

been made, to render the book more suitable for use in high schools and academies.

My thanks are due to various members of the German Department at the University of Wisconsin, but especially to Dr. Ernst Feise and Professor Eduard Prokosch, whose expert advice assisted greatly in the preparation of the notes.

MADISON, WIS., January, 1911.

NOTE.—In preparing the seventh edition of my little book, I have been glad to take advantage of the corrections and suggestions offered by its users. I have also added some sets of German questions, to meet the needs of teachers who wish to use the text as a basis for oral work in German.
