Good Fishing on French Shore.

The S.S. Earl of Devon, which returned from the Cook's Hr. service yesterday, reports good fishing along the French Shore the last few weeks. Codfish, herring and squid being very plentiful. Traps, trawls and hook and liners have all secured good catches, but operations are being hampered by a shortage of salt at most places. The output of cod liver oil at the northward this season is estimated at little over half the quantity produced last year. This is largely due to the fact that early in the season the livers were of poor quality, running about 5 gallons to 1 gallon of oil. At 30 cents per gallon for livers the refiners could not make it pay as their product fetched only about $1.30. Refining was largely dropped and the tinning of salmon, cod roes and bakeapples taken up, the newest style oil apparatus being suitable for both purposes. The work of salmon canning has been largely extended and at Fische Islands, a factory has been opened for the tinning of cod tongues.

Note From "Fair Play."

Editor Evening Telegram. Dear Sir.—It appears from the record of the court, as published yesterday, that the names of gentlemen who have betrayed weak females into a life of infamy, are to be suppressed in evidence to be given by their victims.

It is felt that the feelings of these gallant gentlemen must not be harrowed by a recital of their crimes. Had they been men of lower degree, possibly it would not have mattered, but men of substance and standing must be protected from public obloquy. Their victims being helpless females of the so-called lower class, must face a courtroom filled with a jeering crowd, some of whom are the very criminals who betrayed them. And this is what our civilization leads to!

I fancy the better sense of the community will regard the sympathy of Bench and Bar greatly misplaced in this case.

The revelations in the court are deplorable, but sympathy with such wanton culprits seems outrageous. Inspector General Hutchings is proving himself a true protector of the peace of the people.

What are the public agencies of Social purity doing to help him? Where are the Social Service Committees and Church Agencies in these cases?

Have these girls no friends? Has Social crime no nemesis but the Inspector General and his efficient force?

Let the public conscience answer. Yours truly,

FAIR PLAY.

Harbor Grace Notes.

The S.S. Euphrates went on dock yesterday morning. Undergo repairs. The schooner Barbara Barr, John Snelgrove Master, is still on dock, and it is expected it will take about three weeks more before the schooner is put in first-class condition.

Master Graham French, of J. Ross' grocery store, and son of Mr. and Mrs. William French of the West End, left for the General Hospital, St. John's, by yesterday morning's train to undergo an operation for appendicitis. This young chap has been ailing for the past week, and we are sorry to hear of the seriousness of his illness, but we trust it will not be long before he will be able to get back to his work again.

S.S. Seal arrived here yesterday morning from the Labrador. Owing to the dense fog, etc., she was delayed somewhat. Amongst the passengers landed here was Mrs. Dwyer, wife of Sergt. Dwyer, who had been visiting her home at Twillingate.

Miss Jessie Garland, daughter of Mr. C. T. Garland, arrived here last week from Boston on a visit to the old home. Her many friends welcome her back to the town again.

Dame rumour has it that we are about to lose one of our doctors. If this is so, to have either one of them removed from among us, would certainly mean a big loss to the town.

Messrs. G. M. Barr and F. J. Canning of St. John's, were in town on Wednesday.

The "blue-berries" seem to be pretty plentiful this year. If Jack Frost deals kindly with us, no doubt a good stock will be got in.

Miss Anita Makinson, of the Gouds, having spent a few days here with friends, leaves by this afternoon's train for her home again.

Miss Gertrude Parsons, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Parsons, Bannerman Street, left by this morning's train to take the Rosalind to-morrow for Halifax, where she will resume her studies at school there. Her many friends wish her well.

A number of schooners, which were waiting in port for a favourable wind, got away this morning. The schooner Flowerdew is expected to sail for Halifax this afternoon.

Miss Bridget Fitzgerald, an old lady of the West End, who has been sick for a long while, died at her home this morning. The town extends sympathy to those left to mourn.

Characters to Order.

WEED OUT YOUR BAD HABITS AND GIVE THE GOOD ONES MORE ROOM TO GROW.

Building a character is like making a garden. The first thing we have to do is to set to work and pull out the weeds.

Everyone who has an allotment knows what this weeding business means. We never seem to get rid of them. We tear up, and dig up, and hoe out continuously, and in the dark, while we sleep, up spring new weeds, strong, lasting, poisonous, and flower-destroying.

We must get rid of our character-weeds. What are the worst of them? Resentment is a big weed, extending not only to people but circumstances. Resentment cramps our energies and fills us with a bitter impatience. We must out with it, and plant tolerance and understanding in its place.

Attractive Bad Habits.

Indecision, this is a rather attractive-looking weed; but it leads to a life of idleness and want of purpose. Fear, that is the most noxious of all our weeds. It leads straight to utter failure. It blossoms into the ugly flowers of meanness and cowardice and greed and crime. We fear poverty, and we become parsimonious. We fear ill-health, and we lose the health and energy we already possess. We fear everything, yet a great man once said: "There is nothing to fear but fear."

It is quite certain that, if we bravely face our terrors, they often fade before our eyes.

There are plenty of other weeds, such as anger and worry, and self-pity and envy; but we all know them. It is the constant pulling up of them that will sweeten the garden that surrounds the building of our character.

I suppose we all have different ideas of what a great character means. Some of us think it means fame, or personality, or world-greatness in some form or another. To me it means the power of transforming the little common events of daily life.

What is Character?

It does not matter a twopenny-piece to me whether a man is a successful politician or a world-wide artist. All I want to know is, how does he treat his wife and his clerks, or his employer? Is he mean or generous? Can I trust him? Is he courteous? When he dies shall we say, "He was very successful, and he left half a million," or shall we say instinctively, "What a good chap he was!"

This may not be your idea of character, but it is mine. It is a character that will give a man Love to start another life with, if there is another life to start, and few of us really think in our heart of hearts that we shall just snuff out like a candle.

God is Love—that is the basic truth of all religions. Have we lived Love and gained Love—in other words, have we become God-like? If not, we have merely erected an ugly, useless building. We shall probably have to pull it down somewhere else.

I believe one of the greatest aids to living is to live in the present. Drop the past with all its failures and silly mistakes. They were just part of the growing of your garden, when you did not recognise the weeds.

"It's as Easy to be Great as Small."

Don't bother too much about the future, remember when to-morrow comes it will still be "to-day." Live as well and cleanly and lovingly as possible to-day.

We have been taught too much about that Heaven-to-be—let us try and make our own Heaven here and now. "The Kingdom of Heaven is within you," said the greatest of all Teachers. If it is, let us take command of our Kingdom now, and enter into our kingdom of Harmony.

The future is not yet ours; the present is. We must go on with our building now, for at this very hour we are making and building our own and our loved ones' to-morrows.

It is not easy to build a fine character. Was it not Emerson who said, "It is as easy to be great as small"? It may have been to him. He was probably born great, and had made his character somewhere else. To most of us it is very difficult indeed not to be small; but if we want to build a character that will be worthy of our toil and labour, we must seek the wider
