The Bermondsey vestry in England has decided that a tradesman who had sold a cat as a rabbit should be exonerated from all blame, because the cat, one of a parcial of genuine rabbits imported from Ostend, was ought and sold in good faith as a pecimen of the latter animal. The purhaser had taken a fancy to that particular abbit, but afterward took it back, where you the vendor took it to Dr. Dixon (the local medical officer) for examination. It was then found to be a cat.

For a year past a very bitter feul has existed between the "Austrians" and the "Russians" of Servis about the deposition of the archbishop of Belgrade. Archbishop Michael was the chief of the "Russian" party, and was deposed for his political leanings by the "Austrian" advisers of Prince Milan. This encroachment on the spiritual power was resented as an outage by the orthodox throughout the Slavonic world, and the dispute was referred to be intended by and against the Servian government, to the intense delight of the "Russians" and the dismay and disgust of the "Austrian" at the metropolitan of Constantinople.
