THE SEMI-WEEKLY TELEGRAPH, ST. JOHN, N. B., WEDNESDAY, SEPTEMBER 23, 1903,

GRAND FALLS.

Grand Falls, Sept. 18.—A public meeting was held in the Presbyterian church on Wednesday evening, and the ladies present unanimously resolved to organize a local union of the W. C. T. U. The ladies have extended an invitation to Mrs. C. D. Jordan, of Woodstock, county president of the W. C. T. U., to visit Grand Falls at an early date and institute the branch.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Wilson, Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Gallagher, Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Warinck, Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Mockler, Albert Dixon, Miss Maggie Dixon, Wilson, Miss Maria Wilson, Fred Warnock, Miss Maria Wilson, Fred Warnock, Miss Mary Flemming, Miss Alice Stroup, Miss Mary J. Stroup, Mrs. Reid, were among those present.

Harvesting hereabouts is now well advanced. The late frosts injured the buckwheat to a great extent, and hence the familiar and popular pancake will be a household luxury next winter.

The big game season opened on Tuesday, and local guides anticipate the busiest season in the history of the sport. Joseph O'Regan has the honor of shooting the first moose of the season, and brought in a magnificent head on Wednesday morning. The moose was shot in Ryan Brook, just eight miles from town. This will undoubtedly be the banner year for big game, which appears to increase instead of diminish in numbers.

Mrs. Clement Upham, wife of the popular warding a silver medal bearing the first property of the sport. So which appears to increase instead of diminish in numbers.

NORTH HEAD.

Miss Reta Newton, daughter of G. I. very ton, has gone to Netherwood school, Rothesay, to take the course.

Miss Grace E. Newton and Miss Maud E. Kent are visiting friends at St. Stephen and St. Andrews. Mrs. Hunter presided at the organ in Ascension church at North Head for Miss Kent and in St. Paul's church, Grand Harbor, for Miss Newton during their observed. Grand Harbor, for Miss Newton during their absence.

The Curlew, Capt. Pratt, is at present lying in Grand Harbor. A strict eye is kept on unlawful fishermen these days.

Our island will be a veritable paradise just now, there are so many agencies at work for the perfection of men and women. The latest is a Rathbone Sister Society—Mrs. McDonald, grand chancellor; Mrs. Beaumont, master-at-arms; Mrs. Lowe, assistant G. M. at A., of Portland (Me.) and Mrs. Ransdell, G. P., of Eastport, came on the Aurora and spent half a week organizing this Pythian sisterhood. Thirty Grand Manan women were initiated into the mysteries. A public installation of officers took place in the Pythian Castle hall, Grand Harbor, as follows: Mrs. L. C. Ingalls, C. C.; Mrs. L. C. Guptill, K. R. S.

The Rathbone Sisters, as they are called, will hold their meetings in the K. P. hall where they held their first confab and where a goodly number enjoyed the installation services, and the speeches, after those functions which were made by the visiting ladies. All join in wishing this new society great success in spreading their tenets of friendship, charity, benevolence and love, and all hope they will prove themselves worthy of their name—Alexandra Lodge. This is the second such lodge in New Brunswick. No. 1 is at Milltown.

CAMPBELLTON

Truro, N. S., Sept. 19.—An episode that s creating a great deal of talk in the nner circle, where the matter is being of murder was prominent, took page here one day this week. The scene was one of the hotels. A woman from New York arrived at the hotel on Friday evening, and after a short parley about what she deemed "excessive rates," took a room. She was of quite large stature and exceeding ly richly costumed, and her actions later showed her reason for putting up at the hotel she did instead of taking the most fashionable one in town.

The traveller's wife communicated to the hotel manager the circumstances, and, as by this time all the hotel guests had noticed the woman's actions, the manager went up to the room door and waited outside while his little boarder went in to interview the strange guest. "I want your husband," was her greeting on entering. "You may as well go away quiety, and say nothing about it," she continued, "I have loved him for years she continued, "I have loved him for years and I am bound to have him. If you do not keep quiet I will kill you."

The woman went on in this strain to the traveller's trembling little wife and before she had gone far she had learned the whereabouts of the man she wanted, who was out on a regular trip. She went somewhat into detals, explaining that she had lots of money and urging the little wife to take things calmly.

Shortly afterwards the determined and Carver's murder was a most cold-blooded one. At midnight he came twice to the house of Alexander Stewart, whose servant the was, threatening to shoot if the did not get some clothes. The second time Stewart followed him to the barn and Carver turned with a gun and shot him dead. The only extenuating circumstances was the belief of some that the prisoner was not in this right mind, but this was not offered at the trial for the defence. The chief justice, in passing sentence, said he could hold out no hope of mercy, and the commutation is viewed with surprise by many.
