Poetry.

The Unseen. When eyes are bright with hope, the skies are blue, the sea is mother-of-pearl, the world is gay.

When eyes are dim with tears, the skies are gray, the sea is foaming floods, the world is cold.

When eyes are closed to outward things, in sleep's dream-land, glories meet their gaze.

When eyes are open to the world, in life's bright day, visions of hope-filled noons and love-filled nights.

When eyes are turned to heaven, in prayer's sweet hour, the angels' voices seem to sing around us.

When eyes are turned to earth, in love's sweet hour, the heart's desire seems to be fulfilled.

When eyes are turned to God, in faith's true hour, the soul's longing seems to be satisfied.

When eyes are turned to man, in duty's true hour, the heart's desire seems to be fulfilled.

When eyes are turned to God, in faith's true hour, the soul's longing seems to be satisfied.

The Paper Age.

STRONG AND DURABLE ARTICLES MADE FROM PAPER PULP - GRADUALLY DISPLACING IRON AND STEEL IN MANY WAYS.

We have had the golden age and the iron age and various other ages, but the present, says an exchange, will probably be known as the wooden or paper age.

Paper dress material masquerading as silk is the latest invention in the paper line and threatens to drive the silk out of business.

Enthusiastic paper manufacturers say the new woman and the new man will dine off paper dishes. It is not improbable that the hat of the future will be an indestructible paper affair.

Parasols of paper do not seem to have been invented yet, but articles and trunks of paper are common enough. The paper trunk, despite its frail sound, is the despair of the baggage smasher. It refuses to smash.

So do paper car wheels. They have been in use for years on some of the most important railroads in this country. It must be supposed that the wheels are made entirely of paper.

The railroad train of the future is likely not only to have paper wheels, but to run on paper rails. These are made entirely of paper, and are found in molds under great pressure.

Greater durability and lightness are claimed for these wheels, but don't let the idea of lightness lead you to get under one. If the paper possibly have use for one.

Paper horsehoes are another European invention. Among the advantages claimed for them is that they maintain a rough surface, enabling the horse to get a good grip on the smooth pavements.

Paper-maché ceilings and wall decorations are very fashionable. They may look like leather or brocade or a thousand and one handsome things, but they are not.

The house furnishing departments in the big shops furnish interesting evidence of the extent to which paper enters into ordinary life.

Paper pulps and tubes are appreciated by the suburban dweller, who has the "paper" pulp kept off enough to be worked.

Each pack, barker, baskets and butter tubs are made of paper, and almost every thing under the sun, which used to be made in pretty blue and white bags; oatmeal, crackers, ice cream, candy, shoes, corsets, dresses - is sent home in a paper box.

Get Together. The merchants of every town will find it advantageous to "get together" occasionally and discuss the local business situation, for very often they will discover how some things that are working against them can be remedied.

If all the business men of the town can be interested so much the better. We often drift into a rut, and become prejudiced and opinionated. Circulation among our neighbors will often show us our mistaken notions and we will become more charitable in our estimates.

The business men of every community have the power to do much for their locality if they will drop rivalries long enough to do it. Men are like nations - when they come together they soon discover that the "other fellow" is not so bad as they had pictured him; that is, generally speaking, this is the case. The business men of the city work together along these lines, why shouldn't the business men of the country?

We know of some of the best business men of this character in bringing good results. It is not sufficient in the argument to attract business men in towns where this operation has never been tried! It is a good thing to look the ground over occasionally.

How to Make Money. Thomas Edison, the great inventor, says: "When you want to make money give people something they want. They will pay you money for it. If I wanted to make a little profit I would sit down to think what I need next. It may be such a simple thing as a new kind of soap, or a new style of fine material. If a man comes around with them I will buy of him."

Having stated this point for myself, I ask some one else what he wants. "Could you give me a new wooden footstool?" I ask him, "if you sold for 10 cents, and how many would you take?" After I have got his answer I would go on asking people until I found out the needs of 20 men. Then I would strike an average.

I knew a man who made a snug fortune selling Dutch mustard by the pint, and another who is trying to get over the $100,000 mark patching shoes in business offices, where for a "quarter" he puts on a patch, sews rips, and even heels and soles. He should be.

That is the secret of getting rich. Give people something they want, and they will pay money to get it.

Healthy Public Sentiment. Nothing is so productive of good results in the operations of what we term the body politic as a healthy public sentiment. It is the basis of all good government, and the administration of the laws. It is the body politic which a healthy digestion is the greatest remedy in the world for chronic indigestion or dyspepsia. A Cherry-Faced Old Lady.

HOW HER LIFE'S STORY WAS CASUALLY REVEALED.

