Recruiting and Registration.

As is usually the case, matters of much importance were discussed at last night's meeting of the Patriotic Association. We regret that such comment as we are able to make upon them is based upon second hand information: we were not present at the meeting, having received no notification that it was being held. We are pleased to observe that the question of registration was brought up and subjected to much debate. This fact may be productive of some good, though the result of the discussion is a foregone conclusion. Registration will not be attempted here, if only because it will entail too much trouble on the part of the Government and because there are some objections to it. The latter reason is quite sufficient in itself. A few fantastic and imaginary disadvantages urged against daylight saving defeated the adoption here of a commonsense arrangement which has proved of incalculable benefit everywhere that it has been tried. It will be so with registration. The needs of the country, justice to individuals and the example of the rest of the Empire all point to the advisability of some such measure, but none will be adopted.

We agree with the Daily News that to compare the contributions of one country with those of another is unfair and odious, but for a different reason. We invariably treat this matter generally, and the generalization is false. It is convenient to speak of Newfoundland's part, but there is no such thing in this respect, as "Newfoundland." It is merely a collection of Newfoundlanders. The merit of having offered is one that belongs solely and entirely to the individual, though in some senses it may be extended also to others who share in his service. It should not matter what proportion a country has given of its population, except as roughly indicating the number of individuals that have, and the number that have not, gone forth from it. And if it is undeniably and splendidly true that many Newfoundlanders have gone and have done deeds that have rung through the Empire, it is equally and regretfully true that many remain who are in every way fitted to go also. There are only two questions to ask: Is it the duty of these latter to go?

The mere compilation of the list that registration would involve would, we are certain, have an immediate and wide effect. It would precipitate to a decision much hesitation. It would do more: it would enable very many men, who would gladly offer but through force of circumstances cannot, in a small measure to state their case and gain a moral acquittal. We cannot believe that registration would be unacceptable to any except those against whom it would be particularly designed. It is argued that it is unenforceable. Why? A census is not unenforceable, and registration is a far smaller and simpler matter. We are not here cavilling at the conduct or results of the present recruiting methods, which have of late shown a gratifying improvement. We merely state that they should now be supplemented by this obvious duty of the Government. They can be supplemented in other ways. One gentleman last night pointed out with truth that our leaders are doing too little to enlighten and influence the people of the House have indeed done much good work in their districts; others have done nothing. We note, for instance, that the member for Ferryland occupies a responsible position not only in the Government but in the Patriotic Association. We suggest that he leave the compilation of figures for a time to a subordinate and get to work among his electorate, who are disgracefully low in the comparative recruiting lists. If more of this action were taken, it might not be necessary to consider such measures as registration and conscription.

C. of E. Orphanage.

Dear Sir,—I shall be greatly obliged if you will allow me to acknowledge through your columns another contribution to the Church of England Orphanage of $100.00 from "The Pansy League". This handsome donation was presented to me yesterday by the late daughter of His Excellency the Governor, with their indefatigable nurse, Miss Ager. Accompanying them was the now famous Pansy (tastefully attired in a new muslin gown, and a boudoir cap with pink ribbons, in honor of the occasion). This is the fourth contribution of $100.00 for which the Orphanage has had to thank the Pansy League during the last eighteen months, which is a splendid result of its endeavours and does infinite credit to its energetic promoters.

Yours faithfully,
A. N. GOSLING.

Reports of Committees Received—Recruiting, Registration and Home Defence Discussed.

The Patriotic Association met last night. His Excellency the Governor, who was attended by Capt. Riley, M.C., presided over a large attendance. Following the confirmation of the minutes of the previous meeting, the Chairman stated that Sir Joseph Outbridge, who had been called to England to attend the sessions of the Nfld. War Contingent Association, would be replaced on the Patriotic Committee by Mr. J. A. Clift.

His Excellency then read to the meeting a compiled statement, showing the strength of the Regiment on the other side. The figures are:—Recapitulation up to October 31st. At that time many men were in hospital after the brilliant action on October 11-13 at Guedecourt, who have now rejoined the fighting units.

NOTE.—Of these, 2503 have been on active service.

He stated that 2246 had offered themselves for enlistment during last year, of which 60 per cent, or 1250 were accepted and 996 rejected; 253 had again offered themselves and 83 of them had passed the exams. Many were rejected because they were not old enough, but most of them through having bad eyesight; 118 for affected heart and 85 for flat feet.

The tests made were as satisfactory as elsewhere. The volunteers' list is made up as follows:—

St. John's, 30 p.c.; Twillingate, 14% p.c.; Fogo and Bonaville, 9 p.c.; Burgeo, 7% p.c.; Burin and Fortune, 7 p.c.; Harbor Grace, 8 p.c.; Bay de Verde and Carbonear, 4% p.c. and a like proportion from other outposts, but considering the list of Reservists, these figures will be altered materially.

