A handsome clock displayed in a watchmaker's window bore a card with the words, "Go three hundred days without winding." "That's an interesting clock of yours," said a customer, "but there's one thing I want to know." "What is it?" "How long the clock would go if it were wound up?"

On several occasions last summer Joseph Jefferson had with him as a guide an old colored man to whom had reached dimly, and from afar, the fame of "Rip Van Winkle." One day, when the two were out fishing in a row-boat, he hezarded a few remarks. "Bose, is it a circus you are in?" "Not excretly a circus," said Mr. Jefferson. "Yas, sar. Ye can set, can't ye?" Mr. Jefferson made a modest reply. "Well, sar, I never git to New York, but I'd powerful like to see ye set, sar, and I'd give fifty cents if you'd cut up right now!"

A Sustaining Diet.

These are the enervating days, when, as somebody has said, men drop by mistake as if the Day of Fire had dawned. They are fraught with danger to people whose systems are poorly sustained; and this leads us to say, in the interest of the less robust of our readers, that the full effect of Hood's Sarsaparilla is such as to suggest the propriety of calling this medicine something besides a blood purifier and tonic,—say, a sustaining diet. It makes it much easier to bear the heat, assures refreshing sleep, and will without any doubt avert much sickness at this time of year.

Persecuting the Church in France.

BY THE AUTHOR OF "STAY AND MORLEM."
No. II.

But the Third Republic brushes aside the most important clause of the Concordat, the Charter of 1830, the Loi Falloux of 1850, and the scholar laws of 1886, with the utmost unconcern. "What do we care for legality?" Quite as little as they care for the wishes of the whole nation expressed by innumerable petitions and the vote of the Municipal Councils of the 1500 Communes of France whom the government consulted. One thousand and seventy-five of them voted for the Congregations; about 400 against; the rest abstained. The attitude of the masses in every place where the Congregations were dispersed by the police and regular army leaves not the slightest doubt that, if a referendum had been resorted to, more than two-thirds of the nation would have voted for liberty and the Congregations.

With the astute hypocrisy characterizing him, Waldeck Rousseau professed intense interest in the secular clergy and declared that the Law of 1901 was devised to protect them from the encroachments of the monks. He thought to divide and conquer. Now that seventy-two bishops have petitioned the Chambers on behalf of the Congregations, and the secular clergy have openly and solemnly identified their cause with that of the religious Congregations, this ministerial fiction can no longer be maintained. The Left, or ministerial "block," is clamoring already for the suppression of the secular clergy who, they say, are all "in connivance with the congregation-ists." M. Combes has issued a circular to all bishops, requiring that all churches and chapels "not concordatary," or parochial, be closed, and threatening to close over the parish churches if any member of a religious order be allowed to preach in them. Only four bishops, I am glad to say, have had "the courage to submit," to use the words of a ministerial organ. The language in which the French prelates have expressed their non possumus is worthy of the best traditions of the Church; and when the persecutors shall have completely thrown off the mask, another page will be added to her glorious history.

Jealous no doubt of M. Trouillot's laurels, M. de Pressense, son of a Protestant pastor, has attached his name to a project of law for what is hypocritically called "The Separation of the churches and the State," meaning a project for the complete subjugation of the Catholic Church in order to secure its suppression in France. It is desirable, I think, that the Lodge should do their worst here and now, but it is not improbable that M. Waldeck-Rousseau is coming back soon, and a halt will be called, as before. M. Combes and his employers must see that they have gone far. Civil war on a small scale has been raging in the streets in many points of France, for two or three weeks; and if the French Catholics carried concealed weapons as people do in Kentucky and South Carolina, the streets would have been running blood. As it is, there have been innumerable bruised heads and limbs, and no end of arrests; among others, M. de Don, a deputy, wearing his insignia of office, appeared handcuffed before the police court and was condemned to three days' imprisonment for "manifesting."

A young lady of twenty, Y. Mademoiselle de Morene, was condemned to eight days' imprisonment for having said to a justice of the peace that he acted like a coward, because he had beaten a hasty retreat when he found himself confronted by a few hundred men in the hall of a convent. Here on my boulevard at 4 a. m., two squadrons of cavalry were called upon to aid the police in beating back the crowds who were falling "manifesting" against the expelling of the Franciscans and the closing of a chapel. At Marseilles and other places, the regular cavalry charged the crowds, and barricades had to be erected in the streets. Of course all these grand manifestations of popular feeling are belittled or suppressed by the correspondents of the American papers. In the Evening Post of April 23, a M. O. hon Gasparie, with lofty flattery of impartiality, echoes all the commonplace ministerial clamors against the Congregations, but he has not a word to say about the illegalities of the proceedings of the government from first to last.

The indignant protestations of the foreign colony on the Riviera have suspended for a time the closing of churches on this coast. The ministerials have not even the courage to do evil logically and consistently, with equal injustice to all. Arbitrary tyranny marks all their acts, even the most insignificant. M. Waldeck-Rousseau, in his famous political speech two years ago, declared religious vows contrary to French public law; and in the same breath almost, he introduced the law of 1901 inviting the Congregations to demand authorization. His colleague, M. Brisson, at one of the recent sessions at which fifty-four religious orders were executed in globe-globally declared "that the Republic would never put its signature to an act alienating human liberty." And at that very moment some three or four orders were nesting under the protecting wing of M. Combes. One of these orders, St. John of God, has an excellent establishment at Paris for men in need of surgical operations, similar to the one conducted by the Sisters of St. Augustine at which Madame Walk-Rousseau was recently operated upon. None of these Congregations will be interfered with, no matter how heinous their vows may be. It would be foolish, I repeat, for Catholics to rejoice at the return of M. Waldeck-Rousseau. M. Combes has simply been hired to do an odious job; he will retire gracefully as the former did last year; but the plans of the Lodge will be carried out with unremitting long-drawn, Satanic astuteness. This is the peril I signalized (March 27, 1900) in my first article from France.

