Editorial Notes

A gentleman from Massachusetts who has been touring our province informed The Acadian that the roads in some sections of Nova Scotia were the worst he had seen anywhere except in some back sections of Maine.

The final race of the series for the America's Cup was sailed on Tuesday and resulted in a victory for the Resolute—the defender. Sir Thomas Lipton announced immediately after the race that he would build another new Challenger—the fifth—and come across again in 1922 to have another try at lifting the cup.

An advance of three cents a pound in the wholesale price of sugar is reported. An Ottawa despatch says: Export of sugar from Canada to the United States is under close attention by the Board of Commerce and, according to a statement issued, steps are in contemplation which, without drastic interference with trade conditions, may be expected to reduce such transactions to a minimum.

SAVING HOME GROWN SEED

(Experimental Farm Note)

Although the cost of seed that is used in planting a vegetable garden is small compared with the returns, it is very easy to grow the seed one's self and moreover, if pure seed of a good strain is produced at home, one is surer of having what is required.

Seed of most varieties of vegetables can be grown at home of as good or better quality than is the imported seed, but to ensure having good seed it should be saved from the best plants rather than from those which happen to have been left in the garden unused.

A few plants of peas left to mature without picking any green pods from them will furnish enough seed for the garden next year.

Reserve a few feet of the row of beans for seed, or, better still, mark a few productive plants, which are free from disease and do not pick green beans from them. Quickness of drying is important with beans and peas, as with most seed, and it should be cleaned and kept dry until the following spring.

If seed is damp it is liable to mould and lose its germinating power. For this reason it is particularly important in the case of corn to dry seed thoroughly and rapidly. When corn becomes ready for use, a few of the earliest and best developed ears should be marked to be left until ripe for seed.

One cucumber will contain enough seed for the wants of the home gardener. A specimen which is typical in shape and colour of the variety grown or the type desired should be left on the vine until it turns yellow, when it is cut open and the seeds spread out thinly and dried and put in an envelope until needed.

Seed is readily obtained from lettuce. One plant will produce more than enough seed for home use, and no doubt some radish plants have gone to seed, which may be left until the seed ripens.

The seed of tomatoes for home use should be saved from the plant bearing the largest crop of early and best fruit. The tomatoes are cut in half and the pulp pressed out into some vessel, adding about one third its volume of water. Put in a dark room until fermentation in, which will be in about two days, when the seed will separate readily from the pulp. It is then washed out and spread out to dry but not in the sun. When dry, store in paper bags until needed.

The seed of other vegetables can also easily be saved, and there are many persons in Canada who have their own specially selected strains of different sorts.
