Ty Cobb Bats .401 and New Record For Modern Ball.

TY COBB batted .401 this season, the third season in his spectacular career when he has batted in the .400 division. By hitting .401 this year Cobb establishes a new record for modern baseball.

Cobb has played eighteen seasons of major league baseball. In 1911 he made the best batting mark of his career, hitting for an average of .420. The following season he again batted better than .400, his average being .410 for the season. The following year, in 1913, his string of .400 averages was broken. He batted .390 that season, and has ever since tried to reach .400 again and tie the old record made by Jesse Burkett.

Burkett batted .400 or better in 1895, 1896 and 1899. That record stood until this year.

Several differences existed between the official and unofficial scores during last season, and Cobb's actual number of hits was a matter of doubt until the official averages had been carefully checked and rechecked.

EDMONTON ELKS GET INTO FINALS

EDMONTON, Nov. 6. — Edmonton Elks batted their way into the finals for the Western Canada rugby championship this afternoon, when, after a desperate struggle filled with thrills for the 2,500 spectators, they defeated the Regina team by 13 to 8.

The condition of the playing field, covered with a thick coat of slippery and slimy mud, prevented high-class rugby.

Throughout the game the Edmonton team confined its efforts to straight rugby, depending on line plunging and most entirely for its gains. Fifteen times the Elks made gains, for a total of 240 yards.