The Nfld. Regiment has already won a C.M.G., a D.S.O., 8 M.C.'s, a Russian Medal, 6 D.C.M.'s and 13 other honours. In selecting the bravest man as the recipient of the $500 donated by G. W. B. Ayre, Esq., the Governor thought he would have to choose from their accomplishments and undying fame won by them on October 12th. He then read extracts from a letter written to him by Rev. Fr. Nangle, October 20, who said it was no empty praise which was bestowed on our soldiers by the commanding officer of that great offensive. It was well merited and deserved. At a dressing station where he was stationed there was not one of "Ours" who came there that did not have a wound, though they suffered less from trench feet than any other regiment. He (Fr. N.) was proud of the N.F.L.D. on his shoulder straps. Other matters of interest were referred to in the rev. gentleman's letter and His Excellency intends to have the letter published. In concluding, special reference was made to the work and promotions of Surgeon Major Macpherson, Lieut. P. Cashin and Lieut. M. J. Murphy by His Excellency.

Mr. J. A. Clift read the report of the Standing Committee dealing with the committee formed to collect records, pointing out that Lieut. L. C. Murphy had been requested to write constantly about campaign life. Data regarding Newfoundlanders in the Navy and in other Regiments than "Ours" will also be sought. A detachment of "Ours" led the Overseas Forces at the Lord Mayor's Show held in London on Nov. 9th and made a splendid showing. This detachment comprised veterans of Gallipoli and the Somme. Thirty of the wounded Nfld. soldiers in hospitals in London were guests of the Mayor at the Mansion House and witnessed the process-tion of the colours and shield to the Regiment by H. R. H. Princess Henry of Battenburg; also that a draft of 300 men would be sent forward shortly.

While discussing the report the Governor intimated to the meeting that Sir Charles Lucas had been appointed to edit a publication of the records of Overseas Regiments, 20 pages will be available for "Ours." His Excellency said he had been given a most interesting diary from a young officer, formerly of "Ours" and intends sending some extracts of it to Sir Charles Lucas. The report of the Standing Committee was then adopted.

The statement of the Finance Committee was read by Hon. M. P. Cashin. Up to Dec. 31st, 1916, the outlay for the 29 months of the War had been $2,285,832.88; the monthly cost of the Regiment was $135,000. Through the generosity of Hon. M. G. Winter, a hospital had been provided for volunteers suffering from measles. The report also referred to the work of the fish and brevis committee, who had forwarded 100 bags of bread and 100 qtls. of fish to the men at Ayre and France and the authorizing of Hon. Sir E. R. Bowring to spend one thousand dollars in England to provide comforts for our soldiers in France in the event of an unforeseen contingency happening. The Fish Fund had a balance of $580.23, which is still at the Bank. To Messrs. C. P. Ayre, D. Baird and A. Macpherson, who formed the Committee, and to Major Montgomerie, who shipped the gifts free of cost, an expression of thanks was included in the report which was adopted.

Mr. E. A. Bowring submitted the report of the Patriotic Fund. The receipts up to December 31st last, were $124,399.91, and disbursements $44,449.46, leaving a balance of $79,948.45. The number of grants issued was 735, 126 of which were Canadian; families assisted 517, of which 96 were on account of Canadian fund, including the Naval Reservists formerly attached to the Regiment. 32 being Canadian. Owing to the increased high cost of living, additional amounts will have to be granted in some cases. This will mean an expenditure of $1,000 a week or roughly $50,000 for the present year, leaving a surplus of about $30,000 at the end of this year. Should the war last till 1918 and another emergency arise a new appeal may have to be made to the public for funds.

Hon. P. T. McGrath produced the report of the Pension Board, pointing out that criticisms made regarding the treatment accorded returned soldiers were the work of irresponsibles. All bona fide applications were dealt with, without delay, he said, but there had been impostors discovered. Much trouble had been experienced in getting facts of the different cases and in some cases it took the committee two years to get the necessary information.

Mr. W. B. Grieve, acting for Mr. F. J. Morris, read the report of the Recruiting Committee. The question coming up of home defence, Sir E. P. Morris stated that the matter was under consideration of a special committee of the Executive, advised by Capt. Abraham and Capt. MacDermott. A discussion of some warmth then ensued. Mr. Piccott was unable to see how the proposed force of 100 men could be kept continuously in the city, when the Regiment needed 150 men a month to be kept at strength. Dr. Fraser considered that more men might be obtained through the agency of moving pictures. The Governor replied that the idea was a good one and that parties had been invited to England with a view of obtaining suitable films. Mr. J. W. Withers in a stirring speech advocated the adoption of the registration system, which had worked so well elsewhere. His Excellency was of opinion that the matter should be handled by the Recruiting Committee.

