THE HOLLYHOCKS. They're singing in the parlor,

And dancing in the hall,
And the rooms are gay with laughter,
But I like this best of all, My quiet, dear old garden
Where the wind blows cool and free, And the hollyhocks are dancing In the moonlight just for me.

Oh, their skirts are tilted gails And they're stepping in a row, Pink and red and dainty yellow, One, two, three and off they go.
In my ballroom with these beauties No black heavy coats I see,
For my hollyhocks are dancing
In the moonlight—just for me.

There are in New Brunswick several branches of farm work which are specialized, and in these, and particularly in dairying, the exhibit promises to be above the average. But in this, as in all other departments, the co-operation of the people as a whole will be necessary, and in order to insure complete success it will be well for every man with a patch of good potatoes to send a bushel of them to the grounds, and the same applies to everything grown on the farm or garden.

There will be an unusually good showing of live stock, and this includes not only cattle, pigs and sheep, but horses, dogs and poultry. Some

MELBOURNE STREET LOAFERS | MARRIED, BUT CLEARED OUT A CHURCH

MELBOURNE, Aug. 18.—For many Sundays some hundreds or so of the loafing unemployed—men who refuse to work even if offered it—have been making a round of the principal Melbourne churches led by Tom Mann, the the English labor leader, and J. W. Fleming, a notorious agitator. One Sunday a visit was made to the Scots church in Collins street, and the following account is but a type of the behaviour of this discreditable body at each of the leading churches they have successively attended:

BERLIN, Aug. 18.—A remarkable separation case has just come to light here.

A teacher in a high school for girls and a teacher in a municipal school for boys became great friends and agreed to mary in order that the girl should assist the man in his studies to become a professor.

It was agreed, however, that they should be comrades and nothing more, One day the husband in an amorous mood, forget his compact and kissed his wife's hand.

She immediately left him, and applied for a separation, which was been reserved at the back, but "Come granted her.

up to the front," said Mr. Mann, and they went.

Everything proceeded quietly until the preacher, the Rev. Dr. Marshall, alluded to life after death. This brought forth loud cries of "Rot" and groans which drowned the preacher's voice. He remonstrated with the interrupters, but they shouted louder, and finally he left the pulpit.

Then the organist played a voluntary and the congregation quietly filed out of the church, leaving the unemployed in possession. Some further noisy scenes followed, after which Mr. Mann thanked the unemployed for their be-haviour, and they dispersed.
