HENRY HOWARD.

CHAPTER XI. THE OFFER, AND ITS RECEPTION. Great works do oft yield grievous accidents, Which stir up people's rage beyond intents.

As soon as Mr. Milles left the room, Mrs. Ford commenced a long statement to Mrs. Marles of this business of the endowment, concluding by telling her of the vicar's proposition, and the loss of presentation if his offer was accepted. Mrs. Marles listened very patiently to all her friend had to say, and then remarked that it was one of the most aggravating things she had ever heard of. "To think Mrs. Ford," continued the lady-"to think of the trouble you have had, the pains you have taken to build this church, and now, after all, the consecration to be refused by the Bishop-it is very aggravating; and, between ourselves, I dont think the Bishop deserves much credit for his conduct; it is certainly very uncivil of his lordship-very uncivil indeed."

"And what do you think," asked Mrs. Ford, "of this proposal of the vicar's?" "What do I think of it?" repeated the widow "why, I think it is one of the most cunning and disgraceful things I ever heard of in my life. There he has been sitting quietly, watching all we have been about, and never attempting to put a finger to the business at all; excusing himself, forsooth, becaue Caton required a church more than Weston, and because he was pledged to undertake it first. He has been sitting still doing nothing, under this paltry excuse, and has watched us until our church was built, knowing very well, I'll be bound to say, that we should not be able to get it consecrated, and thinking that he was sure to have it in his own hands. Oh, he's a the patronage; but, indeed, there are so many pervery deep man; I've suspected him long ago, in spite of his great professions, and now, you see, it is all its falling into his hands." coming out.'

"And you really think," asked Mrs. Ford, " that he knew all the while that we could not get it consecrated unless we gave the patronage to him?"

"Do I?" repeated Mrs. Marles; "do I? Yes, that I do; and should not at all be surprised if the Bishop is at the bottom of it too. You may depend upon it, that the Bishop and the Vicar have been playing a deep game into one another's hands; this is too good a thing for these clergymen to let slip through their fingers so easily. No, no; it has been understood between them. I thirk it one of the shabbiest, dirtiest, most cunning, disgraceful things, I ever knew." Ann Croft, who had heard the whole conversation that had taken place between the Vicar and Mrs. Ford, but had hitherto made no remark, here observed, that she thought Mrs. Marles must be mistaken. "The Vicar's character," she said, "was so well known, that no one could suspect him of being guilty of such deceit as was here imputed to him. He gave ter all, it turns out that we have not the power to give his reasons for not assisting in the erection of this new church, because he was engaged in erecting ano- Mr. Dwyer will think we have treated him very unther where is was more wanted; it could not be supposed that he was aware there would be no endowment forthcoming when it was required, as he knew nothing about the money affairs: indeed, I believe," she troubles." added, "he had never been consulted in the business at all.

"Very kind of you, Miss Croft, no doubt," replied Mrs. Marles, with a sneer; "very kind, to take the laughing at you. But as to the other point; I really vicar's part; but if you were to talk for a week, you do not see what you can do. It will be a sad thing would never convince me that he is not at the bottom to lose Dwyer; he is such a fine preacher, and we of this refusal of the Bishop's, and has known all have all set our minds on him; but it can't be along what it would come to. I am dreadfully vexed helped." about it-dreadfully; and I only wish I knew how to defeat their plans. Don't you think," she continued, addressing her neighbour, "that you could persuade

Mr. Ford to endow it?" "What!" asked Mrs. Ford, in great surprise, and rather angrily, "endow it with a 1000l.? No, that he won't: he has given 50l. to the building, and I'm sure I've laboured night and day besides; and now to expect that he should give 1000l. more! really, Mrs. per how we are to keep up appearances. Mr. Ford, Well, I really do not see what can be done." you know, is now in a very responsible position; he station in life. It is all very well for people who have of." few expenses, for single people and widows" (here Mrs. Ford looked very pointedly at her friend), "to give large sums of money for these purposes; but with us, with our family and onr expenses, the thing is im-

"Well," continued the widow, "I did not mean to say any thing unkind, Mrs. Ford. I would not offend the Zouch's having built and endowed the parish church; and then you remarked, it would be so nice to have it said that the Fords had done the same: and so I thought you might wish to persuade Mr. Ford to do it."

