

CONTENTS

involved in conflict—Howe publicly arrays Protestants and Roman Catholics against each other—Extracts from Mr. Howe's speech in House of Assembly—Mr. Johnstone introduces a resolution as a substitute for Mr. Howe's—Extracts from Mr. Johnstone's speech—William Young's statement on proscription of Roman Catholics, with which the Conservatives were charged—Hostile demonstrations toward Howe in the House—Johnstone's three methods for maintaining order—Voting of money for a sword to be presented to General Williams, and correspondence in connection therewith Page 285

CHAPTER XXXVIII.

PROSCRIPTION AND STRIFE.

Battle-cry of the Liberals from 1857 to 1860—Howe the principal agent in the campaign of the proscription of the Roman Catholics, appealing to the spirit of revenge in the hearts of the electors—Lord Mulgrave requested to take action in the case of six of the elected members holding government offices—The members are allowed to retain their seats—Dissolution advised by the Executive—Resignation of government—New cabinet with William Young as President—Howe seeks to reconcile Roman Catholics—Expected visit of Prince of Wales and Duke of Newcastle to the North American colonies—Memorial of the Cabinet to the Duke of Newcastle, requesting that Howe's services be recognized by an Imperial government appointment—Request not granted Page 301

CHAPTER XXXIX.

TUPPER'S LEADERSHIP.

Speech by Dr. Tupper at banquet given by Mr. Johnstone after resignation of the government, in which he suggests that the Conservatives call themselves The Constitutionals—Dr. Tupper compared with Lord Randolph Churchill, the British politician—Howe leads his weakened forces against the Little Napoleon of the Conservatives—Election in 1861 to fill two vacancies in the Assembly—Howe's acknowledgment that the "Little Doctor" had beaten him—Demonstration at Halifax over Dr. Tupper's success—Lord Mulgrave still refuses to dissolve the House—Mr. Howe hard pressed to retain his power Page 309

CHAPTER XL.

MINES AND MINERALS AND OTHER MATTERS.

Monopoly of mines and minerals given to the Duke of York—General Mining Association—Resolutions in the House relative to this