Mr. Grieve replied to the effect that the Recruiting Committee would then be asked upon that mentioned on the latter committee was concerned only with home defence. Mr. Piccott spoke to the same effect as before, urging the necessity of a body of defence before it was too late. His Excellency stated that the Association had been formed to attend to active service recruiting, while the Government had been entrusted with the idea of home defence. Mr. Grieve suggested that the Recruiting Committee prepare a registration scheme and present it to the Government. Sir Edward Morris considered that Newfoundland was doing her share, and pointed out that many Newfoundlanders had enlisted in Nova Scotia and elsewhere. In this he was supported by Major Cartwright and Mr. P. T. McGrath. The latter did not think registration advisable, because it would be unenforceable. He thought steps should be taken to see what was required for home defence purposes, and that returned and rejected men should be used, if possible, and not a number of men with no military training whatever. Rev. Dr. Curtis thought that our leaders could do more to stimulate recruiting than had been done. As a result of the discussion a more active recruiting campaign was decided upon, and the Committee was

Mr. Jas. Ayre, Rev. Dr. Jones and Paymaster Willis of H.M.S. Briton, were nominated and enrolled as members of the Association. The meeting adjourned at 11 p.m. until next Friday night.

The War Week by Week

(By OBSERVER.)

The past week has witnessed a turn in the war distinctly to the advantage of the Allies. There have been eight indications for some time of the slowing up of the Teutonic advance in Roumania, and it has now been accompanied by positive gains by the Allies on other fronts which had before been marked by inactivity. Though it was announced that the Russians had been driven from their Sereth position, there is no evidence that they have been driven far. Galatz is still unconquered, the Bulgarians are held in Dobruja and along the line westward we hear of successful counter attacks by both Russians and Roumanians. It begins to look as if the attack had indeed been finally halted in Roumania, and the Russians would not need to fall back upon the Pruth.

It has been claimed that the Russian offensive at Riga, which a year ago would have caused Germany no concern, caused a serious disorganization of her lines, which have everywhere been depleted to the utmost possible in order to provide men for the Roumanian campaign. If it called reinforcements to that region, we can understand the check that would be at once administered to the offensive in Roumania. It is another illustration of Germany's growing shortage of men and the interdependence of fronts far separated from one another. The increasing severity of the weather is also ascribed as a cause, while a third is likely to be found in the reorganization of the badly shaken Roumanian army. For some time they have been sent behind the Russian lines and left the fighting to their Ally; we now hear them more and more often mentioned in the messages.

Another improvement, of much importance, is to be seen in the Greek situation. A sensational report has stated Von Falkenhayn to be in Greece, somewhere near Larissa, but although coming from semi-official sources has not been lately referred to. Whether it be true or not, and whatever it may mean, Greece is still yielding to pressure and should soon be altogether amenable. The troops stationed in Thessaly are being moved southward, the Venizelist prisoners released, and control of the railways handed over to the Allies. There has been no serious fighting of late on this front, but there is every indication that the Entente Powers intend greatly to reinforce their troops there and to make it the scene of a great effort in the spring.

Little further has come in concerning the British operations in Mesopotamia and Palestine, but the omission has been supplied by news of successes in France considerably larger than any announced since the winter came on in earnest. At a point on the Ancre, apparently between Beaucourt and Grandecourt, the British have defeated the weather and captured an important height. The message that it was of great value to them, and the statement seems borne out by a subsequent extension of their gains. This undoubtedly improves our position, but nothing of real effect will be achieved here until Miraumont is taken. North of Arras, near Lens, a number of very successful "raids," in effect really minor offensives, have been carried out, in which the Canadians seem to have played a prominent part. Doubtless these ventures are undertaken to accompany the intense bombardment that proceeds continuously, and to remind the Germans that even now they need to keep their lines well manned over large areas. They are thus by no means such trifling events as they may seem and have a great positive value. We shall hear of no considerable offensives undertaken, however, until the weather grows more favourable. From the middle of March onwards we may look for events such as the world has never before witnessed. They are in preparation now behind the lines which for the time being are disturbed only by desultory actions of this sort.

CANADA'S WIDER POLITICS.

OTTAWA, To-day.
World politics will shortly be the subject of discussion in the Canadian Commons on the initiative of Hon. W. Pugsley, who has placed on the order paper a question as to whether the Government had been informed that Russia with the consent of the Allies is to be given Constantinople and the Dardanelles as one of the terms of peace. Pugsley desires to know whether the Canadian Government was consulted regarding such agreement and whether it is to be consulted regarding peace terms.

SAY RAIDER IS IN GULF OF MEXICO.

MEXICO, CITY, To-day.
Insistent rumours came from Vera Cruz that the German commerce raider is now in the Gulf of Mexico. It is added that the raider will make an effort to cut off oil ships enroute from the Tampico fields for England. There is no confirmation of the rumours here.

