

A CHALLENGE.

Drop your dainty heads awhile,
Flowers rich and rare,
Ere you meet my lady's smile—
And find you are not fair.

Fly away, you little birds,
Tuneless throats of spring,
Lest you hear my lady's words—
And learn you cannot sing.

Call the clouds to cover you,
Far-off summer skies,
Or you'll see a deeper blue
Within my lady's eyes.

Things below, and things above,
All things everywhere,
Challenge not my lady love,
Or perish in despair.

THE STATE OF TRADE

Weekly Reviews of the Business Situation in the United States and Canada.

BRADSTREET'S REPORT.

New York, June 30.—Though seasonably quieter in many lines, the strength of the general business situation remains apparently unabated, and the half-year closes with a commercial and financial community contemplating very satisfactory returns in the recent past, and manifesting a tone of cheerful confidence regarding the outlook for the last half of 1899. In the volume of business done the first half of 1899 will certainly rank higher than the best hitherto experienced, and the notable rise in prices which was such a feature of the past spring has done much to reconcile traders to the admittedly small margins of profits which modern business operations tend toward making permanent. Touching this matter it might be added that staples prices are in a majority of instances well above quotations ruling for some years past, the general level, in fact, being the highest since early in 1893. The iron trade presents a very good outlook for the balance of the year at prices which guarantee large profits. The labor situation has been one of the most satisfactory features of the half-year's business, voluntary advances having raised the compensation of thousands of operatives, and labor troubles being conspicuous by their absence till toward the close of the period under review, when failures to agree upon wages and hours in the Colorado smelting industry and tin plate manufacturing rendered a large number of workmen idle. In the case of the latter industry, however, the suspension, it is hoped, will not exceed the usual summer shut-down, and the first six months the total number of failures have been 5,049, with liabilities $50,301,253. This is a decrease as regards number of 21 per cent. from last year, of 28 per cent. from 1897 and of 34 per cent. from 1895, while the liabilities are 20 per cent. smaller than they were a year ago, 46 per cent. less than in 1897, 52 per cent. less than 1896 and 10 per cent. less than 1892. In number failures are fewer this year than they have been for 17 years past, and the liabilities involved are smaller than in any year since 1881. That current embarrassments are well down to the normal is proved by the fact that assets this year constitute only 45.56 of the liabilities, against 50 per cent. last year, 57 per cent. in 1897 and 61 per cent. in 1893. Large failures were specially scarce during the second quarter of the half-year, and the only gain in number or in liabilities noted is in the Territories, while specially heavy decreases in liabilities are reported from the Middle and Western States.

Canadian trade, similarly to that of the United States, closes a very satisfactory season, all signs pointing to a very heavy volume of business at generally satisfactory prices. Summer influences naturally affect current trade, which is, on the whole, of seasonably light proportions. Montreal reports business conditions satisfactory, orders for dry goods at wholesale of very fair volume, retail business good, and crop prospects, as a whole, satisfactory, though rain is needed in some sections. British Columbia trade is reported quiet, with collections rather slow, while in the Maritime Provinces trade is light, while crops promise well. Toronto reports some improvement in winter wheat, but that the yield will be rather light. Reassuring business is good, and fall orders are increasing. Wool is selling freely on speculative basis, and American capitalists are investing freely in Canadian industries. The record of business generally during the year is a favorable one. Failures for the first six months, numbering only 684, with liabilities of $4,836,411, falling off 16 per cent. in number and of 20 per cent. in liabilities from last year's exceptionally light totals.

R. G. DUN &amp; CO'S REVIEW.

Failures for the second quarter of 1899 have been 2,080 in number, against 3,055 last year, with liabilities of $30,250,000, against $38,602,253 last year, and for the first half of 1899 failures were 4,552, against 6,766 last year, with liabilities of $48,711,000, against $71,246,383 last year. Demand for iron and steel seems to have no limit. Scarcity of pig has raised the price a dollar per ton for local coke at Chicago, $1.10 to $1.75 for Bessemer and $1.75 to $1.85 for anthracite. New iron at Philadelphia, with some iron selling above these quotations at all points for early delivery. Prices of pig average higher than at any other time since February, 1890, and prices of finished products higher than since March, 1891. Builders are readily obtainable. Bar and plate orders are refused quite largely because works are overworked. Sheet mills have much stronger demand at the west, but less at the east, and structural works report 25,000 tons required in two eastern states. The continued demand, in spite of rising prices, astonishes everybody. Coke ovens, 14,453 at work, output for the week, 181,852 tons, the heaviest week's work ever known at Connelville. Tin is stronger, at 26 cents, and copper at 18 cents for lake, but lead is dull, with hope of an end to the Colorado strike. Another industry passes all records—boot and shoe shipments from the east, 400,000 cases, exceeding those of any other month of any other year for four weeks, and the demands for speedy delivery show enormous distribution in all directions. New orders are large and several months ahead. Wool sales, 38,179,900 pounds, of which 29,765,900 are domestic, reveal a speculation scarcely less obtrusive than in 1897, when 41,497,000 lbs. were sold in the same weeks, against 23,768,200 in 1892, when the mills were well employed. Cotton mills are doing well, in spite of the fall in cotton, as the demand gives them enough to do at current prices, and weak spots in the trade are defended by the agreement between Fall River. Failures for the week have been 181 in the United States, against 254 last year, and 22 in Canada, against 15 last year.