"It would be nice," replied Mrs. Ford, rather softening at this allusion, "very nice. Yes, I should like that very much. Many of the ancestors of the old families in the neighbourhood did, I believe, length Mrs. Ford perceived that he began to waver; build and endow churches, and it would be very nice and, pushing her advantage drove him from his poto do the same; but then, you see, Mrs. Marles, it is sitions one by one, till she extorted a promise that he a very expensive thing-1000l. is a great sum of would consider the matter carefully over. a man a good deal of importance in the county; the was determined upon carrying her point; so he gave Werdens, for instance, had a living to give away the other day. Why, there were dozens of clergymen off to the Bishop, to acquaint his lordship with Mr. applying for it; and I heard as a fact from my cousin Sir Toby, who is a very intimate friend of the Earl of tion might take place on the day first fixed, and that Duberly, that his lordship had applied personally to he, with his chaplain, would, on the occasion, pay his Mr. Werden for the living for one of his sons,-for one of his sons, Mrs. Ford! Now just fancy the Earl of Duberly applying to Mr. Ford in a similar

"It would be very nice indeed," observed Mrs. Ford.

"Yes," replied the widow; "and think what consequence it would give you in the county, and the invitations you would have to Duberly Manor! Every body has to purchase their first step into high society; and I really think that you could not do it in a much cheaper way than this."

"Well," continued Mrs. Ford, "I'll tell you what I will do-I will speak to Mr. Ford on the subject, and then he can please himself. There are many things to be considered both ways. It certainly would be very nice to have a living to give away to endowment, Mr. Milles' handsome offer was declined. whom one liked; but then 1000l. is a great deal of money; and, besides this, we could not give it to their departure, "this is nice: we shall have the con-Lord Duberly, for we have promised it to Mr. Dwyer." secration on the very day on which it was fixed; we

"And what if you have?" said the widow, turning shall have the Bishop, and we shall have dear Mr. her attack. "You like Mr. Dwyer, don't you?"

"Yes," replied Mrs. Ford, "very much indeed." "Your husband likes him?"

"Yes, very much too." "Now, mark my words," said Mrs. Marles very emphatically; "if the vicar gets the appointment, you may whistle for Mr. Dwyer. The vicar does not like popular preachers; and he'll no more give the living to Mr. Dwyer than he will give it to me. Tell Mr. Ford this, and at the same time beg him to guess what kind of a man we are likely to have at the new hurch: do this, and I fancy he won't let the vicar ave the appointment—that is, if he can help it."

At this point Mrs. Marles rose up to go; when ann Croft retired to her own room, to muse upon the have the appointment—that is, if he can help it." Ann Croft retired to her own room, to muse upon the way in which modern church-livings are sometimes

This was too good an opportunity to be lost; so Mrs. Ford at once introduced the subject of her morning's conversation with Mr. Milles, explaining the offer he had made. "And a very handsome offer it is," said her husband interrupting her. "Yes; handsome indeed," remarked Mrs. Ford; if he had not some reason in the back ground for making it. You are not perhaps aware, Mr. Ford," she continued, "that the person who endows this new church will have the appointment of an incumbent.-Mr. Milles' offer is therefore doubtless very handsome:—as Mrs. Marles says, he has been quietly watching all our exertions, in which he has not taken the least share, waits till the church is finished, and then steps in to reap all the benefit."

"But my dear," exclaimed Mr. Ford, "surely the patronage of this new church is not the thing to tempt a man of Mr. Milles' character to do what is

"As to Mr. Milles' character," replied the lady, sneeringly, "I can say nothing; but this I know, that the patronage of the church is a very good thing, and such as nobody would lose, if he could get it. You know well enough my dear," she continued, in a blander and softer tone, "these are the things which give men so much importance, and afford so many advantages to one's own family. Mrs. Marles told me only just now, that Mr. Werden had a living to give away lately, and that dozens of gentlemen applied to him for it; and that even Lord Duberly went and asked him to give it to his son. I can assure you that other people do not treat those things so lightly; I consider it a capital thing for Mr. Milles, if he gets sons who would be glad of it, that I have little fear of

Mrs. Ford recapitulated all she had said as to the additional consequence, &c. they would gain; and then dwelt very strongly upon the disappointment Mr. Dwyer would experience if not presented; finishing all by drawing a pleasant picture of the two families of you for the world: but you spoke the other day of the Fords and the Zouch's handed down to posterity as the co-benefactors of Preston. Mr. Ford was a man not always easily overcome; in many of the changes that had taken place in his establishment he had struggled hard, and one or two, among which was the point of the two crests, he had carried. It must not therefore be supposed that on the present occasion he vielded very easily. The conflict was long, and for some time doubtful. At did for several days; at length he felt convinced that "It certainly is," said Mrs. Marles; "but it gives there was nothing for it but to endow, for Mrs. Ford a reluctant consent. This done, letters were posted Ford's intentions, and requesting that the consecrapromised visit to Weston Hall. By the same post, another letter was forwarded to Mr. Dwyer, announcing to him Mr. Ford's generous proposal with regard to the living, and requesting him to be at Weston in time for the consecration, where, the note added, he would meet the Bishop, and where Mr. and Mrs. Ford hoped he would take up his quarters until he found a residence that suited him. This done, Mrs. Marles, and one or two other neighbours were invited to spend the evening at Weston, where the subject of the consecration was fully discussed, and Mr. Ford's liberal offer excited the warmest applause. A subscription-list was opened among the ladies, to purchase a full suit of canonicals for Mr. Dwyer; and a polite note forwarded to the vicar, intimating that as Mr. Ford had undertaken to provide the necessary "Well now," said Mrs. Ford to her friends before

ONE MILLION AND A HALF ACRES OF LAND. TO BE DISPOSED OF IN CANADA WEST, (LATE UPPER CANADA.) NO MONEY IS REQUIRED DOWN.

