Rome Learns With Joy Of Canada's Devotion

MONTREAL, Sept. 6 .- (Special.) -The formal opening of the 21st International Eucharistic Congress, and the first ever held in the new world, took place here this evening at 8 o'clock in St. James' Cathedral, amid extraor-

St. James' Cathedral, amid extraordinary pomp and display, probably never before seen in any Catholic centre of this continent.

Archbishop Bruchesi made many sacrifices to obtain this signal honor for the Canadian church and for his diocese, but his triumph this evening was sufficiently magnificent to repay this brilliant prelate and probably prince of the church for all he has done done.

As hinted in the despatch of last evening, the legate in his opening address declared that in future these congresses would probably alternate between the old and new world.

Loyalty to the King.

Another important feature was the elegram to the King, and his majesty's reply, as follows:
"To His Majesty King George V.,
"London:

"The Catholics of the empire, bishops, priests and laity present at the International Eucharistic Congress in Montreal, pray your Congress in Montreal, pray your majesty to accept this respectful homage of unswerving loyalty, and their expression of profound gratitude for the modification in the royal declaration, and with other visiting members of the congress, halling from all parts of the world. wish your majesty and the royal family continued happiness and prosperity. "(Signed) Vincenzo Vannutelli,

From the Holy Father.

In answer to a telegram to the Holy Father, the cardinal secretary of state

sent the following: "Cardinal Vincenzo Vannutelli, "Montreal, Canada:
"The Holy Father, profoundly touched by such noble sentiments, expressed by countless visitors to congress from the countries of the old and new world, of 120 bishops and a large number of priests, surrounding your eminence to offer sublime, universal homage of faith and love to Jesus and the sucharist at this first International Eucharistic Congress held on the continent of America, learns with lively joy and emotion of the splenmanifestation of admirable piety, union and devotion of the government, city and Canadian people with the religious authorities united most cordially with the congressists during these touching lemnities, and praying the God of the Eucharist to shower the abundance of His favor upon the people and their labors, he sends with effusion his apostolic benedic-

It was a magnificent sight at about 8 o'clock, when a hundred bishops and archbishops, headed by Cardinal Van-nuttelli, the Pontifical legate, and Car-dinal Laws dinal Logue, beautifully robed in scarlet and gold, left the grand salon of the archbishop's palace, and, coming out to Palace-street, entered the Ca-thedral from Dorchester-street and proceeded to their respective places in front of the altar railing.

The Papal Message. The great cathedral was packed to the doors, and there would have been many thousands more had the vast edifice been large enough to contain The legate first delivered his message to the congress, supplementing the same by reading the papal message, which had just arrived from the Vatican, in the following terms:

"Consequently, having learned that a eucharistic congress was to be held at Montreal, in Canada, and being desirous of enhancing the dignity, as also of meeting the wishes of our well-beloved sons, the Archbishop of Montreal, who had labored with exceptional zeal to assure its solemnity and splendor in his metropolitan city, and the Bishop of Namur, who has long had charge of this species of congresses, we have de-

A Word For Protestantism.

Perhaps it is about time that somebody put in a word for Protestantism and the ideas with regard to education, secular or otherwise, entertained by Protestants. It is all very well to slug a national system of education as "godless" and to say that Protestantism is a "soul-less" religion, and that "character" is developed under one faith alone; but to our mind Protestantism still stands under one faith alone; but to our mind Protestantism still stands for the regeneration of the world by religion, by piety, by force of character and by education. The soul, we trust, is universal of all mankind, nothwithstanding the dialectics of any one theology.

The Reformation was a great fact. Protestant England, Protestant Scotland, and Protestant United States are the greatest beacon lights in the progress of this world that we know and live in, not to mention what Germany and Switzerland are doing and the Huguenots of France did in their time.

People on this continent are alive to the fact that there must have been some reason for France losing her foothold in North

People on this continent are alive to the fact that there must have been some reason for France losing her foothold in North America, some reason for Spain losing her last foothold only a few years ago in Cuba, and there must be some reason for Spain, the most Catholic country in the world to-day, seeking at this very moment to establish freedom of religion and to bring her people with the influence of modern political progress. Italy is undergoing a marvelous re-birth. Is it that which makes her an ungrateful child. Modernity is not a crime or are we all criminals. grateful child. Modernity is not a crime or are we all criminals. Roman Catholicism is at least as much on the rack of trial as is Protestantism; and he is a venturesome spirit who has stones to throw at Protestant faith or Protestant education or Protestant ideas of civil government, or, even against secular training.

