JOHN RIDOUT,
Son of Thos. Ridout, Surveyor-General, His filial affection, engaging manners and nobleness of mind gave early promise of future excellence. This promise he galantly fulfilled by his brave, active and enterprising conduct which gained the praise of his superiors while serving as midshipman in the Provincial Navy during the late war. At the return of peace he commenced with ardor the study of the law and with the fairest prospects, but a blight came and he was consigned to an early grave on the 12th day of July, 137, aged 18, deeply lamented by all who knew him.

Beside the grave of the young midshipman is the tomb of his father. His grave

The register is worked by a set of keys that ring a bell, at the same time showing in plain figures, on a tablet, to the purchaser, the amount of the purchase, which amount is registered on the wheels inside of the register, and only accessible to the proprietor, who has the key. Clerks are compelled to be careful. A careless clerk is as bad as a dishonest one. Overcharge can not be given with the register. If a clerk makes a sale of 50c, and $1 is handed to him, he first has 50c, impressed on his mind; second he presses the 50c, key, and third the 50c appears on the indicator. Thus he is trebly impressed, he is trebly impressed. Merchants resort to every way to get money, but never take any particular care of it after they have it.
