OHRONICLE COLONIST AND WEEKLY

Reform. RRINS LEA

If it were within the power of the people of this Colony to elect their Governor every three years, is it at all probable that they would succeed in obtaining perfection ? Would they aim at it? or would they deem it impossible to arrive at so desirable an end, and content themselves with something below mediocrity, this is scarcely probable; and yet we are well aware that the best men have not always been elected to high offices in those countries where the elective system has prevailed. Accustomed as we are to a very different system, it seems foreign to our hathre to pursue the course which our neighbors in the States have adopted with regard to their executive officers, and yet there wonld probably not be any material them to give their time or attention A GREAT LEAP .- A horse owned by Cap to public business. It is the loose and careless way in which all things, which ought to be under the immediate supervision of Government, are done, and the want of energy amongst the Executive, that, beyond all else, leads the people *of the Colony, who are obliged to think and to work for their living, to desire reform and retrenchment. 639 Gra
