Windsor, May 25.-Victoria Day was Windsor, May 25.—Victoria Day was celebrated here yesterday on a magnificent scale. Fifteen hundred troops, including the Essex Fusiliers, the 91st Highlanders of Hamilton and a detachment of Royal Canadian Dragoons, as well as the Michigan Naval Reserves with two guns and eight companies of the Michigan National Guard, were in line at 2 p. m. and marched to the Windsor Driving Park, where a varied program of sports and military movements were gone through.

The feature of the forenoon was the unveiling of the memorial fountain erected in honor of the Essex boys who went to the front in the South African war.

C. Sütherland, Liberal,

There are thousands of females all over our land who are broken down in health and dragging out a miserable existence, overburdened with diseases peculiar to their sex, apparently growing old while yet young. Often they have pale or sallow complexion, hollow, sunken eyes, with a lifeless look; the face has a pinched and haggard appearance; they are weak, weary and trembling, often extremely nervous, starting at every little noise. Many are low-spirited, and some are fretful. Some are apparently bloodless, with cold hands and feet, while others are flushed by an unequal circulation of the blood, dizzines, and sometimes dimess of vision, loss of memory, and often loss of appetite and aleep, and are wearied with terrible dreams.

Palpitation of the heart, nervous prostration, smothering and sinking spells, shortness of breath and the sensation of pins and needles are all indications of a weakened condition of the heart or nervous system, and should any of them be present we would strongly advise the use of moved in the Saskatchevain Jessel ture by W. HOW THE MIGHTY GO DOWN AND THE WEAK GO UP.

"Bluest Blood" and the Longest Deecents in England Are Ameng the Great Middle Class-A Plantagenet Who Was Engaged In Cobbling-A Butcher and a Toll-Gatherer Entitled to Quarter the Royal Arms.

R is a fact well known to all students of family history, said a genealogical expert to a writer for London Tit-Bits, that, if you want to find the "biusst blood" and the longest descents, you must go, not to the peerage, but to the great middle classes, and even lower, and that many a proud wearer of a duke's or an earl's coronet to-day has a pedigree which will not compare for distinction with that of some of his tradesmen or tenants. Yes, I know this is a surprising statement, but it is a sober statement of the truth.

There are very few of our present peers who can trace their descent from the great nobles of the days of chivalry or earlier. The founder of one line of marquesses was an innkeeper; of a line of earls a grazier, and so on, and many of the greatest aristocrats of our time owe their rank and wealth to the enterprise and luck of city apprentices.

To quote Burke:

"Let us look back only as far as the year 1637, and we shall find the great-It is a fact well known to all students

terprise and luck of city apprentices. To quote Burke:

"Let us look back only as far as the year 1637, and we shall find the great-grandson of Margaret Plantagenet, herself the daughter and heiress of George, Duke of Clarence, following the cobbler's craft at Newport, a little town in Shropshire. Nor is this the only branch from the tree of royalty that has dwarfed and withered.

"If we were closely to investigate the fortunes of the many inheritors of the royal arms, it would soon be shown that the aspiring blood of Lancaster flows through very humble veins. Among the lineal descendants of Edward of Woodstock, Earl of Kent, sixth son of Edward I., King of England, entitled to quarter the royal arms, occur a butcher and a toll-gatherer—the first a Mr. Joseph Smart of Halesowen, the latter a Mr. George Wilmot, keeper of the turnpike gate at Cooper's Bank near Dudley.

"Then aradin, among the descendants

mear Dudley.

"Then again, among the descendants of Thomas Plantagenet, Duke of Gloucester, fifth son of Edward III., we discover Mr. Stephen James Penny, the late sexton of St. George's, Hanover Square—a strange descent from the sword and sceptre to the spake and nickxxx!"

Square—a strange descent from the sword and sceptre to the spake and plckaxe!"

The last head of the great Scottish house of Lindsay and, de jure Earl of Crawford, died in 1744 in the capacity of estler in an inn at Kinkwall in the Orkneys, and in four generations the descendants of Sir Richard Knightley of Fawsley (the head of one of the oldest and most distinggished families in England) and his wife, daughter of the great Protector Somerset, ended as obscure London tradesmen—drapers and oil men eutside the city gates.

Sir Thomas Convers, the head of a family which had held vast estates, owned castles and enjoyed high rank in the north of England almost from the days of the Conquest, died a pauper in a Durham workhouse. A grandson of Oliver Cromwell and a kinsman of Thomas Cromwell, Earl of Essex, served behind the counter in a Snow Hill shop, while one of his nieces ended her days in a workhouse, and of his great nieces one married a butcher's son and the other a Cambridgeshire shoemaker. Among peasants and laborers, farmers and small tradesmen are many descendants of the great feudal houses of Scrope and Grevstoke, Neville and D'Arcy, sand many another noble stock who can claim kinship with our bluest blooded peers and royal descents galler, while in the pedigree of the Duke of Northumberland figure farmers and heberdashers, husbandmen and paperstainers.

King James I. was on the throne at the time, and on April 12, 1606, he issuch a proclamation ordaining the use of the new flag. The national embien remained unchanged then for nearly 200 years, or until the union with Ireland on Jan. 1, 1801.

on Jan. 1, 1801.

In commemoration of the latter event a third cross was incorporated with the other two in the design. The third cross is popularly called St. Patrick's cross, but this is incorrect. It is on the flag, however, to symbolize the presence of Ireland in the United Kingdom, and the flag as established in 1801 remains unchanged to-day.

Considerable speculation exists concerning the origin and significance of the term "Union Jack." The first word, of course, is obvious, but there has been a deal of learned disputation about the other. Some persons have held that "Jack" came from the nautical term, Jack-sprit, others from the word jack-et, originally a Norman word denoting the tunic worn over the chain armor, and that eventually became identified with heraldic designs.

The weight of authority, however, derives the word from the name of the King in whose reign the first union was consummated. James in French is Jacques, The union flag of King Jacques would easily become "Jacques' Union," or "Union Jacque," and so eventually Union Jack.
