PLAGIARISED AND OTHERWISE.

TO-NIGHT'S GAME.

Both clubs are in readiness for the big clash to-night when the Cubs will once more tackle the Lions in a desperate effort to stop their onward rush for the 1919 Pennant and incidentally for that valued little piece of silverware now in the Cubs' possession. The game will start promptly at 6.30.

DIPPY DOPES.

If the Cubs were "Nuts" to the Red Lions and they got "cocky" could there be a dead "heath"? There might, but 'twould give them an awful "payne" every time they'd "st." Next!

A FAN asks what's the difference between Joe Murphy, and Brazie. About one foot and a quintal.

The Cubs won a game last June. Ah! They were the good old days.

The two baseball games to-morrow will be only five innings each. Quite enough as some games go.

'Sh! This is a deep dark secret! Bill Carew has been hard at it the past six weeks and is pitching nigh perfect ball. He is not inclined to play League ball, however, but will likely come to light in the Inter-Town Series next month.

This is an old one but it's always good: There is an outfielder called "SI," possessed of an all-seeing eye. When a long fly is swat it's sure to be caught by Jenkins—so don't hit 'em high.

THE JARGON OF THE DIAMOND. The diamond has a language all its own; If a player makes an error, it's a "bone." If he attempts the "squeeze" And strikes out, it's a "breeze." A play at which the fans belch forth a groan.

A safe drive to the field is called a "bingle." If good for one base only it's a "single." If the hurler throws a "cripple" And the batter clouts a "triple," The swat will put the nerves of fans a-tingle.

When a runner's left on base, 'tis said he "died." If he goes out on a high fly, he has "skied." A one-hand stops a "stab." The pitcher's mound, the "slab." Successful plays are certainly "in-side."

When a player's making good his work is "grand." But let him boot just one and then he's "panned." If he comes up in a "pinch" And he "whiffs"—well, it's a cinch The fickle fans will yell,—"He should be canned."

To-day's Messages.

TRANSCONTINENTAL AIR TRIP.

LONDON, July 14. R-33, sister ship of British dirigible R-34, which has just completed a round trip across the Atlantic, will start on a trip to India within the next week. The dirigible will visit France, Switzerland, Italy and Egypt, and it is expected that the voyage will take from 15 to 20 days.

PERSHING IN LONDON.

LONDON, July 15. General Pershing, Commander of the American forces in France, arrived here with his staff this forenoon to take part in the peace celebration. He was met at Dover by Gen. Sir Henry Horne and a guard of honor. Arriving at Victoria Station, General Pershing was welcomed by Col. Winston Spencer Churchill, Secretary of State for War, and officers representing Field Marshal Haig and Sir Henry Wilson of the Imperial staff.

REFUSED MEN'S DEMANDS.

NEW YORK, July 15. The demands of the striking marine workers, at this and other Atlantic ports, for union recognition to-day continued to be the principal stumbling block in the way of a settlement of the walk out which yesterday at noon was operated by the U. S. Shipping Board. The spread of the strike to Government controlled boats resulted from a refusal of the Shipping Board of officials to grant the seamen's demand for three shifts of eight hours each at sea, and preference to union members. Further efforts to end the strike were resumed here to-day, but the union leader predicted that unless the men's demands were met in full, there was little chance of an agreement.

Three Sales.

Three Sales went sale-ing out into the West; Out into the West as the sun rose high. Each thought of the bargain that she would love best, And wondered what marvels her money would buy. For men must work, and women must spend, The money is scarce, and no one will lend. And the Bargain Sales be raging.

Three wives sat up in their bedroom dim. And they turned up the gas as the sun sat down. They looked at fat parcels, and purses so slim; And happily planned their next journey to town. For men must work, and women must spend, The money is sudden, and credit will end. And the Bargain Sales be raging.

Three husbands still gaze on the silks and lace. In the morning gray, when all hope has flown; But the women are sleeping and dreaming in peace Of a land where the sale-bills are never torn down. For men must work, and women must spend, And the sooner 'tis over, the sooner the end. And goodbye to the sales and their raging. —Blighty, (London.)

"Give Them Sand."

Editor Evening Telegram.
Dear Sir,—
"Now verily zephyrs waft once more their bounteous fragrance o'er our land. Luxuriant verdure buds galore Where boreal blasts have swept before; Transmuted, as by magic wand, Is now, my dear old Newfoundland. And every atom in Creation Rejoices at this transformation."