A few days ago I found myself seated in a street car beside an old lady whom I had frequently seen. She was a bright, cherry-faced, energetic woman, despite the fact that the frosts of more than seventy winters had left their touch upon her brow.

I was just wondering what influence in her life had brought that contented look to her face and preserved her carriage, when she sitting opposite, arose, crossed over, and shaking hands with her, said:

"Remember you?" replied he; could I ever forget the best friend of my boyhood?"

"Miss Gordon," he proceeded in low and earnest tones - but not so low that I could not hear - "I have longed for years to meet you, to thank you again for the kind, encouraging words you so often gave me. I have always remembered you, and then, after you left I determined to do my duty as you had pointed it out to me, and never do anything that you might disapprove. It is to that I owe my success in life."

The old lady's eyes grew moist as she listened to the man's fervent words, but she only shook her head again and said:

"Then followed a conversation in which Tom and his friend interchanged the history of their lives during the time since last they had seen one another. He then, 'the most unmanageable boy,' as he laughingly quoted; she a persevering, sympathetic, kindly teacher.

I thought I knew the secrets of her cheerfulness and content. Her life had evidently been replete with noble deeds and high aims. She had done what she could.

I left the car in the knowledge that there are still in the world, despite all the cynics would have us believe, trusting hearts and helping hands, kindly words and deeds and human gratitude.

A Great Funeral. THE BURIAL OF THE BROTHERLY LADS AND YOUNG WINFIELD AT OTTAWA.

Ottawa, Aug. 2. - The funeral of the three sons of Mr. G. H. Brophy and the only son of Rev. E. W. Winfield, lately the Governor-General's chaplain, all drowned in Deception's Lake on Friday last, took place this morning.

Two services were held - that for the Brophy boys at St. Joseph's Roman Catholic Church, and that for Percy Winfield at St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, where Mr. Winfield is acting pastor in the absence for the summer of Rev. Mr. Herridge. At St. Andrew's Rev. Mr. Moore and Armstrong conducted the service. St. Joseph's full requiem mass was sung. The procession from St. Andrew's Church proceeded to St. Joseph's and thence the united funerals moved slowly, first to the Protestant and thence to the Catholic cemetery. There was an immense concourse, the funeral party being nearly two miles long. Flags were at half mast throughout the city. The floral tributes exceeded anything known in the city, even at Sir John Macdonald's death, and the recourses of the florists finally gave out. There were eight hundred floral tributes, the majority of them personal friends of the deceased boys.

Book Notices. Not since "The Anglonormans" has there been so clever a society satire as Henry Fuller's "Pillars" which is published in the August Cosmopolitan. The problem involved in woman's use of the bicycle as so startling and so numerous, under the rapid evolution of this art, that one welcomes a careful discussion of the subject by one so clever and so able a writer as Mr. Fuller. Rice. Rice is unquestionably the grain most extensively used as food throughout the world. Hundreds of millions of people obtain their nourishment from it, and its consumption is constantly increasing. It is the principal diet of at least one-third of the human race, forming the chief food of the native population of India, China, Japan, Madagascar, many parts of Africa, and, in fact, almost all eastern nations. The Burmese and Siamese are the greatest consumers of it. A Malay burrow gets through 50 pounds a month, a Burmese or Siamese 40 pounds in the same period. The eastern nations also chiefly obtain their nourishment from rice which is the principal grain distilled in Siam, Japan, and China. Saki, or rice beer, is produced in Japan to the extent of 150,000,000 gallons annually. The yield of rice is five times as heavy as that of wheat, the crop yearly, giving from 80 to 100 bushels per acre. India not only raises enough of this crop for 200,000,000 people but exports 100,000,000 tons every year.

Everywhere We Go. We find some one who has been cured by Hood's Sarsaparilla, and people on all hands are praising this great medicine for what it has done for them and their friends. Take in time Hood's Sarsaparilla prevents return of illness by keeping the blood pure and all the organs in a healthy condition. It is the great blood purifier.

Hood's Pills become the favorite cathartic with every one who tries them. 25c. per box.

In Canada, so the published statistics state, 68,000 people die in the year 1891, and of these about 29,000 die under five years of age. Whether 1891 was an exceptional year in the number of deaths which occurred, there is no information given, but the number of deaths which occurred in 1891 is almost appalling when one comes to realize what it means. If no person should die under 45 years, save as the result of disease or violence, the figures given above reveal a state of affairs which ought to be enquired into. That a common-sense 1891 was a parallel year with other years.

NEAR THE DARK VALLEY.

A YOUNG GIRL RESCUED FROM AN EARLY GRAVE.

