DEATH OF MR. T. J. LEE

On September 21st death came to ard street. Mr. Lee had been ill for about ten weeks, but recovery had been hoped for by an affectionate wife and family, until the somewhat sudden call made it evident that longer hope was vain. The deceased gentleman was a son of the late Patrick Lee, surveyor and teacher, and one of a family of twelve children, the late Rev. Father Lee, who died in 1873 being another member. Mr. Lee was born at Niagara-on-theael's College, where he was a classof Archbishop O'Connor, Bishmate op O'Connor and Bishop Dowling. His education was continued at the Grand Seminary, Montreal, and he professor at the was afterwards College of St. Anne's de la Pocatiere, Quebec. He was therefore widely known in clerical and educational circles, and in business he has been familiar for the past thirty years as manager for Mr. Matthew O'Connor, the well known painter. In politics Mr. Lee was a Liberal, and the C.M.B.A. and A.O.U.W. each claimed him as a member. Mr. Lee was a practical Catholic and a man of many excellent and amiable qualities, which won for him many friends, a fact well testified to by the hundreds who visited his home to take
