

DISEASE BETTER THAN PREVENTION

Claim Homeopathic Doctors
in Protest Against General Vaccination.

There were fifteen new cases of smallpox reported yesterday. One case was sent to the hospital and the remainder quarantined at their homes. The total of quarantined exposed persons now numbers 80.

Dr. Hastings yesterday reported as follows:
Total cases now in hospital, 16.
Total cases quarantined at home, 40.
Total cases reported in city, 56.
Homes quarantined in which actual cases are reported, 32.
Homes quarantined from which cases have been removed, 11.
Total number of homes quarantined, 43.

Total number of individuals quarantined due to exposure in homes from which cases have been removed or kept in the home, 159.

There have been no deaths reported to date from the disease.
The city hall was all day yesterday the home of vaccination. The woman's court and various committee offices had been turned into doctors' rooms, where all and sundry could be vaccinated free of charge. All the doctors did a thriving trade through the whole day, the majority of their customers being women and children. To take a glance into the women's room gave one the impression of watching day at home, as all of them had their blouse sleeves turned up to the shoulder, and displayed more or less their fat or artistic arms. The children did not seem to mind the operation one little bit, but that the ordeal affects some natures was proven in the case of little Willie McCloy, 334 Burchard avenue, who, when he came from the room where he had been vaccinated, with his mother, fell down in a dead faint. He soon recovered, however.

Depots Throat City.
During today, public vaccination depots will be opened through the city for the convenience of the public, and especially for the school children. There will be no actual vaccination undertaken at the schools. The M.O.H. said the depots will be located to provide for the requirements of the whole city, and also vaccination was not yet compulsory, he strongly advised every person in the city to avail themselves of the opportunity.

A big deputation of anti-vaccinationists walked on the board of control yesterday to protest against any order making vaccination compulsory. Dr. Henry Becker, a homeopathic doctor, led the deputation and amongst the other medical men present were Doctors Saylor, Wilkes, J. B. Fraser, Bryans and J. C. Soucy. The arguments put forth were to the effect that vaccination was not a protection against smallpox and its ill-effects were in many cases worse than the disease. Dr. Becker claimed the vaccination, although they had no mandate, represented 80 per cent. of the people of Toronto. He said 80 per cent. of the school children were unvaccinated and that Toronto had the healthiest school population in Canada.

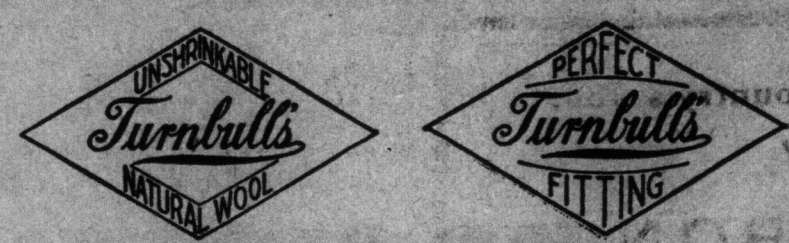

The doctor quoted from the official provincial reports to show that smallpox was less dangerous than any other disease. From 1912 to 1918 there were 10,878 cases of scarlet fever with 340 deaths; 13,327 cases of diphtheria with 1,137 deaths; 7,297 cases of typhoid fever with 597 deaths and only 2,620 cases of smallpox with but 12 deaths. In 1918 there was only one death from smallpox and 191 from diphtheria, 23 from measles and 132 from typhoid fever. The government records showed there were more deaths resulting from vaccination than from smallpox. Dr. Becker denounced the authorities for advertising "Toronto as the centre of a smallpox epidemic." The danger, he thought, was being magnified.

No Time to Listen
Dr. Hastings, M. O. H., who had been sent for by the mayor to listen to what the deputation had to say, rose from his chair and said, "I haven't time to listen to that talk," and walked out of the room.

Controller McBride after listening to some of the speakers said, "They can have my $25 right now. I won't be vaccinated or require others to be." After listening to other speeches from the deputation the mayor thanked them for their attendance and said the board in considering the leasing of the proposed proclamation would take their views into consideration.

The World is asked to state that public vaccination stations will be open today at the city hall from 12 o'clock to 9 p.m. and at Keele street police station 12 to 9 p.m. Other depots will be open in due course and kept going all the time the necessity for vaccination arises.

