

HERE'S NEWS FOR SABBATH BREAKERS

Police Board Decides It is Quite Legal to Rent Bathing Suits.

LAW RIGHT FOR ONCE

Lord's Day Alliance Official Instigated Police in Making Inquiries.

The last word in connection with the Sunday swimming fight was spoken yesterday at the meeting of the police commissioners, when they decided that there was nothing illegal in renting bathing suits on Sunday and that in future the police would not interfere with those "in the bushes," as the Lord's Day Alliance would say. When the matter came up for consideration Commissioner Chief Gressett stated that Rev. W. M. Rochester, the secretary of the alliance, had communicated with Acting Deputy Chief Dickson, and that the acting deputy, in order to get the desired information to submit to Chief Gressett, directed the inspectors of the divisions concerned to make an enquiry as to the facts. In two divisions no alarm was caused, but in the Kew Beach division the enquiry resulted in the closing of the city's station. "There was never any police intention to stop them," concluded the chief.

Bathing a Necessity. The commissioners then declared that bathing was a necessity and therefore legal. The clause of the Dominion Lord's Day Act which the commissioners consider provides for bathing and any incidental work in connection with it is No. 12, the first part of which reads as follows:

"Notwithstanding anything herein contained, any person may on the Lord's Day do any work of necessity or mercy." The preceding sections in the act are prohibitory, but nothing is said of bathing.

The only Lord's Day Act, apart from the Dominion Act, which applies to Ontario dates back to the 8th year of Victoria's reign and originally was passed in England in the tyrannical days of Charles I.

Dominion Law Rules. In a noted case the privy council held that the regulation of the Lord's Day in its widest sense is a matter of criminal law and comes within the jurisdiction of the Dominion alone. In the case referred to, the provincial statute was held to be ultra vires, but the statute is still printed in the last revision of the R.S.O., although there is no doubt already referred to as to whether it is intra vires of the provincial legislature.

Some of the clauses in the act could be considered as nothing but blue laws, but the way out was provided for in the first clause, which declares that trading in all forms on Sunday is illegal, the exception is made as to "works of necessity and works of charity."

Contradicts Itself. Section 8 of the act relates to bathing and is as follows: "It is not lawful for any person on that day to bathe in any exposed situation in any water within the limits of any incorporated city or town or within view of any place of public worship or private residence."

In Victoria's day bathing suits could not have been on the market, or it is difficult to understand how such a clause could have found its way into the statute.

The progress we have made since that day was passed can be gauged from section 5, which says: "It is not lawful for any person on that day to go out fishing or to take, kill or destroy any fish, or to use any gun, fishing-rod, net or other engine for that purpose."

Any Woman Can Now Have Pretty, Curly Hair

(Feminine World.) Who'd have thought so simple a thing as applying ordinary liquid elmirene could convert straight hair into such pretty, curly locks in a single night? The one who made this discovery is surely one who made a rising vote of thanks. Now all we need to do is to wet a brush with this harmless liquid at night, draw this through the hair, and in the morning we find it has dried in just the sweetest waves and curls.

It's good news, indeed, that we can now dispense with the destructive waving tongs forever. The turlinene is so much more natural looking where the liquid elmirene is used, and certainly one's "crowning glory" appears softer, glossier and more beautiful. When it is so easy to secure a few ounces of this from the drugist—which will keep the hair in curl for weeks—there is no reason now for any one putting up with straight, straggly or scorched, dead-looking hair.

CANADIANS MARCHED MANY MILES BY NIGHT

Eighteen Mile Tramp in Darkness and Rain Very Fatiguing to Men.

OTTAWA, July 27.—The following interesting letter has been received from Lt.-Col. Morrison, commanding the 1st Artillery Brigade, by Mrs. Morrison, of Ottawa:

Any Old Place in Belgium, July 3, 1915.—This division has been on nearly every part of the British front from Ypres to La Basse, and now we are here.

By the way, nearly all our marching has been done at night, so the aeroplanes won't spot the movement of troops. The division came here in three night marches, the first 18 miles on a black, rainy night. The march had to be made in half hour, and was hard on the troops, just out after a grueling fortnight in the trenches, and a proportion of whom were just back from hospital. It was tiring even for mounted troops, but toward the end the infantry were completely done up. As the artillery passed, shadowy forms silent in rows beside the route or in the streaming gutters of the towns we passed thru.