Our Catholic fellow-citizens are entitled to the fullest freedom egard to their religion and their educational system, to hold whatsoever views it pleases them to hold, and to criticise, if they see fit, other faiths and dogmas; but we imagine that there is not one of them that does not thank God he happens to be a Roman Catholic in a Protestant country; because Protestantism's one great glory is that it established religious freedom, liberty of conscience and toleration of all creeds and blazed a way for public education. These are still great words and we repeat them: religious liberty, freedom of conscience, toleration of all creeds,

In speaking of human character and the making of character is there anything on the records that equals in strength and beauty, in force and honesty, in purposefulness and, above all, in devotion, to the teachings of Christ and devotion to the cause of humanity-to equal that exemplified by the many great lives and by the still many more humble lights of Protestantism?

Protestant character is a dominating force in the best side of world to-day and we know of no greater tribute in this direction than that paid by Cardinal Vannutelli at Montreal on Sunday when he expressed his appreciation of the liberty which the British Empire allowed to all religions. Has secular education no defence? We think it has if it needs it. It is the secular standards of education and teaching that the clerical educationist sets himself to attain. The separate schools in this country are nothing if not imitative of the public schools. Many a Catholic parent sighs for the education of his family after the manner of his neighbors.

There are a good many people who regret the lack of influence or apparent lack of influence of Protestantism as far as the public affairs of this country are concerned. In other words, the Methodists, the Presbyterians, and the Anglicans have ceased to be Protestants in regard to our politics and as such they are for the time being without any great influence in the affairs of Canada. They have been very much of a cipher for some

Our own Catholic citizens for reasons that are perfectly justifiable to them, have seen fit to maintain more or less of a solidarity in regard to public affairs. We have no fault to find with them in that respect, however more or less true or untrue the statement may be; but we are rather glad to know that Protestants are still broad enough, are becoming daily broader in their views, and thereby keep clear of entangling politics with religious prejudice

And if any Roman Catholic clerics assert the supremacy of the church over the state, of they seek to secure some kind of state recognition of their claim either by military honor or obeisance from public men or such, they commit an error and do a thing ungrateful in a country and under a political system to both of which they owe much.

In the meantime it is not out of place to put in a word for Protestantism, for the great work it has done for education, and what it has done for freedom of conscience, for liberty of religion, for toleration of creeds and for the progress of the world. man need be ashamed to take off his hat to these principles especially at a time when, if there is no assault openly, they are, as we think, being attacked unnecessarily, without advantage to anyone that we can see. Such attacks rebound.

With one of the largest lecture rooms in the Technical School crowded to the doors last evening, Miss The-ora Carter addressed the Canadian Business Women's Club on the good ehcer work in which she is so deeply interested. EMBALMERS CONVENE Consider Proposed Act to Be Submitted to Legislature.

The 27th annual convention of the Association of Canadian Embalmers opened in the anatomical building o Toronto University yesterday, C Greenwood of Stratford, presided. In his address he made very few recom-mendations, the chief one being in connection with the presentation of proposed Embalmers' Act at the next session of the legislature. Prof. Hohenschuh gave a lecture on decompo-sition and communicable diseases, and the executive presented their report on the act. By the act, if passed, every person engaging in the embalming business will have to be duly qualified, and the holder of a certificate. A board of examiners will be appointed by the province, consisting of five com-petent embalmers, who shall conduct the examination of candidates.

A large number of new members were enrolled yesterday, and the sessions will be continued to-day.

Father O'Mally of St. Mary's Church will this morning at 11.45, give them an address on "Gentlemen of Culture."

It was decided that conferences of ministers and workers of the province, with the evangelists, Alexander and Chapman, be held during their January campaign in Toronto, with a view to acquainting the ministers with the best methods of obtaining the best results. It was decided also to recommend to synods and presbyteries in missionary fields to make use of synodical and presbyterial missions to assist the superintendents in the development of the mission fields of the church.

On receiving the report of the Knox College gospel squad of five students, the board concluded to appoint similar squads in all the colleges, if desired by the institutions, and to continue the campaign of recruiting and training young men for the ministry. At the request of the home missionary committee the board will lend co-operation in the work of converting the foreigners.

Announcement was made of the tin-erary of Rev. Dr. William Patterson and W. W. Weaver. They will labor in Algoma district till Oct. 9, in Bri-tish Columbia till the end of November in Saskatchewan till Dec. 20, in Toronto during the month of January, and in London during the first half of February. A committee was appointed to arrange for the publication of Prof. Kilpatrick's book on evangelism, which he has donated to the board.
