Indigestion can be Cured

An Open Letter from a Prominent Clergyman.

C. GATES, SON & CO.,
"Middleton, N. B."

DEAR SIR:—Please pardon my delay in answering yours of weeks ago. Yes, I have no hesitation in recommending your Invigorating Syrup.

During the fall and winter of '96 and '97 I was greatly distressed with indigestion, I tried several remedies, each of which gave me no relief. I was advised to try your Invigorating Syrup, which I readily did, and have felt general ever since to the one who gave me such good advice.
The very first dose helped me, and before half of the first bottle was used I was completely cured. I have not been troubled with the disease since. I have taken occasion to recommend your medicine publicly upon several occasions, and heartily do so now. You are at liberty to use this in any way you please.

Yours truly,
(Rev.) F. M. YORRO,

Handicap your Cough!

Don't wait a few days to see if it will "wear off"; it is much more likely to become dangerous and it will undoubtedly be much more difficult to cure. The longer you permit it to prey upon the delicate membranes of your throat, bronchial tubes and chest, the more you render yourself susceptible to other attacks and to chronic pneumonia or consumption.

RELIEF OF LADYSMITH.

General Dundonald's Forces Raise The Siege.

Story of Cronje's Surrender

Buller Fights His Way to Ladysmith—The Boer Prisoners

LADYSMITH, by telegraph to Colonel March 1.—A portion of the forces of Gen Buller, headed by Gen Dundonald's cavalry, the full force of the Natal Carbineers and seven companies of infantry, among them some Dublin Fusiliers and Lancashire, relieved this city and raised the siege. They came via the road across Klip River and east of Oyster's Hill. Rumours of the day morning brought information that Buller expected to relieve the garrison within 24 hours and the consequent relief was great. While made preparations to sail out and aid the advance of the British if it became necessary. Dundonald reports that when the Lancashire charged on Oyster's Hill on Tuesday they overtook Boers flying from the trenches and bayoneted them. Sixteen of the fleeing men were killed and 23 were LEUTENANT GENERAL SIR GEORGE S. WHITE.

wounded. The Boers after the capture of Oyster's Hill on Tuesday by Barton with the Dublin Fusiliers and two battalions of the Sixth Brigade, seemed to fade away. There was no general retreating movement observable, but they simply disappeared. The British advanced. Cronje's Kloof was also abandoned, and as Lyttelton pushed forward his men the road seemed to be entirely clear. Dundonald, with his troop of horse sent on a scouting expedition to Weston on Tuesday night and reconnoitered all last night. On Wednesday morning he reported he could reach Ladysmith, and the Natal Carbineers, with the Fusiliers and Lancashire, with several other companies, were placed under his command.
They had little difficulty in making their way through the ravines and around the hills to the southwest of the city, and last evening crossed the plain following the railway track, and entered the city. Their arrival was hailed with triumph by the besieged. At first it was thought they were the advance of

GENERAL SIR REDVERS BULLER.

Buller's main force, but this was not so.
Buller, according to the relieving force, is rapidly moving north along the railroad from Pieter Station, and expects to occupy Netherby, four miles north of here, by to-night. It is expected Buller's main column will reach here tonight or tomorrow. The Boers have not made any demonstration from Balwina this morning, and it is doubtful if they are aware of the entrance of Dundonald into Ladysmith. They have questionably retired in great numbers from the country surrounding Ladysmith, according to Dundonald's reports, the hills that had been occupied by the

PRINCE OF PRUSSIA

Return of the Happy-Go-Lucky Prince to Berlin

The Favorite Brother of the Kaiser.

And the most Popular Man in Germany.

Prince Henry of Prussia, whose return to Berlin from the Orient has caused a general social awakening in the German capital, is the favorite brother of the Emperor, and possibly the most popular man in Germany. He is first of all a sailor, and there was never a more happy-go-lucky, easy-going prince in all Prussia. It is said that he is the only man alive who dares be familiar with the Imperial Majesty of Germany.

Once, the story goes, Emperor William was taking a cruise in his yacht and fell a victim to seasickness, a complaint to which his hardened younger brother is a stranger. The King took to his room and was there struggling with soda and towels when Prince Henry, thrusting his head into the apartment, shouted: "Hello, William! How do you feel today?" The reply was a soda bottle, aimed wide, no doubt, at the sailor's head.
Any other man than Prince Henry would have been kicked out.

BRITISH WAR CENSOR

Former Governor General
Stanley Uses The Blue
Pencil

No less a personage than an earl has been appointed censor of British war news.
He is Lord Stanley of Preston, earl of Derby, and a grandson of England's Queen, and a favorite of hers as well as of the Emperor.

Lord Stanley is the sixteenth of his family to hold the title. The family is descended from the Stanleys who figure prominently in "Richard III," and whose defection from the crookback king, Henry VI., was the cause of the tragic death of the young prince.
The present earl has been made a knight in honor of his services in the Boer war.
He represented Lancashire constitutional constituency continuously from July, 1885, to his elevation to the peerage in 1888.

Under various titles he was lord of the admiralty, financial secretary of war and financial secretary of the treasury. In 1889 he was raised to the peerage under the title of Lord Stanley, and in 1888 was appointed governor general of Canada. He succeeded in 1893 by Lord Derby.