Canadian reports show little change in the situation, though there is a larger volume of trade than a year ago. At St. John lumber shipments have been small, owing to higher freights, but business continues fair, with collections good. At Halifax business shows an increase over last year, with few failures, and prices in hardware and woolen goods are firm. Collections continue slow. Business at Quebec is quiet, with few failures and a hopeful situation. The movement at Montreal is better than the average, with collections fair to good, and the export of cheese and butter active. Money is stiff at five per cent. on call. The volume of business at Toronto in June is larger than in previous years, and the outlook is very encouraging. Manufacturers at Hamilton continue busy, but retail trade is quiet. Jobbers report fair sales and collections. Wholesale trade in groceries, shoes and dry goods has improved in volume at Winnipeg, and collections are easy. The trade at Victoria is rather quiet, but collections are satisfactory, and at Vancouver wholesale and retail trade improves with the advancing season.

RECORD OF A LIGHTNING STUDENT.

Curious Pranks Observed by a Weather Bureau Attache for Fourteen Years.

From the Washington Star.

An official attached to the Weather Bureau has kept, during the past fourteen years, all of the best authenticated accounts coming under his eye of the pranks of lightning throughout the world. One of the facts to be deducted from the great mass of stories about the electricity of the heavens is that lightning cannot be dodged or avoided. There are many accounts of lightning striking and killing timid women who had taken refuge under beds and in closets. In most of these cases it is shown that the persons who have remained in the rooms abandoned by the victims thus killed while fleeing safety have escaped unharmed. The State of Kansas seems to have the palm for the fierceness of its electrical storms, with all of the States of the Missouri and Mississippi valleys following close behind. An army officer riding from Leavenworth to Fort Leavenworth, Kan., in August, 1889, was shocked three times by bolts striking near him. He saw nine huge trees riven by separate bolts. His horse died later from the electrical shocks, while the officer himself suffered no injury of any importance. There are stories of three women, one in Kansas, one in Arkansas and the other in Missouri, having been struck dead by lightning while carrying infants in their arms, the young ones escaping unharmed in each case. A young man in Central Illinois was fooling with a mastiff dog during the progress of an electrical storm. The dog was struck dead by a bolt, nearly all of the hair being burned from its body, while the young man was only mildly shocked. A farmer was kissing his wife good-bye before starting for the county fair when he was struck dead by a bolt of lightning. His wife's hair was consumed by the same, but she was otherwise uninjured. Three drunken farm hands returning from a dance, all arm-in-arm, in eastern Nebraska, were overtaken by an electrical storm on the road. The man in the middle was killed by a bolt. His two companions were knocked senseless, but quickly recovered. They found themselves completely sober when they came to.

A letter carrier in Kansas City was handing a woman servant a letter at the basement door when a bolt of lightning struck between them. They were both rendered unconscious by the shock, but both were brought around all right. The letter was consumed. Two farm hands engaged in ploughing in a 160-acre plot in South Dakota were killed by lightning within three minutes. Three young kittens playing in a back yard in Independence, Mo., were struck by lightning. One of them was killed, the other two being only singed. A German named Blitzen (which means lightning in our language) was struck and killed by a bolt while talking about his queer name with a party of friends in a tavern in central Arkansas. The shop of a bird fancier in Chicago was struck by a bolt. Of two parrots in one cage one was killed and the other permanently blinded, besides being rendered deaf and dumb. A gang of circus hands were trying to round-up an escaped tiger in a Missouri town, when the tiger was struck dead by lightning. During a running race at an Illinois county fair, for which eleven horses were competing for the purse, the winning horse was struck dead instantly after having won the race by head on the wire. None of the other horses, most of which were close up at the finish, was hurt at all.

