

BY THE SAME AUTHOR.

THE PRIEST.

Price 6/- . Popular Edition, 1/- net.

"'The Priest' is something more than a novel. It is an eloquent sermon on the evils which are likely to attend the panderings of English Ritualists to the Church of Rome. . . . Mr. Begbie writes with conviction and knowledge. This is no hastily penned indictment; it is the well-considered exposition of a movement which the writer believes is to-day sapping the Anglican Church's power as an evangelical force. . . . Apart altogether from the motive underlying it, the story is one of the best and most interesting that has come from this versatile author."—The Scotsman.

THE VIGIL.

Price 6/- . Popular Edition, 6d.

"Mr. Harold Begbie's novel, 'The Vigil,' is a very remarkable book. It is a theological novel, and I am inclined to call it the very best of its kind in the language. It shows a far deeper and truer insight into the theological controversy of the time than, for example, 'Robert Elsmere.' Mr. Begbie is too good a novelist to permit the interest of his story to be strangled in theological discussions and details, but he must not be surprised if those who are interested in the current discussions are even more absorbed in his masterly presentation of a true and stable Christianity than in this narrative, bright and graphic as it is."

A Man of Kent in "The British Weekly."

TABLES OF STONE.

Price 6/-

"'Tables of Stone' is a novel of serious intention. Readers of the Daily Chronicle do not need to be introduced to Mr. Begbie. They have had many opportunities of studying his brilliant style and wondering at his amazing eloquence. The novel has all his characteristics writ large. He touches great problems with light-hearted confidence, and points his moral or adorns his tale with a flood of happy phrases. . . . The book is earnest, ambitious, eloquent . . . is decidedly worth reading."

Daily Chronicle.

LONDON: HODDER & STOUGHTON.