Newfoundland

Cod Liver Oil.

HIGH VALUE FROM BIOLOGICAL STANDPOINT.

An interesting paper was read at a meeting of the Society of Chemical Industry, held at the Engineers' Club in London on Monday last, April 9th, on the subject of the cod liver oil te-The Medical Research Council of Great Britain, in association with the Department of Fisheries, recently sent Dr. S. S. Zilva, of the Lister Institute of Preventive Medicine, to Newfoundland, to enquire into the conditions of the production of the medicinal oils obtained in the colony. Dr. Zilva was accompanied on his journey by Mr. Michael Graham, of the Department of Agriculture and Fisheries, Mr. Graham's part in the enquiry being in relation to the piological aspects of the investiga-

Both these specialists have issued reports of the result of their enquiries, and Dr. Zilva read a paper at the meeting above referred to. In his remarks Dr. Zilva mentioned that the two great cod liver oil producing countries were Norway and Newfoundland, and that the Newfoundland commodity was in all respects equal, and in many ways superior, to The cod liver oil industry has a new interest to medical science for its therapeutic value in the treatment of disease. It possesses vitamines so essential to the nourishment of the human body, and the oils prepared in Newfoundland have a very high vitamine potency. Indeed, as Dr. Zilva remarked, not only is the vitamine value of the refined oil very great, but the lower grade oil known as "common cod oil," and sold for industrial purposes, possesses vitamine value in Purity and Quality.

At the conclusion of the paper, Mr.

Victor Gordon, the Acting High Commissioner for Newfoundland, was asked to open a discussion. In doing so, Mr. Gordon said that they were all very greatly indebted to Dr. Zilva for his illuminating address, which should prove a valuable addition to chemical science. Having vivid memories of his childhood, he never thought he could become enthusiastic about cod-liver oil, but Dr. Zilva and his colleague, Dr. J. C. Drummond, had so stimulated interest in this commodity that one could not help being enthused. Dr. Zilva had enlightened them as to the very high value and the increased importance of the Newfoundland medicinal oils.

and it was extremely gratifying to hear him testify to the superiority of that oil over that produced by its competitor. It was a fine tribute to the up-to-dateness and efficiency of the to hear Dr. Zilva state that, the Newfoundland medicinal oil, no matter from whom obtained, was of consistent purity and uniform quality,

This was due to the fact that the Government system of inspection and supervision of the process of manufacture ("the direct steam process") was very rigidly enforced. It was extremely interesting and satisfying to know that the Newfoundland oil was taken exclusviely from fresh col livers, whereas the Norwegian product was won from a "mixed catch."

Taking the degree roughly over a period of years, the imports of cod liver oil to Great Britain from Norway were five times greater than the imports of this commodity from Mr. Gordon thanked Dr. Zilva for his interesting lecture, and congratulated the Medical Research Council on its enterprise in taking up this matter, which was of great importance to Newfoundland and to the