An Indiana fiddler was playing at a country dance, having a seat on the porch for the sake of the coolness thereof. His violin was knocked into kindling wood by a bolt of lightning, while he himself was only mildly shocked. A chicken hawk was struck dead while just in the act of swooping down upon a flock of hens on an Iowa farm. None of the chickens was hurt. A locomotive engineer was struck dead while seated in his cab making a short freight run in Colorado, his fireman not even being shocked. A dozen girls in an Ohio school were shocked by a bolt of lightning while seated in the parlor. The same bolt killed one of the teachers at the other end of the building. A Tennessee farmer was feeding his hogs state in the middle of the pen when he was hit by a bolt of lightning and instantly killed. The hogs were not injured at all. An elderly woman praying all alone in a little church in small Kentucky town was struck dead by lightning. The chapel was set on fire and consumed.

A Memphis woman was curling her hair with curling irons when a bolt of lightning came through the window and knocked the curling irons out of her hand. She was rendered unconscious. When she came to she found the curling irons at the far end of the room. They were almost red-hot, and had burned a hole in the carpet where they rested. A bolt of lightning penetrated a cyclone cellar in Kansas in which a family of four had taken refuge, and all were killed. A captive balloon, the largest ever manufactured, was struck by lightning in Chicago about eight years ago and two of the aeronauts were killed. Circus tents have been hit by lightning on numerous occasions, generally with a comparatively small loss of life, considering the size of the assemblages under the tents. A man who was struck by lightning in western New York State while walking through a forest had the outlines of two perfect trees indelibly stamped in red on his back, but he was not seriously hurt. To all intents and purposes the lightning branded him. A pressman employed by a job printing house in Omaha was struck by lightning and knocked into a mass of machinery which mangled him to death. A group of boys were playing ball on a field in an Ohio town when an electrical storm came up. The boy at the bat was knocked down by the shock of a bolt that struck near, but not seriously hurt. The boy who was catching was "taking them off the bat" right back of the boy at the bat, but he was not even shocked.

A Russian oil steamer was struck three times in succession within seven minutes on the Baltic Sea and was burned. None of the crew was hurt. A wheat ship on Lake Huron was struck twice amidships, almost in the same spot, the bolts coming within three minutes of each other. The second bolt set the ship on fire and she went down. A Washington girl living on Thirteenth street, near H, was struck by lightning while sitting at a sewing machine a good many years ago. The machine was placed at a low window, and the girl was knocked out of the window. She was not seriously hurt. Another Washington woman was shocked by a bolt of lightning while wielding a pair of scissors. She found that the bolt had so dulled the scissors that they would not cut. A bolt of lightning struck a small house in Falls Church, Va., completely tore away a partition separating two of the rooms, broke the rockers of an easy chair in which a young woman was seated and made a big gash in the floor in passing into the ground. None of the occupants of the house was so much as shocked. A man in Mississippi was cutting a chew of tobacco when a bolt of lightning struck his hands. They were so badly burned that they had to be amputated. Two quarrymen were preparing a fuse if a Georgia marble quarry when lightning struck the charge and they were both blown to fragments. The mate of an Atlantic coasting schooner was drunkenly inviting a sailor aloft engaged in shortening sail to come below and be cut to pieces, when a bolt of lightning struck the mate dead. A boy seated in a small boat that was attached to a sailing frigate on a sailing yacht on the South Carolina coast was killed by a bolt of lightning, while the yacht was not damaged. An unbelieving farmer in Indiana was engaged in a controversy with an itinerant minister when he was struck dead by lightning while making a blasphemous remark.

JUST LIKE SEA SERPENTS

Great Creatures of the Ocean That Have Sometimes Deceived Mariners.