A NIGHT OF INDOOR SPORT

AS I look back on the afternoon when I wandered into Madame Fittov's beauty parlor I could well say myself for being such an easy mark. But the peach crop is an uncertain yield, and it was up to me to ease the lamps of my fellow men by lighting the night I'll be ruined—socially for life. I kept telling myself as I tried to grab the hanky off the floor. At twelve bells I awoke. Believe me, it was the busiest night I ever spent. After that all was vague till I spoke next morning with violent pains, suffering from head injuries, sustained when she was struck down by an automobile.

Then came the interesting part of the performance. . . applications of on the plasters and muscle straps with an earnest prayer for heaven, that it would be well till morning. "If there's a fire or something in the night I'll be ruined—socially for life." I kept telling myself as I tried to grab the hanky off the floor. At twelve bells I awoke. Believe me, it was the busiest night I ever spent. After that all was vague till I spoke next morning with violent pains, suffering from head injuries, sustained when she was struck down by an automobile.

than 139 were either killed or missing. The remaining members of this battalion are more than proud of its record.

ADOPTED DAUGHTER DISPUTES WILL

Claims Testatrix Lacked
Mental Capacity, and Undue Influence Used.

The suit brought by Ethel Hughes against Dr. F. N. Hughes to have the will of his mother, of which he was executor, set aside on the grounds of alleged lack of mental capacity and undue influence, is being tried in the non-jury session by Sir Glenholme Falconbridge. The plaintiff was the adopted daughter of James Hughes and his wife, of West Gwillimbury, and made her home with them from the time she was two years of age. When she was 15 she was told that she was an adopted daughter, and she was told that her foster parents agreed to treat her as a daughter and make provision for her maintenance after their death.

By her will Mrs. Hughes left the plaintiff the use of the house at Pennell's provided she lived there and kept it in repair. Mrs. Hughes at the time she came to Toronto, the plaintiff was very infirm and was incapable of transacting business or of making a will. She claims that her foster mother told her before coming to Toronto that she had made a will in which she had provided for her. It is the plaintiff's contention that she was asked for $1,000 for her services during the ten years she cared for her foster mother. Defendant avers that the plaintiff was treated with great indulgence by her parents. The work she did for them, he says, would not pay for her maintenance. He further pleads that as she left voluntarily years ago, and has since done nothing for his mother, any claim for payment is barred by the statute of limitations.

SCHOOLS OPEN TO NON-VACCINATED

Board of Education Members
Agree Child's Attendance
Cannot Be Stopped.

After some debate as to whether or not unvaccinated children should attend school, in view of the presence in the city of smallpox, the members of the board of education at their regular meeting last night decided they must not act in accordance with the M. O. H.'s orders. One trustee said he would not allow his children to be vaccinated, and the members agreed that children could not be prevented from attending school because their parents would not have them vaccinated. Dr. Hopkins made the longest speech of the evening in favor of vaccination—not, he said, because he was a medical man, but because he had experienced the benefit of it.

The report of the selection committee which sat on Wednesday afternoon was dealt with, and the appointment of W. W. Pearce, city architect since 1914, to the position of business manager of Toronto schools at a salary of $3,000 a year, was confirmed. A motion by Dr. Steele for a vote of the ratepayers to be taken on January 1 on the abolishing of fees for resident pupils of Toronto in the high schools and colleges, and for the abolition of school and school of commerce was carried.

The board heard the reports of various committees, and dealt with other questions of minor importance.

"BROKEN BLOSSOMS."

Great Production Coming to the Regent Theatre.

A production that is considered the finest achievement in the career of the producer, D. W. Griffith, has been secured for the Regent Theatre for next week. It is "Broken Blossoms" and tells one of the most sensational stories ever presented on the screen. It is a story of a Chinese child, adapted from the Chinese story "The Child," a story by Thomas Burke. It begins amid the quiet of a Chinese garden and ends in the slums of London. After the showing at Cohan's Theatre, New York, Mr. Griffith was obliged to make a speech. He spoke modestly of his work and expressed a hope that the unexplained and tragedies of others depicted in his work might help audiences to forget their own.

He explained that Miss Lillian Gish, who had taken the part of the girl in the story, had seen herself with the other spectators, and that she was the first time. One of the New York papers, in commenting upon the production, said that it was not too much to say that "Broken Blossoms" was the most artistic play yet produced. Lillian Gish won new honors and Richard Barthelmie made a very convincing and appealing Chinaman hero. This photograph marks a new epoch in moving pictures, and no one who is interested in the higher art of the screen should fail to see it. It is booked for only a limited engagement at the Regent Theatre. Adding much to its splendor is the music arranged especially for it. Rendered by the famous Regent orchestra, it will be a very important and valuable addition. Ruth Patton is the soloist engaged for next week.