AFTER THE RAIDER.

BUENOS AIRES, To-day.
Fifteen cruisers and armed vessels are now searching the southern Atlantic for the German raider, according to reports received here. Four more British cruisers left Port Stanley, in the Falkland Islands, according to newspapers here to aid in the search. The Uruguayan Government has despatched a warship to guard the Uruguayan coast against possible neutrality violations.

BERLIN ACCOUNT OF THE RAIDER.

BERLIN, To-day.
The British steamer Yarrowdale was brought into harbour on December 31st as a prize by a prize crew of sixteen men, says an official issued to-night. She carried 469 prisoners, the crews of steamers captured by a German auxiliary cruiser in the Atlantic Ocean. The prisoners of the Yarrowdale were from one Norwegian and seven British vessels. The cargoes captured on the vessels, the statement adds, consisted principally of war material for the Entente Allies and foodstuffs. Three of the vessels sunk were armed British merchantmen. The bringing in of the Yarrowdale, the statement continues, had been kept secret for military reasons, but in view of the statement of the British Admiralty on January 17th it was decided to make the news public. The Yarrowdale was last reported in shipping registers as having sailed from New York on December 4th, arriving at Havre. Prior to January 3rd the steamer had been mentioned in reports from the British Admiralty as among the overdue vessels captured by the German raider in the South Atlantic Ocean, and as having been sent away by the raider with four hundred men of the crews of sunken ships who were landed. Unofficial despatches from Rio Janeiro on Thursday night said reports had been received there that the Yarrowdale arrived on January 16th at Sao Vincent (St. Vincent) Cape Verde Islands, a Portuguese possession off the West African coast.

HOW THE CORNWALLIS WAS SUNK.

BERLIN, To-day.
An official issued to-day says: One of our submarines, commanded by Capt. Hartwig, on the 14th of January sixty sea miles S. E. of Malta sank the British battleship Cornwallis, which was covered by light craft. The British Admiralty on January 11 announced the sinking of H. M. S. Cornwallis by a submarine on January 9th in the Mediterranean.

THE GLASGOW AT RIO.

RIO JANEIRO, To-day.
The British Cruiser Glasgow cast anchor to-day at Pernambuco after a long search on the northern coast of Brazil for the German raider. The Cruiser will put to sea immediately to continue the search.

WAR BUDGET.

LONDON, To-day.
Artillery bombardments and patrol engagements appear to be occupying the armies entrenched on the war fronts of Europe. Current official communique from the Capitals of the warring nations mention no hard fighting except on the western front of Moldavia. On the western front there have been several small patrol engagements along the British portion of the line. On the remainder of the front the opposing artillery wings continue to hammer the hostile trenches. Near Zherow, in Galicia, an Austro-German raid was frustrated by the Russians who drove the invaders and after they had entered some Oppachia-Zella south of Gorizia on the Carso failed under Italian artillery fire. Entente warships continue their search for the German raider in the Atlantic. No further losses due to the raider are reported.

Conspicuous Bravery.

Honored Though Not Decorated.
News reached the city a few days ago that "Jack" McNeil, a South African veteran, had been promoted from Lance Corporal of Regiment 24, Royal Fusiliers, to Lieutenant. It has since transpired that he not only got promotion but was mentioned in dispatches and was highly honored by his superior officers for conspicuous gallantry performed by him on the battlefield. Corroboration of this was received by his mother yesterday in a letter from "Jack", who, known to be unassuming, never mentioned what he did but merely attached to his letter a note from the officer commanding his division. The note states that he had been promoted for conspicuous bravery on the field on November 13th and 16th, and though there was no decoration to follow, still the fact that he distinguished himself was recognized and appreciated by his name being mentioned in dispatches.

His Request Granted.

Richard Gray, a well-known character, called at the police station last night and solicited imprisonment for the winter. He is a big burly fellow, about 35 years of age, but holds no love for law. Lateness has got the better of him and he is a worthless individual. He appeared before Mr. Hutchings, J.P., this morning charged with being a loose and disorderly person and was accommodated with two months.

Reids' Boats.

The Argyle left St. Lawrence at 9 a.m. to-day, outward.
The Glencoe left St. John's yesterday afternoon and is due at Placentia to-day.
The Kyle left Port aux Basques at 10.55 p.m. yesterday.
The Meigle left Hr. Breton at 7 p.m. yesterday, coming east.
The Sagone reached Port aux Basques this morning.

Landmark Dead.

After a protracted illness, the death occurred last evening of a well-known and popular landmark in St. John's East in the person of Matthew Whelan. When a young man he was looked upon as a man of unlimited strength, as he had extraordinary lifting powers. For many years he was keeper of Harvey's boat houses by the Lakeside, and Rogate enthusiasts can well remember "Mat". He is survived by a widow, two sons and two daughters.
