C. L. PIGGOTT, QUEEN STREET

PORTUGAL'S YOUNG KING

From Being a Careless Boy, Manuel Has Become Grave and Sedate.

One of the questions interesting Europe at present is who will be chosen to wed King Manuel of Portugal. England has authoritatively denied that Princess Alexandra of Fife, King Edward's granddaughter, is to marry him, and Germany denies that the late Princess Victoria Louise has been betrothed to Manuel. As for the youthful King of Portugal himself, he is a fine, expressive face with dark, heavily shadowed eyes and very black hair. In physique he is slight but erect, and although three or four years ago he was accounted a delicate boy now he seems sturdy and vigorous.

The greatest love and confidence exists between Queen Amelie and King Manuel. They are more like good friends and companions than mother and son. Together they work for the state. Together they walk, drive and read. Queen Amelie is still beautiful, though since the tragedy which deprived her of husband and son she has aged somewhat and lost the vivacity which made her considered the "most charming Queen of Europe."

King Manuel takes his duties very earnestly. He is not as dashing or picturesque as the eccentric Alfonso of Spain, but is far more serious and painstaking and has arranged his life in such a manner that no duty is neglected. Rising usually at 7, he has early breakfast, then goes to greet his mother. After a talk with her he takes a walk in the shady park of the Necessidades Palace, with his two favorite dogs, Box, a boarhound, and Tago, an Irish terrier. A little later he takes a turn with the foils or a ride, or plays a few sets of tennis. At 10 he has his bath and then begins the work of the day.

He first goes through his correspondence with his private secretary, the Marquis de Lavradio, and in this task his mother sometimes helps and advises. Then he receives professors from Lisbon and Coimbra universities and pursues his studies with them till the second breakfast, at which meal the members of the royal family reunite.

At 2 the day's receptions and private audiences begin. These over, the King and Queen go motoring out into the country, and sometimes the King leaves the car and walks, talking with the passing peasants and country folk. After dinner King Manuel's recreation is bridge with his mother and two others till 11 o'clock. Then when all the ladies and gentlemen of the court have retired the King returns to his study and remains there working till late.

A Visit in Sections.

When Harriet Beecher Stowe was alive Mark Twain, who lived near her in Hartford, had a way of running in to converse with her and her daughters, often in a somewhat negligent costume, greatly to the distress of Mrs. Clemens.

One morning as he returned from the Stowes sans necktie Mrs. Clemens met him at the door with the exclamation: "There, Sam; you must have been over to the Stowes again without a necktie! It's really disgraceful the way you neglect your dress." Her husband said nothing, but went to his room. A few minutes later Mrs. Stowe was summoned to the door by a messenger, who presented her with a small box neatly done up. She opened it and found a black silk necktie, accompanied by the following note:

"Here is a necktie. Take it out and look at it. I think I stayed half an hour this morning. At the end of that time will you kindly return it, as it is the only one I have." "Mark Twain."

Serviceable and Cheap.

The old gentleman showed a good deal of displeasure. "It seems to me," he exclaimed testily, "rather presumptuous for a youth in your position to ask for my daughter's hand! Can you advance any good reason why I should give my consent?" "Certainly, sir," promptly replied the suitor. (He refrained from adding, "Because I suit 'er," being a respectable young gentleman.) "What?" pressed the old man.

"I am comparatively modest and economical in my personal expenditure," replied the suitor, "and I think, sir, that, altogether, you will find me less costly to maintain than almost any other son-in-law you could select."—London Answers.

An Admission.

It was at a little northwestern town in New South Wales. A traveling Englishman stood on the veranda of the public house watching the sun go down across the Black Soil plains in a splendor of purple and gold. "By Jove," he exclaimed to an impassive bushman who was lounging against a post, "that's gorgeous, isn't it?" The bushman slanted his head a little and looked critically at the glowing west. "Not bad," he drawled, "not bad—fer a little place like Boggabri."

Two Texts.

A church in Scotland being vacant, two candidates offered to preach, their names being Adam and Lov. The last named preached in the morning, taking for his text, "Adam, where art thou?" The congregation was much pleased and edified. Mr. Adam preached in the evening, taking for his text, "Lo (Low), here am I!" The inopportune and the sermon gained him the church.

More bread and Better bread
—And the Reason for it

A STRONG FLOUR can only be made from strong wheat. Manitoba hard wheat is acknowledged the strongest in the world—and that is the kind used for Purity Flour.

But that's not all. Every grain of this wheat contains both high-grade and low-grade properties. In separating the high-grade parts from the low-grade the Western Canada Flour Mills put the hard wheat through a process so exacting that not a single low-grade part has the remotest chance of getting in with the high-grade.

Of course this special process is more expensive to operate but it means a lot to Purity flour users—that's why we use it.

It means that Purity Flour is made entirely of the highest-grade flour parts of the strongest wheat in the world.

It means a high-class, strong flour and therefore yields "more bread and better bread."

Purity may cost a little more than some flours, but results prove it the cheapest and most economical after all.
