Cravath Signs With Phillies

Chifford C. Cravath has signed a two-year contract to pilot the Phillies. No terms have been revealed, but it is understood that Jack Coombs' successor, who has been at the helm for the last two months, will receive $9,000 a season under this new contract. "Gravvy" will have full power in signing and releasing players. It is understood that he will trade several members on the club.

McDONALD KNOCKS OUT GUNNER ARNOLD

Round-Arnold Took Severe Summary-Three base hit, Risberg. Punishment

(Halifax Recorder)

The 900 fistic fans who went to the Mayflower Rink last night had a great evening's sport. There were no preliminaries, simply a semi-final and a final, and everybody was pleased the ordinary "prelims" were omitted as they witnessed round after round of good hard fighting. Altogether there were 21 rounds, but one conclusion that could be reached that Arnold can stand a terrible amount of punishment, or McDonald is not as hard a hitter as he formerly was.

Arnold is a bigger man than McDonald he is several inches taller; he has a much longer reach, and while he is not such a sturdy stature, he is heavier than the Cape Bretoner. He is the essence of gameness, as despite the heavy blows he got from McDonald, and with his nose bleeding quite a lot, he was always back ready for a mix-up. In fact he did most of the leading. He had a good left with which he did clever jabbing, and he landed many effective blows upon the body, but while he guarded his body well, he left his jaw unprotected. Besides, when he led with his right McDonald could see the blows coming, and then dodging, landed almost every time. McDonald fought with better judgment than usual.

The second round was the most even of the hout, with Arnold effective in his work about the body. Roddie, however, work about the body. Roddie, however, punched him hard in the third, starting his nose bleeding, and from that on the bout was always in McDonald's favor, with his opponent taking lots of punishment and displaying wonderful gameness. McDonald fairly took him off his feet in the fifth; he had him groggy in the sixth, on one occasion he putting up his hands over his face, though McDonald was not delivering a blow at the time. The Cape Bretoner again rushed time. The Cape Bretoner again rushed him to the ropes in the seventh, but Ar-nold fought back hard. Arnold split one of the new pair of gloves in this round,

There was a delay of seven minutes, 2? seconds, until a new glove was procured and the bout was started again.

There were light exchanges until near the end of the eighth, when Roddie landed heavily, and in the ninth he accomplished the knockout with a right to the jaw. Arnold got up on one knee as nine was counted but fell back on the floor again.

Roddie McDonald won his bout with Gunner Arnold, knocking him out after 1 minute 53 seconds' fighting in the ninth round. He led his opponent after the second round, and pounded him hard again and again.
