t as we eakers, y some the oar

. XXIII.

of the hed it. h bend of the own," y quiet ch was

of the took a ntinued est.

h, they rowing, ferry-getting s doing teer the erwards d them of the hat the house, ction of f above out to smitted ny story s sister. was the A concise account of the particulars of the transaction, beautifully engrossed on vellum, and signed by his Grace the Duke of Northumberland, as President of the Society, accompanied each medallion. I need scarcely add, that the old and widowed mother of these young people, who lives with them and is wholly dependent upon them for her support, was a proud woman that day.