- Q. How much did you expect to get for your horses?
- A. 250 dollars, sir.
- Q. Why did you get so much less?
- A. I didn't have time to argue about it. I had to sell and I had to take their price.
- Q. What happened after that?
- A. I got the money for the equipment and logs and went to a lumber yard and bought some lumber. I bought four lots in Albert Park and moved my lumber out there and started building.
- Q. Did you do any other work at this time?
- A. No, sir. Not till I ran out of money. I had to have some money to get on with the house so I went to work helping haul stuff with my truck at the Internment Camp at Seebe.
- Q. Did you work at that every day?
- A. Every day except Monday, sir.
- Q. For how long did you run this trucking job?
- A. Approximately a month, sir.
- Q. Now, you drove a truck during the day, is that right?
- A. Yes, sir.
- Q. Did you do any other work at the same time?
- A. During the day I hauled supplies to the Internment Camp and by night I worked on my house.
- Q. About how long in a day would you work?
- A. I would load up the truck at 10 o'clock at night for it got too dark to work on the house, leave home at 4 o'clock in the morning, get to the Internment Camp at 10 o'clock in the morning and get back in Calgary around 3 or 4 o'clock in the afternoon, get some more stuff from the lumber yard for the house, go home and start to work on the house. Worked there until it got dark and go home and load up the truck to be ready for the next day.
- Q. Now, when you were driving this truck, did you meet any officers or N.C.O.'s. from the army?
- A. Yes, sir, I did.
- Q. Often?
- A. Every day, sir.
- Q. Did you speak to them?
- A. Yes, sir.
- Q. Did any of them ask you any questions?
- A. No, sir.
