asking that engineers be sent to examine a word to cast a shadow of doubt upon Kettle Creek, between St. Thomas and Port Stanley, with a view to ascertaining the He has in fact told Parliament that feasibility of building a canal, and all re- when the matter was settled in ports, maps and other documents, sent in by such engineers" have just been laid on the table of the House of Commons, on the motion of Dr. Wilson, M.P. for East Elgin.

The developments thus made have shown not only the imaginative powers of the word for that and he is on public record. The developments thus made have shown not only the imaginative powers of the man who thought out this now famous "shipping route," but supply additional proof of the prodigal manner in which the resources of the country are wasted to promote the selfish objects of the needy that the had never negotiated any timber followers of the twen new ruling at Ottawa.

Creek runs due north and south through the county of Elgin, Province of Ontario, passes at St. Thomas, and empties into Lake Erie at Port Stanley, which is 13.39 ing course of the creek. Except for a short period during the spring freshets the creek is almost dry, it being a succession creek is almost dry, it being a succession of pends from two to five feet in depth emptying into one another through narto four feet in height. He further reports that the total elevation of the sur-Thomas above the extreme low water level of Lake Erie at Port Stanley is 81.665 feet. Consequently, to render the stream navigable for vessels of light draught would necessitate turning it into a canal with locks, feeder, etc., and a more minute and extensive examination of the locality would be required. The necessary expenditure would be very heavy, and not be otherwise with the facts he had benditure would be very heavy, and the Chief Engineer estimates it at $1,000,fore him, and no member who feels that been divulged. It is easy to reach a conclusion on the subject, however. Millions of dollars are spent every year through jobbery such as this is a fair specimen of, and yet many taxpayers when they have an opportunity at the polls to condemn the flagrant extravagance really condone the offense. It is a misiortune for the people that they have been taught to look on taxation as the Government will prove that it is not a something that enriches them rather than, in a great measure, money filched from their pockets to throw into Kettle Creek and other wild cat dodges for manufacturing votes in close constituencies. But recent experiences are no doubt teaching the independent electors a lesson which should result in driving the boodle-distributors from office if not from public lite.

THE CASE OF THE MEMBER FOR LINCOLN.

The honor of the Parliament of Canada is once more in the balances. The arraignment of the member for Lincoln by Sir Richard Cartwright is one of the most formidable charges in the political annals of Canada. It has had no equal since the days of the Pacific Scandal, though it is not unlikely that the offense itself has been equaled very often. What Rykert has been guilty of, as shown by the incriminating letters, is the outcome of a system, and it was proved by Parliamentary papers favorite fur of the Queen for cloaks, and a few years ago that some 70 other mem-bers were trafficking in timber limits as well as Rykert. How many of them were so desperately importunate as he, or how many of them were as fortunate as he in their transactions, there is no present means of knowing; but it is certain that had the Government's system of disposing of timber limits by private sale been a system of sale under free competition such rascality as has now been exposed to the light of day could not have been possible. The mere ernment a timber limit at $5 per square mile and sell it within a few months at $2,-000 per square mile is evidence of itself that there was something very corrupt in the system, and that such a thing could be done is very suggestive of collusion between the Government and the members who were parties to that and like transactions. The Rykert purchase, as well as some 70 others, was put through before the last general election; and what is nore likely than that, it was part of a general plan for procuring the funds so necessary to win a victory for the Tory party in this country? The Government and its supporters have behaved throughout the last the majority of the taxpayers. Necessaries to life and the raw material of manufactures should not be partitioned off as they can feel to be partitioned off as they can feel reign of plunder through which we have lived is perhaps only modestly illustrated by the Rykert deal. There is evidence of a by the Rykert deal. There is evidence of a heap of rascality already unearthed, but how much is hidden can be only a matter of conjecture. The broad fact seems to be as Sir Richard Cart-wright put it in the speech when moving his resolution: "Unless thieves fall out, unless there is a quarrel over the division of the plunder, unless these things come before a court of law and are subject to the ruthless scrutiny of the counsel on both BIRCHALL, thealleged murderer, registered sides, it is the rarest thing in the world to obtain complete proof, such as we have in Woodstock jail. A gentleman was wont to this case. Here such an accident has occurred. Here there was a quarrel over the division of the plunder, and a corner of the veil has been lifted. We have had glimpses of what Mr. Carlyle calls the protection per yard of cotton is less than it was at first. Were we not promised that workings of Satan's invisible world, and we how that personage, with the aid and assistance of some of his most favored ser-

