

Adjournment Debate

This is one situation of thousands throughout the country.

What this government has done by implementing and taking the action it has means that there will be a whole lot of other Kevin Attfields in this country in the future. It is not right or proper.

It is time that we as a legislative body think about the Kevin Attfields in this country. It is time we made a real commitment to health and education.

That is why this bill is wrong. I know, and we all know, that there are deficit problems. This is not the proper way to cut the deficit.

Surely members on the other side know that in their hearts themselves. To have something like this happen is simply tragic. It leaves a person speechless.

I want to close by saying that I hope that the government will change its attitude and start to commit itself to areas that really count in this country such as health and education so that similar problems will be alleviated in the future.
