Why are great writers, when they die, like little Bo-peep's sheep? Because they leave their tales behind them.

"I don't suppose you know what it is to be exposed to temptation every moment of your working day, as I am."

"I'm not so sure about that. What's your occupation?"

"I am a bank cashier."

"Shake! I'm a berry picker."

A well-known Judge fell down a flight of stairs, recording his passage by a bump on every step until he reached the bottom. A servant ran to his assistance, and, raising him up, said "I hope your Honor is not hurt?"

"No," said the Judge, sternly, "my honor is not hurt, but my head is."

At an auction sale of pure-bred dairy Shorthorns owned by Mr. C. A. Scott-Murray, Hambledon, Bucks, England, on May 4th, an average of £36 18s. ($185) was realized for 59 head, the highest price, 80 guineas ($420), being paid by Mr. R. W. Hudson, for Lady Fedora Fawsky; the same buyer paying 70 guineas for another cow. On the following day, 44 head of Shorthorns of the same class, from the herd of Mr. J. T. Hobbs, Maiseyhampton, sold for an average of £44 9s. 8d.

Mr. Sol. Shantz, Haysville, Ont., writes: "My recent sales of Shorthorns are: One fine red bull to Mr. Henry Shantz, Ayr. P. O., and another red to Mr. Joseph A. Lang, St. Mary's; also a roan to Egerde Bros., of New Dundee. I still have a very good one left, by Kinellar Stamp, dam Queen—22646—, by Oxford (imp.), grandam Vermont Lass, by Knight of Vermont (imp.). He is a good, strong calf, fourteen months old. My stock is doing well, and is gone out on the grass."

At a council meeting of the English Shorthorn Society, on May 2nd, the following resolution in the interest of dual-purpose cattle of that breed was adopted:

1. That in view of the magnitude of the dairy industry of the United Kingdom, and the increasing demand for all dairy produce, it is of paramount importance that the milking properties of pedigree Shorthorns should be systematically cultivated in order to maintain for the breed a position of pre-eminence for milk, as well as for beef-producing purposes, and that in order to further this object an effort should be made to induce the Agricultural Societies to offer greater inducements to demonstrate the capacity of the breed in this respect.

2. That the council appoint a committee of seven of its members to co-operate with a committee already formed to carry out this object.

At a Montana sheepmen's convention, James Rea, of St. Paul, Minn., gave the following advice: "Here is what I would advise the mutton-growers to do: Put a nice big advertisement in all the well-read magazines and newspapers in the country telling of the good qualities of mutton, and especially lamb. How good a nice lamb chop tastes when cooked properly. For example, see what the breakfast-food people have done—just with plain old wheat bran and oats. They have the people so worked up that we are eating door mats for breakfast. The prune-growers of California a few years ago had a very poor market for their prunes. To set people eating prunes, they issued a little book called 'Forty Ways to Cook Prunes.' That little book worked wonders and to-day the demand for prunes is enormous. Any article of real merit can be brought before the people in this same way. Now what we all want to do in the future is to advertise the good qualities of well-fed sheep and lambs, until every man, woman and child from one end of the country to another is eating mutton."

Potash as Necessary as Rain

The quality and quantity of the crops depend on a sufficiency of
