"TRAGEDY OF RECIPROCITY"

M. M. O. Hammond, a Canadian journalist, who was very closely in touch with the reciprocity negotiations at Washington and the subsequent campaign in Canada, sums up as follows an article, entitled "The Tragedy of Reciprocity" which appears in the October Canadian Magazine:

The appeal to "higher national considerations" made everywhere by Mr. Borden was direct, and in Ontario it fell on fertile soil, watered by tears and years of silent apprehension of the United States borne of past affronts. It came when Canada was prosperous and people were averse to entering on experiments. "Let well enough alone" was an insidious if an unambitious cry. In a time of financial distress reciprocity as now offered would have appealed almost irresistibly to the Province of Ontario, which has overwhelmed it. Conservatives were stampeded by the fear of annexation; Liberals by the feeling that fiscal experiments were unwise and unnecessary. New arrivals from Great Britain, with as yet no party affiliations, thought Imperial relationships were threatened.

The Laurier Government that serenely dissolved the House on July 29th with a majority of forty-three behind them came back on September 21st with eight Ministers defeated, the country swept by Mr. R. L. Borden with a following that could scarcely believe their own good fortune, and a Conservative majority of almost fifty.

There are many reasons for saying the people of Canada acted hastily and ill-advisedly in refusing to facilitate an inevitably expanding trade now reaching over a million dollars a day, and that they made an economic error in defeating reciprocity, but no one can say they did not act in a manner peculiar to human nature.

The Men's Missionary Congress to be held in St. John, Nov. 20th, to 22nd, serves to direct the attention anew to what someone has termed "the biggest thing in the world" certainly the greatest factor in recent years in the spiritual awakening of the manhood of our churches—the Laymen's Missionary Movement.

Whatever attitude one may profess towards missions in general, the position of the Men's Missionary Movement is so far as to challenge the most kindly consideration of every right-thinking man. The purposes of the movement, to investigate the missionary needs of the church at home and abroad and then to inspire the manhood of the church adequately to support the great enterprise, are broadening and uplifting.

WEDDING BELLS

CRAWFORD—MUNRO

There took place at noon on Nov. 1st, at 3 Jubilee road, a wedding, which interested a wide circle, not, indeed, restricted to the city of Halifax, or the province of Nova Scotia,—that of Dr. Blanche Munro, daughter of the Rev. J. R. Munro, now of Vancouver, but formerly minister in charge of the Presbyterian church at Antigonish, and the Rev. J. A. Crawford, of Finlay, Scotland, but a graduate of the Presbyterian College, Pine Hill, and at one time in charge of the Presbyterian church at River John, in the hearts of whose people he yet holds a large place.

Dr. Munro is a graduate of Dalhousie University, and a most valued member of its Alumnae Society, five years residence in India, where she was engaged in work as a medical missionary, not having in the least degree affected her interest in university life. Her address bearing upon missionary work in India at the last annual meeting of the Alumnae, will be recalled by all who were present as a most interesting detail of the program. If she is loyal to Dalhousie, it may be on the other hand, she said that Dalhousie is both proud and fond of her.

The marriage ceremony was performed by the grandfather of the bride, Rev. H. B. MacKay, who was assisted by her uncle, Rev. Christopher Munro.

The drawing room bore effective decorative touches in honor of the ceremony—simple and for that reason beautiful.

Miss Munro, looking very lovely in a gown of white satin, and carrying a bouquet of white roses, was attended by her sister, Miss Alberta Munro, who wore a gown of cream crepe de chene and carried a bouquet of pink roses.

Rev. J. M. McLeod, (cousin of the groom) of New Mills, N. B., attended as best man.

Mr. and Mrs. Crawford left by the Maritime Express, proposing to visit Montreal and Toronto before sailing for Scotland. The best wishes of a host of friends will follow them across the Atlantic to the Scottish manse.

The bride's going-away gown was of dark green cloth.

The collection of wedding gifts was large, beautiful and valuable. It included a silver tea service from the congregation of St. George's Presbyterian church, River John, the groom's old charge, and a cabinet of silver from the congregation of Chalmers church, Coburg road.

The groom's gift to the bride was a pearl and peridot brooch, and to the bridesmaid, a pearl pendant.

ALEXANDRA HENDERSON

There passed away suddenly and peacefully, on the morning of the 2nd inst a young woman, well known to many travellers and tourists, Miss Alexandra Henderson only daughter of Mrs Henderson of Bay Shore House Charlott, N. B.

Her bright and cheerful spirit, her pleasing manner and winsome kindness endeared her to all her acquaintances. She was a member of the Presbyterian Church, Charlott, and a general favorite in the community. Her death at the early age of thirty is mourned by a large circle of friends. Much sympathy is felt for her mother her brother and sister-in-law in their sad bereavement.

Are Farm Lands Too Cheap?

Land worth $10 an acre in Nova Scotia twenty years ago, is now selling at $1000. The story of this and also of apple successes in Ontario is told in the November issue of Farmer's Magazine. It is also well illustrated and is sure to interest every member of the farm home. Fourteen pages are devoted to half-tone cuts of women's styles and dresses. Send for a sample copy to the MacLean Publishing Co., 143-149 University Ave., Toronto, Ont.