On the death of his brother in 1893 he succeeded to the title and to estates amounting to 60,000 acres, principally in Lancashire. When the Paris embassy fell vacant in 1896, it was offered to Lord Derby, but he declined it.
The countess, his wife, is the oldest daughter of the fourth earl of Clarendon.
The Stanleys were important householders during the reigns of the Plantagenets.
The present earl has been made a knight of the garter. His father was three times minister of England. On account of the peculiarly telling quality of his oratory he was styled the Rupert of the dais.

HOME OF FEUDS

Nearly a Century of Warfare in the Mountains of Kentucky

Authorities Unable to suppress it

The Amies and Callahans Fought First Feud Battle.

The feud wars, disorder and lawlessness now existing in Clay county, Ky., and which the state authorities are unable to put down make a brief history of them interesting. The county lies in the mountains of southeastern Kentucky and was organized in the year 1807. The 92 years of its existence cover a period that has been filled with bloody feuds and with very few and brief cessations of hostilities, and the county now is known far and wide as the "home of the feuds."

The first feud battle ever fought there, says the Cincinnati Commercial Tribune, occurred soon after the county was established between the Amies and Callahans, two strong families who had become enemies on account of a dispute between them over grazing cattle on the mountain range.

On a summer day the factions met up at the fork on the east fork of the Kenucky river and without ceremony began driving into each other. Four or five men were wounded and half a dozen horses killed. This matter was taken to court.
The courthouse at that time was a large, low structure located on Goose creek, near the present site of Manchester, the county seat. Both factions, heavily armed, came in early on the day of trial and stacked their guns in the courtroom.
John Amies of the Amies faction was in the witness box testifying, when John Callahan of the Callahans faction took exceptions to the testimony he was giving, seized his rifle and with deliberate aim shot Amies through the head, splintering his brain over the judge's stand and the walls of the courtroom. When Amies fell from the witness chair, he was the first man ever killed in Clay county. The fight that followed between these factions caused the county's adjournment sine die. It was a tragedy.

Dr. Abner Baker, who killed John Callahan, was the next man to be hanged in that county, and to this day his friends and relatives consider that he was innocent of the crime and was hanged by a "judicial mob."

The feud spirit and feeling have been banished down from father to son as a heritage through these 92 years.

The White-Garard feud, in which two of the largest, and wealthiest families of Clay county figured, has lasted for half a century. It was brought on by politics.
The Philpotts, the most formidable faction now in Clay county, numbering more than 250 fighters that can be mustered at two hours' notice from their leaders, have within the past few years engaged in a number of important feud battles, among them the famous fight at Pigeon Roost, where several men were killed and hundreds of people have left their homes, taking their families away for safety.

BULLER'S MAJUSA.

Spion Kop England's New
"Hill of Remembrance."

In plain English Spion Kop would be Lookout mountain. One of the battles of the civil war, you remember, was fought at Lookout mountain. For the British Spion kop is a new "hill of remembrance." The other is Majuba.

Spion Kop is a rugged mountain created about 4,000 feet elevation and nearly 14 miles south and a little west of Ladysmith. General Buller described it as a "barren and open slope the ridges so steep that guns cannot be placed upon them." It is one of the most formidable places peaks lying between the Tugela river and Ladysmith and is as formidable as a place of defence as the first eastern ridge of the Rocky mountains would be. Old Majuba Hill, where Sir George Colley fell before the Boers in 1881, is nearly 8,000 feet high, but Spion Kop is high enough to have served the purpose of the Boers well this time.

may be mentioned that against the Griffiths faction that "go man who kills a Philpot can live," and they have lost many of their clansmen slain. This feud is still on.

The White-Howard-Baker feud sprang up two years ago, and many battles have been fought to the death among them.
The leader of the Baker faction was Thomas Baker. He was charged with killing a number of men, was captured and taken to Manchester, last June under guard of 100 soldiers to be tried for murder.
While standing in his trial, by order of the court, he was shot through the heart by an unknown assassin concealed in the house of Beverly P. White, which stood on the street in front of the courthouse. White was and is yet the sheriff of Clay county and the alleged leader of the White-Howard faction. The feud still exists.

The present courthouse at Manchester is a brick building around which many feud battles have occurred and in which several men were killed. Great chips of brick and stone that have been shot out by the heavy guns used in these battles are missing from the walls.

In the early history of the county it was the practice of the feudists to stack their arms in the courtroom when attending court. But now, when opposing factions are called to town, each side secures a suitable building in a convenient place and stacks the arms there. The feudists are as careful as a guard in these places, so that the opposing faction may not get possession of the arms. Now the feudists of Clay county do not stack their arms as the feudists of the past. There are no more feuds in the past few years.
There have been no more feuds in the past few years.

There is much concern by the state authorities over the situation in Clay county, and the recent action of the legislature will be called upon to enact measures looking toward the subduing of the lawless lawless. There has been much talk by the highest state officials of abolishing Clay county. The fields there are growing worse each year, and hundreds of people have left their homes, taking their families away for safety.

WEALTHY COULDN'T SAVE HIM.

Deadly Kidney Disease Had Him in Its Clutch—South American Kidney Cure Snapped the Cord and Made Him whole Again.
A young man, a son of one of Canada's wealthiest citizens, two years ago contracted kidney disease by taking a cold plunge in the lake when the body was overheated. Specialists could do nothing but could not cure the malady, and when half the globe had been travelled in hope of health, and ere he returned to his home apparently with but a short time to live, but the printed testimony of a school boy day acquaintance attracted him to South American Kidney Cure. He procured it, and persisted in its use and although it was a stubborn case, today he is well and healthy. Sold by E. Lee Street.
