The London team is lacking speed. The Kockney outfield, Click-Deneau and Stewart, are hitters but they cannot ruy bases Matteson the catcher, is a good ball player, but when he gets on a base it's like the steret traffic congestion one often hears about. Den eau's club seems to have in man ways the punch, but the speed not there. This may mean more than appears on the surface.

The Red Sox looked quite a si better yesterday and had the luck of the game with them. This is some thing they have had against them in recent games. There was only one error and that didn't amount to any thing. The game was a snappy on Collins seemed to have great stuff all the way, in spite of the fact the the Londoners were outclassed.

One of the pleasing features of Red Sox play, has been Matty Lamond's heroic come back, Lamond's throwing is well nigh perfect, while fault could be found with his work he is batting at a great clip.
