk but a few papers and a bag belonging to the deceased, which I brought in. There were three hat boxes in the room—one contained papers which I brought in with me, and placed before the jury. I went into the kitchen and searched for any papers or property belonging to the deceased, and made them deliver them up to me. In one of the pocket books delivered up to me, I found a note of hand for $38, signed by Swan and Dooling; also a receipt filled up in blank for the appearance of the deceased, payable to Patrick Callaghan, of no value. My search could not be so diligently executed on account of the place being in the hands of the public before I arrived. I was unable to discover any papers or anything else. The lantern was not a dark lantern, it was a large one with three or four flaps, and six or eight balls eyes, and such as used for digging graves after dark. The lantern appeared not to have been used for some time, although there was a candle in it. I am strongly of opinion deceased met his death on Saturday morning which was wet. The watch I did not see on the table. It was handed to me by a lady and had no chain. I believe that the parties holding the watch and books did so for safety and with no improper motive. When they handed them to me they asked me to take care of them. From the appearance of the remains the body would appear to have been dead three to five days. [The Coroner here remarked that the clothes covering the body helped to preserve it in that condition.] The knife found in Callaghan's property. It has been in Court before, and can be identified by the Police Officers as being part of articles which convicted prisoners in Penitentiary. There were two old table knives, a couple of forks, and four or five razors lying on the table, some of which all the other clothing besides clothing on deceased, and made three diligent searches. I went down the well and searched there. My idea is the man had a revolver and that he went to the head of his bed to get it when he got that blow and fell. I believe he received most of the blows after he lay on the floor. His sister told me he had a revolver. The dark mark on the wall might have been sprayed by the murderer. The wooden billet and iron bar, both before the jury, were found in the cellar in the water. The iron bar was sticking up in the mud. The billet was sticking in the mud. There were blood stains on the billet, also hair. They looked to have been thrown down into the cellar.
I found no books of private account.
The memorandum book contained reference to the Cemetery only.

Mr. Hales here stated he would not be certain he did not see him on Friday, but his book shows he was in town on Tuesday. He may have been in it on Friday.