Avalon, Cal., June 18.—"This is the time when the seaside resort gathers its energies together and often gives to the expectant world a story about the sea serpent," remarked a man interested in science. "Is there a sea serpent? Why, I certainly think so. I believe that there is some strange animal that comes up from the deep occasionally. Perhaps it may interest you to know how easily people are deceived and what things pass as sea serpents. Upon one occasion, some time ago, a vessel in the North Pacific sighted a singular animal, not five hundred feet away, which was pronounced a sea serpent by the men. When first observed, there was what appeared to be a long neck rising out of the water, ten feet into the air, supported by a head sharp and pointed. Behind this on the surface were seen irregular undulations or humps, supposed to be made by the animal as it moved along. Its length was estimated to be 100 feet, and some of the men saw it so distinctly that they went into particulars regarding its eye, its mane and other features. There was, however, a minority report. A single observer of some scientific knowledge recognized in the singular animal a gigantic cuttlefish, the evidently was fleeing from an enemy, and in its efforts to escape forced its body out of the water tall first, so that it resembled a neck. The tail fin of the giant squid resembles an arrow, and at a slight distance could readily be taken for a head. The giant squids range up to sixty or more feet in length, and the ten undulating and sucker-lined tentacles following behind give the appearance of the humps invariably reported in all sea serpent discoveries. I have seen a small squid flapping along the surface in this way to escape an enemy, its tail out of water, resembling perfectly a large eel, and it is easily seen how a larger one could be confused with a serpent-like animal.

"But whales have added to sea serpent lore there is little doubt in my mind. A supposed sea serpent was sighted by a ship in the Atlantic, and a most graphic description given of its enormous size, the tall neck and other peculiarities that always go with the typical sea serpent. The remarkable feature of it was that the serpent moved along the surface for twenty minutes, holding its head aloft, but having long bills like some of the air-breathing animals. This same creature was sighted by another vessel, this time a whaler, and finally it was captured and found to be a large blue whale, the extraordinary protuberance of its neck, which was seven or eight feet in length and a simple growth, the result of some injury to the head.

"But there is another whale that in its perfect form resembles a sea serpent and undoubtedly has been mistaken for one. It is called the Anodon. It is a long, slender creature, first discovered near Havre. It is toothless, but has long bills like some of the dolphins, and more remarkable yet, has a decided neck, so that the head appears to be more movable than in other whales. It is very rare, but no one can complain that the skeleton in the Paris Museum without being struck by its snake-like form. In its natural element this graceful creature might easily be mistaken for a sea serpent.

"Among the fishes are several that might be great deceivers. One, particularly the band or ribbon fish, specimens of which twenty-two feet long are common, while others nearly 100 feet are known to exist. Such a creature moving over the surface might be mistaken for a monster sea serpent. Some naturalists believe the sea serpent to be a deep-sea shark, which occasionally comes to the surface to astonish the beholder. This is justified by the discovery of Prof. Garman of a shark in Japanese waters six feet long and but four inches in diameter. Imagine such a shark twenty feet in length and you have a sea serpent that would correspond with many of the accounts given by seafarers."

ASTHMA CURED

After Twelve Years' Suffering—Toronto Physician Advised Leaving Her Home to Go to Manitoba. Clarke's Kola Compound Cured.

Mrs. McTaggart, 80 Vaneau street, Toronto, writes: "I have been troubled with asthma and bronchitis for twelve years, which gradually grew worse each year in spite of the hundreds of dollars my husband has spent with several doctors, and almost every remedy we could procure, which only afforded temporary relief. For the past two years I could not lie on my left side, and during the past year previous to taking Clarke's Kola Compound the asthma became so severe that I had not had a full night's sleep, and during most of that time we had a doctor in attendance. We gave up several doctors, as I was becoming no better, and the last doctor, after about two months' treatment, told me he could do nothing for me, and advised me to go to the country, to dry climate. We heard of Clarke's Kola Compound being a cure for asthma, and before taking this remedy made several inquiries from those who had taken it, and in each case found the result so satisfactory that we resolved to try it. After taking the first bottle I became much better, and began to sleep well at nights. Since taking the third bottle I have not felt the slightest symptoms of my former trouble. I have during the past six months gained nearly 20 pounds in flesh and feel perfectly healthy in every way. I can assure you that I will do all in my power to induce any sufferer from this terrible disease to try it."

GIGANTIC BARGAIN SALE

OF FINE

..Ready-to-Wear Clothing..

Four years ago we determined on opening up our London Branch with an ambition and determination to do the lion's share of clothing trade of this city. This ambition and determination was born of a thorough knowledge of our business. We clearly saw that to put our goods and prices in competition with any concern here was to establish beyond a question our superiority, while our position as manufacturers enables us to give customers the very highest grade clothing at the lowest possible prices (no middleman's profit to exact.)

To-day We Start

One of the most gigantic Bargain Sales of up-to-date, high-grade, ready-to-wear Clothing ever held in Canada. We come out boldly with our prices, representing exactly goods to be found in our store and challenge competition. We plunge right in and lay claim that we are to-day presenting a list of the greatest sacrificing prices ever made on this continent, right in the height of the season for goods you need now.