Items of Interest.

Very Rev. Dennis Sebuler, heretofore provincial of Thuringia whom the Franciscan Capitulular Fathers have elected as minister general, was born at Sigmaringen on April 22nd 1854. He entered the order at Fulda, in the Franciscan province of Thuringia, on November 19, 1871. In 1875 he was expelled with the other religious. He went to Belgium, where he received ordination as priest. In 1881 he was sent to the United States, where he lived for 12 years, during six of which he was superior of the Franciscan missions. He was recently recalled to Germany and appointed provincial of the house at Fulda.

When Cardinal Langenieux lay at the point of death, says the "London Catholic Times," the emissaries of M. Combes were particularly busy in the interests of their master. During the day, and even during the night police officers approached the residence where the Cardinal lay sick, and anxiously inquired, not for his health, but whether he was yet dead! Receiving no satisfactory replies to their questions, they stationed themselves near the archiepiscopal palace and eagerly scanned the faces of all persons who came out in the hope of being able to gauge by their looks of sorrow the condition of the sick prelate within. Why was this? There can be only one explanation. The government was desirous of knowing at the earliest moment the disease of the venerable Cardinal in order that it might seal up his goods and seize his mensa. The French Ministry will hardly let a Bishop die in peace! All his life long a prelate in that country must walk warily lest he falls into a trap, and when he comes to die, the Government is alert to seal up every stick of furniture in his house! These are some of the objections to State support which make Catholics here thank God they have none of it.

Although the Vatican contains 11,000 rooms it is no longer sufficiently large to furnish adequate accommodations for the Papal court and to lodge all its inmates. On this account Leo XIII is reported to have opened negotiations with the Italian Government for the purchase of the Zooca, or ancient mint.

Mother M. St. Teresa, provincial of the Order of Notre Dame des Missions in New Zealand, died recently, after a protracted illness, at Christchurch. She was a native of France.

Very Rev. Dr. E. R. Dyer, S. S. president of St. Mary's Seminary, Baltimore, and Very Rev. Charles B. Schrantz, S. S., president of St. Charles' College, near Elliott City, sailed for France last week. Dr. Dyer, who is one of the twelve consultants of the Superior general of Sulpician Society, goes to Paris, the headquarters of the society, to consult with the Superior general about the affairs of the society in the United States. Dr. Dyer will present the plans of the new St. Austin's House of Studies at the Catholic University at Washington for the Superior's approval.

Of Father Harty who has been appointed Archbishop of Manila, the "Western Watchman" says: "Father Harty is better known in this city than perhaps any priest in it. He was born in St. Louis and for twenty-five years has labored in the parish over which he is at present presiding. Yet we believe very few people would recognize him on the streets. This is because he has seldom appeared outside his church and parish, and never at those civic and promiscuous gatherings where men are plucked under the sharp fire of distinction. But among the people subject to his ministerial eye he was simply obnoxious. He has spent his priestly life within the confines of his parish and between the house, the church and the confessional. He has been a veritable Cure of Ars in this city."

Very Rev. E. H. Porcile, rector of the Church of Our Lady of Lourdes at Broadway and De Sales Street, Brooklyn, has been summoned to Rome by the superior general of the Fathers of Mercy to help to establish a new mother house of that order in the Eternal City. The new house is to replace the main establishment, which has during the last century been in Paris and which was recently closed by the French Associations Law. Father Porcile is the assistant general of the Fathers of Mercy and the head of the order in this country. He will sail for Rome on July 2.

Our glorious Pope is still able to conduct a great function. This was made clear on Monday, June 22nd, when he held a Consistory, in which he conferred the cardinalitial dignity on seven prelates. We are told that the Sovereign Pontiff's features seemed slightly more clear-cut and his hands trembled perceptibly; but his voice was plainly heard, though it had lost something of its volume. The ceremony was shortened as much as possible and only lasted about 35 minutes.

Cardinal Sotillo was at the same consistory transferred from the titular see of St. Marc in Ara Coele to the diocese of Frascati, near Rome. As Frascati is one of the six suburban sees, to which only cardinal bishops are appointed, this means that Cardinal Sotillo, formerly Delegate Apostolic to the United States, has also been raised from the order of Cardinal priests to that of cardinal bishops, a mark of high favor. Cardinal Serafino Vannutelli has likewise been promoted from the diocese of Frascati to that of Porto and Santa Rufina, which is the second highest in rank of the six suburban sees.—N. W. Bayview.

Pains in the Back

Are symptoms of a weak, torpid or stagnant condition of the kidneys or liver, and are a warning it is extremely hazardous to neglect, so important is a healthy action of these organs. They are commonly attended by loss of energy, lack of courage, and sometimes by gloomy foreboding and despondency.

"I was taken ill with kidney trouble, and became so weak I could scarcely get around. I took medicine without benefit, and finally decided to try Hood's Sarsaparilla. After the first bottle I felt so much better that I continued its use, and six bottles made me a new woman. When my little girl was a baby, she could not keep anything on her stomach, and we gave her Hood's Sarsaparilla which cured her." Mrs. Thomas Lewis, Wallaseburg, Ont.