PALE, LETHARGIC AND WEAK, THE VICTIM OF A HACKING COUGH, SHE WAS APPARENTLY GOING INTO A RAPID DECLINE - A CASE OF DEEP INTEREST TO EVERY MOTHER IN THE LAND.

It is now a common thing in this locality to hear people acknowledge the wonderful benefit they have derived from the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and it is not to be wondered at that the druggists find the sale of this remarkable medicine so large and so constantly increasing. We could give any number of instances of splendid results following the use of Pink Pills, but so many of these are well known to many of our readers as to need recitation. However, now and again a case of more than usual interest arises, and we will give the particulars of one - these for the benefit of the public at large. Some years ago a young girl of 14, a daughter of Mr. Leon Dore, a well known and respected resident of Cornwall, began to show serious symptoms, and caused her mother great anxiety. She was just at the critical period of her life, and medical aid was called in and everything done to help her. But it appeared to be useless, and week after week she continued to grow worse, until it was evident she was fast going into a decline. A hacking cough set in, and the poor girl, who was formerly plump and healthy looking, with bright cheeks, began to waste away, and in a few months was merely a shadow of her former self. Her mother had about lost all hope of saving the young girl's life, the doctors being apparently unable to do anything to check the ravages of the medicine which was being length the mother's attention was directed to Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and she decided to give them a trial. A box was taken, and, as the girl did not show any visible signs of improvement, her mother was on the point of discontinuing the medicine when a neighbor persuaded her that a single box was not a fair trial, and induced her to continue the Pills. By the time a second box was completed there was some improvement noticeable and there was joy in that small household, and so more pennance was needed to continue the treatment. The use of the Pink Pills was then continued for some months, by which time the young girl had completely recovered her health and strength. To-day she is the very picture of health, and the color in her cheeks is as bright as it was before her illness commenced. To those who saw her during the days of her illness and suffering, her recovery is little short of a miracle. Mrs. Dore freely gave the Standard reporter permission to publish an account of her daughter's illness and recovery. She said she could not find words strong enough to express the gratitude for the miraculous cure this great life-saving medicine had effected in her daughter's case, and she hoped her testimony might be of some benefit to leading others similarly afflicted to give them a trial.

After writing the above, the reporter again called on Mrs. Dore and read it to her, asking her if it was entirely correct. She replied that she would like to give even stronger expressions to her appreciation of this wonderful medicine. She further said that Pink Pills had greatly helped herself. She had been suffering from the effects of an attack of grippe, and the Pink Pills had restored her to health. Her daughter also expressed her gratitude for the extraordinary change this medicine had wrought in her health.

In the case of young girls who are pale or sallow, listless, troubled with a fluttering or palpitation of the heart, weak and easily fatigued, it is well to be on hand in taking a course of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, which will speedily enrich the blood, and bring a rosy glow to the cheeks. These pills are a positive cure for all troubles arising from a vitiated condition of the blood or a shattered nervous system. They are a specific for troubles peculiar to females, correcting irregularities, and all forms of weakness.

Manufactured by Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockton, Mass., and sold in bottles by the dozen or hundred (50 cents a box, or six boxes for $2.50). May be had of all druggists or direct by mail from Dr. Williams' Medicine Company at either address.

Bodies Found in a Cave. POSSIBLE FATE OF CREW OF SCHOONER AMBROSE H. KNIGHT.

Glenora, Mass., Aug. 8. - The finding of 18 dead bodies in a small cave on the southwest coast of Greenland by the barque Sirocco, which arrived at Philadelphia from Sirocco a few days since, is thought to furnish a clue to the possible fate of the crew of the schooner Ambrose H. Knight, of this port, which sailed from this port March 12 of last year for the Iceland fishing grounds and has never been heard from afterwards.

The bodies were found in a cave on a wild and desolate part of the coast, being huddled together, and it was at first thought that the men belonged to the Peary exploring party, but the latter was supposed to be hundreds of miles from where the bodies were discovered. It is now thought that the bodies were those of the crew of the schooner Ambrose H. Knight, and that the vessel was wrecked or disabled and blown on the Greenland coast, the men encamping in the above, where they either starved or froze to death.

A High Endorsement. Rev. Alfred Ebenham, Chaplain, Oct. - "While Rector of St. Mary's Church, Montreal, I received, in answer to a request several months ago, a package of Hood's Sarsaparilla, which I used for the benefit of my wife who had been troubled with dyspepsia for a number of years. I am glad to say that she is completely cured by its use, although she shared the same package among friends. You may rest assured that we conscientiously recommend this remedy, which has been so effective in her case, while other remedies have failed to permanently cure her."

The foregoing should convince the most skeptical of the wonder-working power of K. D. C.