At the place where the light of my electric lamp on something that started my horse, and here were two tired lads asleep on a heap of road metal in the shape of broken stone. At the last halt they had probably sat on this by no means downy resting-place thinking to keep awake, but they had been "gassed" by Morphine and lay huddled on the stone heap in the pouring rain, their rifles had dropped from their hands, and from the pure light of one hanging the sudden tag-end of a cigarette, his last solace. All these worn-out men who fell out, had to struggle along next to me, broiling sun to catch up, and then march again at dusk.

I view with alarm the resolution of that Methodist conference.

GEN. CANTORE KILLED IN FIGHT ON ISONZO

He Was First of Four of That Rank Lost by Italy.

UDINE, Italy, July 26, via Paris, July 27.—Gen. Antonio Cantore has been killed in battle on the Isonzo front. He is the first officer of that rank lost by Italy. Gen. Cantore had charge of actions which resulted in the occupation of Ala and other villages near Rovereto, in Trentino. They would not speak regarding their experiences.

MONTREAL RECRUITING QUITE SATISFACTORY

Many French-Canadians Ready to Enlist—Hoodlum Element Alone to Blame.

Recruiting in Montreal is satisfactory said J. E. Turton of that city, who with his family is staying at the Hotel Windsor. "The French-Canadian is loyal at heart, a good fellow, and the wealthy natives have shown their real patriotism by their contributions. There is a hoodlum section, however, which is alone to blame."

COMPLETE VICTORY ALONE WILL STAND

Rev. Chas. W. Gordon, Serving With Regiment, Returns With Invalided Brother.

Rev. Charles W. Gordon ("Ralph Connor") arrived yesterday in Toronto from England with his brother, Lieut. Col. Dr. A. R. Gordon, who was on active service, and is home on three months' sick leave.

"Anything but a genuine and complete victory for the allied arms would mean defeat," said Rev. Mr. Gordon. "A drawn battle would be a virtual defeat. We must clear the ground now and give the nations a chance to live."

"The victory, tho," he said, "is going to be vastly more costly than anyone had imagined."

"The Canadian soldiers are everywhere well thought of and admirably cared for. The men appreciate the manner in which they are being dealt with."

"I hope to return soon to the scene of action," concluded Rev. Mr. Gordon. "I saw Gen. Hughes before I left, and he said it would be better for me to accompany my brother to this side of the Atlantic. I am with the 13th Battalion, Cameron Highlanders of Winnipeg."

CANADIANS GET PARCELS.

An interesting letter received by Mrs. S. Milne, a Toronto woman, from her son, Thomas R. Ridout, who was taken prisoner at St. Julien and is now interned at Glessen, Germany, sets at rest the fear that letters and parcels addressed to prisoners would not be delivered. The letter was written on Pte. Ridout on July 4 and he acknowledges receipt of previous letters and parcels.

PERMISSION GIVEN TO HAVE ROSE DAY

National Sanitarium Association Successful, But Jewish People Refused.

DEFINITION OF JITNEY

Motor Propelled Vehicle Accommodating Seven Passengers.

Permission was yesterday granted by the police commissioners to the National Sanitarium Association to hold a Rose Day in Toronto on September 9, while the renewed application of the Jewish people for a Tag Day at the National Sanitarium was supported by A. E. Ames and W. P. Gundy, who stated that it was the wish of Queen Mary that the association should be allowed to have a Rose Day. The commissioners could not ignore Queen Mary's request, so the day was respectfully granted. With regard to the other application, however, the board decided that a limit had to be drawn somewhere, and that the application was first raised by the refused.

ITALIANS SLAUGHTER MASSES OF AUSTRIANS

Enemy Fighting With Contempt for Death—Italian Losses Heavy Also.

GENEVA, July 26, via Paris, July 27.—The Tribune prints the following regarding operations in the Italian war theatre:

"The Austrians fight with utter contempt for death and the losses on both sides are frightful, but those of the Austrians appear heavier. The Italian artillery mowing them down in masses."

"On the Carso plateau the Italians are advancing in the direction of Gorizia."

"On Monte Nero the Italians have carried several positions of the enemy's positions."

"At Podgora the Italians repulsed all Austrian attacks, notwithstanding the extreme violence with which they are delivered."
