

Canada has endeavoured to develop a dialogue with Japan on international issues (i.e., East-West, NATO, disarmament). With an aim to making the consideration of each other's views a more automatic part of policy formulation, officials from the Department of External Affairs meet once a year with their Japanese counterparts in the Policy Planning Consultations to exchange opinions.

Growing public appreciation of Canada's Pacific dimension has been expressed by the creation of the Asia Pacific Foundation.