CITY PLANNING AND BUSINESS BUILDING IN CANADA

The Danger of Over-Crowding JAMES McLEOD, M.D., C.M. The modern city planing scheme when in the hands of wise municipa administrators, will be of invaluable service to the community in preventing for all time over-crowding of houses on land, which is so marked in the estates developed by real estate Office: owners in many of our large cities In some instances in Great Britain, as many as thirty to forty houses been built on an acre of land. Fortunately this terrible state of affairs will not be permitted under the recent housing and city planning act which grants very large powers to the local authorities concerned. There is no reasonable excuse why Canadian authorities should fall into the same error. Here we have vast undeveloped sections that have not even been under the plow, making F. J. admirable residential districts. Not withstanding this we have slums in Montreal, Toronton, Hamilton, Win nipeg and Vancouver that would certainly be an easy first to anything i Great Britain. That this is recognized is borne out by the fact that city improvement committees in the cities alluded to have wisely taken in hand chemes to minimize this undesirable feature in the otherwise splendid and prosperous cities of Canada. If citizens build wisely with a view to the beautiful as well as the pracical, it will bring in its train physical development and law-abiding citizenship. In this building it is necessary to make a study of the future requirements by larger thoroughfares and open spaces; well laid out sec-tions for artisans' dwellings, making tributing in a very marked degree to the happiness of our people and the future citizens of great centres of mmerce and industry.
