Freight Sheds of the N. Y. C. Company Containing Tons of Merchandise Destroyed.

Schenectady, N. Y., Dec. 4. - The freight house and sheds of the New York Central Railroad Company, in this city, were totally destroyed by fire this morning together with an immense amount of treight, the value of which it is almost impossible to estimate. The of fighting the fire was with water yesterday's closing prices. It is said obtained from the Erie Canal with two fire engines. The city has been without a drop of water in its mains since 9 o'clock yesterday morning on account of a breakdown at the puriping station which disabled both pumps and shut off entirely the city's supply. The fire was first discovered at 10:30 o'clock and started in a pile of waste were no means of fighting the fire and within fifteen minutes the flames had swept through the shed, which is between the two buildings where the office force works. The sheds were piled high with merchandise as were also the iong platforms outside. The flames swept across John street and threatened a long line of tenement houses and a lumber yard. With the two stream of water from the canal the firemen worked heroically and the absence of wind alone prevented the destruction of the entire northern part of the city.

Freight Agent Kinsbury says that it is almost impossible to estimate the loss, but it will be over $50,000. On Aug. 9 last the city had a similar experience. The city water was turned off to make repairs at the pumping station and seven houses in Hulcti

Ship Was Crushed in the Floes-Leader and Crew Return Safely to Civilization.

London, Dec. 4.-Of all the many vessels that have engaged in Antarctic exploration from the time of Capt. Cook, in 1773, to the present day, the steamer Antarctic is the only one that has ever been lost in that vast region. covery and the Scottish steamer Scotia, but there is no reason to believe that they are lost. The Antarctic, which carried the Swedish party to Graham Land, south of Tierra del Fuego, was a Norwegian in pack ice, and was in fine condition when Dr. Otto Nordenskjold sailed from home, on Oct. 16, 1901. The dis-WHO PAYS FOR THE COAT? aster which sank her was not due to any inferiority in the boat; nor is it at all likely that her commander, Capt. C. A. Larsen, was at fault for the loss

Capt. Larsen became well-known to geographers in 1894 through his brilliant explorations on the sailing vessel Jason. He was sent to the south polar regions on an experimental quest for eals and whales; and as he did not find the game he was after, he turned his attention to exploration and brought to light 120 miles of hitherto unknown coast line on the east side of Graham Land.

It was the irony of fate that his incomparably better vessel, the Antarctic, should have been crushed in the ice on Feb. 12 last in the very waters in which he had safely cruised in his sailing vessel nine nears earlier. His party spent last winter after the wreck on Paulet Island, overlooking the waters in which he had caught some seals in 1894. The disaster occurred about 625 miles southeast of Cape Horn. It should be remembered that the Nordenskjold exploring party was not involved in the shipwreck itself.
