Cut wood such arrangement. Dependence upon Harper and Church street, a corporation seeking nothing but the promotion of its own interests would simply mean that the cost of water to the miner would be kept at the very highest possible figure.

The plan suggested of a water system installed under government diection and with charges for service ixed as low as would be consistent with first cost and expense of operation, commends itself as being nearer a practicable solution of the situation than any other idea thus far

The additional indirect revenu which would accrue to the govern-ment as the result of the establishent of a water system along the lines suggested would make the investment a profitable one from the government standpoint. An immediate impetus would result to the mining industry which would be reflected in the government's receipts from royalty, licenses, renewals, customs and all other sources of federal rev-