of ours." The readers of the ADVERTISER know the whole case, as stated in the extracts from Rykert's own letters, set forth in Sir Richard's resolution. No stronger case could be presented to Parliament, and no ease more flagrant has ever been presented to Parliament. The authenticity of the KETTLE CREEK "NAVIGATION." letters is not questioned. From the first publication of them Rykert has not uttered either their genuineness or authenticity. followers of the men now ruling at Ottawa.

The Chief Engineer reports that Kettle gain between Mr. Adams and Mr. Schales, and he neither directly nor indirectly drew any money from the sale of the lease or put any money in his pocket except for professional fees, and have we not got his letters to show that he did negotiate the lease with to make a bargain, and that his Adams, for which money he gave a receipt? Rykert's word has no value, and even if his ce in the pond at the foot of Turvill's Parliament did not steal the letters, and vants, has contrived to bedevil and pervert representative institutions in this Canada

they are part of its official record. Now the question is, Dare Parliament condone the offense? The action of the Government in moving to adjourn the debate is very suspicious, and the reason given offers no justification one. This expenditure, he rightly concludes, is not at all warranted by the amount of trade involved, the only apparent object of such a canal being to supply the city of St. Thomas with coal by vessels! Sir Richard or the accused member could Has any one ever heard of a more crazy scheme, or a more wanton expenditure of public money? DESCRIBING the last Presbyterian mission opened on the mainland of China, the Rev. Dr. Riddel says: "The Hak-ka women are happy in having never adopted the cruel custom of foot-binding. With the freedom of their feet they seem to retain also a free and independent mind. At the same time they are free to work, and in some places the burden of life falls pretty heavily upon them. They everywhere assist in the tillage of the fields; and in some districts—Thai-pu, for instance, where the men give themselves to mercantile or literary pursuits—they are engaged even in the work of porterage, carrying heavy burdens from the boats to the shops, or even from one town to another. Yet opened on the mainland of China, the Rev. heavy burdens from the boats to the snops, or even from one town to another. Yet they do not look like slaves, and we find that as they earn the cash they can successfully claim from their husbands the power to keep it or spend it as they please.

PROMPT SETTLEMENT.

The above Company has just paid death claim on policy No. 19,560, insuring the life of the late Albert Ulric Reinhardt, of Montreal.

The following letter speaks for itself: Montreal, March 7, 1890.

To the Germania Life Insurance Company of New York: Gentlemen—I beg leave to tender you my sincere thanks for the very prompt manner in which you have paid the insurance ($5,400) on the life of my late husband, Albert U. Reinhardt, said claim having been only presented on the 1st inst. I am, gentlemen, yours faithfully.

(Signed)

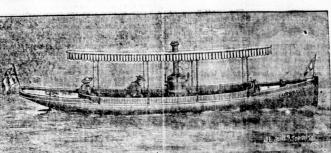

The above-mentioned policy was issued on Oct. 23, 1867, for $4,000 on the ordinary life plan, ten payments with annual dividends, the premium being $158 64, and the total payments amounting therefore to $1,556 40. The estate received $5,383 20, being equal to a return of 89 per cent. of all the premiums paid, and the full amount of the policy in addition.

In other words, the cost of $4,000 insurance was exactly $1 88 per annum for each $1,000.
The proofs of death were only sent to this office on Saturday, 1st inst., reaching the Head Office in New York, on Monday, 3rd inst.
Although the policy was not payable until the expiration of 60 days, a check was sent by return mail for the full amount of $5,383 20.
