CHICAGO MAN'S STRUGGLE WITH A CRAZY PHILADELPHIAN.

CHICAGO, March 31.—Withevery ve and muscleat highest ten George Doyle fought with a maniac 250 feet in the air to-day, and only by a bit of cleverstrategy escaped when Robert Gedney and Doyle stepped on to the roof of the Great Northern Hotel to look out over the city. The two had met in the lobby of the hotel, when Gedney, a Philadelphian who has been at a Philadelphian who has been at the Great Northern for a week, informed Doyle he intended going to the Masonic Temple observatory to look at the town. Doyle, who lives at the Great Northern, told the Philadelphian that a good view could be had by going on the roof of the hotel. He proposed accompanying him, and in carrying out the proposition took the last step that came near sending him into eterniiy.

When the two were on the roof

Doyle began pointing out the various buildings that rose on all sides. The grandeur of the whole sides. The grandeur of the whole, seene was too much for the young Philadelphian's mind. He stepped back from the Dearborn street side of the roof, and as he considered the whole thing a joke, laughed most heartly. He threw his arms around Doyle's neck, and took him across the roof in a merry dance. All this astonished the
