“ The whole to be under the command
 “ of Col. Bradstreet, and to be ready
 “ with every thing compleat, and six days
 “ provifion, to-morrow evening:

To these troops may be added, two hundred and seventy batteau men, and forty two Indians; of the latter, there were assembled at the Oneida station, about one hundred and fifty fighting men from the different nations; with these Col. Bradstreet had a conference, in which he inform'd them of his design, and invited them
