DEAN RUSSELL, Professor of Education at Columbia University, has recently stated regarding Scouting, whether for boys or in the Girl Guides: "Our schools are long on their ability to give information—knowledge which shall be of worth to future citizens. They are competent to go a long way in the matter of stirring the right feeling and developing the right appreciation on the part of the citizens; but they are all too short when it comes to fixing those habits and developing and encouraging activities, without which the individual may be a pretty poor, and even a very dangerous, citizen. It is right that the Boy Scout programme supplements the work of the schools. Its curriculum is adjusted in such a way that the more you study it and the further you go into it, you who are schoolmasters, the more you must be convinced that there was a discovery made when it was put forth. The programme of the Boy Scouts is the man's job cut down to boy's size. It appeals to the boy, not merely because he is a boy, but because he is a man in the making. And it is just at this point that the programme of so many organizations for boys and girls break down. . . . It does not ask of the boy anything that the man does not do; but, step by step, it takes him from the place where he is until he reaches the place where he would be.

his assistant Professor Stiles, of Fredrickton University.
"Scouting is going ahead in Canada, not only on account of public support and of the smartness and efficiency on the part of the boys, but mainly, thanks to the splendid spirit which permeates the whole movement throughout the Dominion."

During the Winnipeg strike of 1919, when citizens were offering their services in every conceivable and inconceivable way to prevent loss of life and property, and to make it possible for the citizens to receive the necessities of life, one of the Cubmasters called on the mother of one of the Wolf Cubs in that city. Her son was the youngest of the Pack, and not very big for his age. One morning he was so impressed with the idea that he was not doing his best that he donned his uniform and made his way to the nearest fire hall. Coming to the alert, he saluted the captain of the brigade. "Well, sonny; what do you want?" Then the Cub's courage failed him. "Nothing. Only I thought if a fire or anything happened you might let me help, because your regular firemen are all on strike." The captain took in the situation. Here was a little chap bent on doing his best. "Well, I don't know that we need your help now. If you will tell me where you live and we need you, I'll send for you." The Cub was very disappointed that he was not taken on at once, even to attend to the horses, and went home to listen to every knock that might be a call for help. It is in such boys that the stuff is found that has made men do and dare under all circumstances, and one realizes that the Cubs are a band who, where duty calls, will never be wanting there.