TO OLD SETTLERS, EMIGRANTS, AND OTHERS. THE CANADA COMPANY have for disposal about the stated quantity of Land mentioned in the Printed Lists of this date. They consist of Lots of from 100 to 200 Acres each, scattered throughout the Country, and most of them surrounded by Old Settlements: of Blocks, containing from 1,000 to 10,000 Acres, situated in the Western District: and of a very extensive and important Territory, of 800,000 Acres, in the Huron District, situated Ninety Miles South of Owen's Sound.

The Lands are offered on the most Liberal Terms, and are highly beneficial to the Settlers. By this arrangement, the Company dispose of their Lands by way of LEASE, FOR A TERM OF TEN YEARS;

No Money Being Required Down,

The Rents payable 1st February, in each year, being less than the Interest upon the Price. Thus, for example, suppose the Purchase Money for 100 Acres to be 12s. 6d. per Acre, which is £62 10s., the Rent required thereon is £3; full power being secured to the Settler to Purchase the Land he occupies, at any time during the Term, upon Payment of the Price stated in Lease. The Company will make a Liberal Allowance upon the Price, according to the period when the Settler pays, by anticipation, the amount, and thereby save himself from feather Rent Price.

Liberal Allowance upon the Frice, according to the period when the Settler pays, by anticipation, the amount, and thereby satisfaction further Rent.

These Lands, and others not included in the Leasing List, are also to be disposed of upon the Company's former plan, viz.—for Cash down, or by One-fifth Cash, and the balance in five equal Annual Instalments, with Interest.

In order to afford every assistance to industrious and provident Settlers, the Canada Company will receive any sum, no matter how small the amount may be, for which their Lessee Settlers may not have immediate want, on Deposit—allowing Interest at the rate of Six per cent. per annum for the same; but it is clearly understood, that the full amount with interest accrued, shall at all times be at the disposal of the Settler, without notice. For this purpose the Company have opened an Account, which is termed "Settler's Provident or Savings Bank Account," thus affording to the provident Settler, every facility for accumulating sufficient money to purchase the Freehold of the land which he leases, whenever he chooses to do so, within the term of Ten years; but should bad Harvests, or any other unforeseen misfortunes visit him, he has always the amount deposited, with Interest accrued, at his disposal to meet them. The advantages of this account are confined to the Company's actual Lessee Settlers, during the continuance of their Leases.

REDITTANCE OF MONIES.

Anxious to assist Settlers, and others desirous of sending home Monies to their Friends, the Company will engage to place the amounts in the hands of the parties for whom they are destined, free of all cost and expense, thus saving the Settlers all care and trouble in the business. The Company last year resultted to the United Kingdom and Germany nearly £3,000, in 329 sums, averaging about £9 each: by this means, and during the last four months, they have already sent home a similar amount. The arrangements of the Company for this purpose are so complete, that the sums are placed in the parties hands in Europe, free from any deduction, within about three days from the arrival of the Mail in England, accompanied by every kind of useful information upon Canada.

The Company will also remit any sum of money from Europe to Canada, by Letters of Credit upon their Commissioners in the Province, free of expense, thus insuring the benefit of the premium of Exchange to the Emigrant, and likewise saving him from the inconvenience and too frequent loss arising from bringing his money with him in coin.

The Company, with a view to accommodate Emigrants having no immediate use for their funds, will allow Interest, at Four per cent. per annum, for Money left with them for any period not less than Ninety Days,—the money, however, being always at the Emigrant's disposal, without notice.

Every kind of information, were Carada and Alexadore, the way would be a saving him from the inconvenience and expense the company of the province of the emigrant of the e without notice.

Every kind of information upon Canada, and directions, that can possibly be useful to intending Emigrants to Canada, will be readily furnished, free of all charge, by applying personally, or by letter, to the Company's Office in England,—Canada-House, St. Helen's Place, Bishopsgate-Street, London.

The new printed Lists of Lands, (which may be seen in every Post-Office and Store in Canada West,) and any particulars, may be obtained, free of charge, upon application if by letter, Post-paid, to the Company's Office, at Goderich, as regards the Huron Lands; as Frederick Street, Toronto, as to all other Lands and Remittances of Money.