So much for my contribution to the annual spring-poetry. Now a few words about our little boys and girls who are likewise rejoicing at the advent of spring weather. Our parks are fast becoming a thing of beauty, a joy for ever. How nice would it be for our little youngsters if the park authorities would furnish a few loads of nice, clean sand and deposit it in some vacant spot far away from the flower beds, where the little ones could build sand castles and make pies after the occasional rain has made the sand a little adhesive. I have played myself at the game many years ago and have seen other children enjoying the same in some parks in other parts of the world. I have often wondered that a similar idea has not been adopted in this country. I am prepared to say that most of us who had in any way access to a pile of sand in their younger days considered it the best fun out. It would also save the already overtaxed caretaker many anxious moments, for imagine his consternation when he sees from a distance some little tots tumbling towards his beautiful flower-beds. Some of the parents of the little ones will be in constant attendance and see that no horse-play will be indulged in. Come on City Fathers, make a start; especially Bowring Park will be keener remembered by the now-growing generation when looking back in after years, perhaps far away from home, at the happy hours they spent building sand castles in Bowring Park. Sincerely Yours, —E.K.

Profitable Purchase.

40,000,000 YARDS OF LINEN.

London, July 9.—Leonard J. Martin, a young English business man, who deals in agricultural machinery, has bought for $20,000,000 from the British government about forty million yards of linen, which was intended for making airplanes. He knew nothing about linen, but bought it for speculation.

Martin is 37 years old, and began his career, he says, with a capital of about $500. "I bought over the heads of everybody else," he said in discussing the big deal, "simply by offering a higher price than anybody else would pay." The stock of material Martin now controls represents three years' normal supply. He is reckoning on a profit of about $5,000,000. Of that amount, $2,000,000 would go to the British Treasury in excess profits, and another $1,250,000 in super tax. The linen has been for sale by the Government since January, under an offer to sell to the general public in eighty yard lengths, and one hundred yard bales, but only $1,000 worth of it had been purchased.

"Belfast people," said Martin, "imagined they had the stuff between their two fingers. A barge of this linen was actually manufactured after the armistice, because the Belfast mill owners refused to allow their contracts to be cancelled."

They went on making linen in millions of yards at 40 to 50 cents a yard. Then they offered the government 7 cents a yard to take it back. Their price later went up to about 25 cents a yard, and it was still hoped, in view of the monopoly, to sell it to the public at three shillings. They could have re-equipped all the mills in Ulster out of the profits. I have got the linen at about double the final Belfast offer."

"Will Protect Kaiser."

The report that the peace terms were to be signed gave rise to patriotic demonstrations throughout Germany. In Berlin and Munich and other large German towns processions were formed, which passed along the principal streets singing old war and imperial songs, and loudly cheering the old generals. All the German newspapers are greatly excited, and all express the hope for revenge. The question of the bringing to trial of the ex-Kaiser, as provided for in the terms of the treaty, has caused the greatest possible consternation, and the German Officers' Association has urged the Dutch Government by telegraph not to deliver up the ex-Emperor. They say they represent millions of Germans. "We can protect the Kaiser with our bodies, but we rely on the generosity of the Dutch people," says the telegram. The "Kreuzzeitung" publishes an appeal to officers of the old 1914 Army to send a letter to President Ebert stating that they will place themselves at the disposal of the Allied court of justice to receive sentence should the Kaiser be sentenced. Every single officer declares that he will go to Holland to protect the Kaiser. "Everybody," says the appeal, "will come, and when we arrive at the frontier we shall find a way across."

London Romance.

(From the London Daily Express.) Engagement breaking is in season. "The marriage arranged between Captain X and Miss Y will not now take place." That cold print end to romance can be read any day now in the society columns of the papers, it is becoming a habit.

Experts who study these matters declare that the percentage of broken engagements has never been so high, and they set down several reasons. The main one is: "The great khaki illusion. (a) The woman:—'You would not believe how different he looked in his civilian suit, my dear. I simply couldn't do it.' (b) The man:—'She was awfully charming as a driver in the Women's Legion, but when I saw her in one of the new evening gowns—well, it just couldn't happen.' The house famine is given as another cause. Two young people who believe themselves to be twin souls go out and try to find a future home. It is physically impossible for any person's temper to stand the strain of present-day house-hunting. They quarrel, and there is another broken romance.
