MANIPULATION OF TRAIN CHECKS.

The following letter received from a Kansas City commercial traveling man would indicate that a game is being played on the Western roads that it would not be very hard to unteresting the contract the general being played on the Western roads that it would not be very hard to unearth and it may convince the general passenger agents that while they are haggling about the adoption of a new mileage ticket, the spotters of the Western Passenger Association could be very profitably employed in stopping the abuse of train checks:

Kansas City, Mo., Jan. 9.—To the Editor,—I notice a great deal of zeal on the part of the general passenger agents lately as regards a perfect mileage book system, and it would seem from the following little story that a general overhauling of other matters would not come amiss. A group of traveling men were overheard in the Union depot the other day reciting trade matters and funny stories, when one of them interested them all in the following: "Of course it deeply moves our conscience to give a railroad company the short end of the string and save mileage, but thoughts of a goodly supply of spending money will easily overcome one's cruples in that regard. I was about leaving Circinnati for Denver when I fell in with a bicycle salesman headed for the same point. He was from Chicago, and by the way if there are any new or ancient tricks to be worked those Chicago fellows are always in the push. He said: 'You stay in this car and I will go to the smoker, and when the conductor comes through let him tear out mileage to the end of his run and he will give you a hat check marked for the same point.

and when the conductor comes through let him tear out mileage to the end of his run and he will give you a hat check marked for the same point. I will have my mileage torn out to North Bend (about fifteen miles) and then come back and get your hat check. He can't put you off when you tell him your hat check is lost, for he has your mileage strip showing where you go, while as for me, I have a through check for about 150 miles with only fifteen miles torn out.

"To make a long ride and story short we rode to Denver just that way, going through the same performance with each new conductor, and at the end divided up nearly $25 to have a good time on. All the roads are the same—the 'check' man can sit down and jolly the conductor about how wise he is and not be suspected one time in a million, let alone being caught. We all pair off nowadays when there is any considerable jump to make.

Kansas City, Mo. Gone Violently Insane. New York, Jan. 15.—Capt. Philo McGriffin, the former officer of the United States and afterwards of the Chinese navy, who fought the fluxship Chen Yuen against the combined nanck of the entire Japanese fleet in the battle of the Yalu River on Sept. 17, 1894, was recently taken to the Post-graduate Hospital. violently insane. The wrecking of this brilliant naval officer's intellect is said to be the direct result of the terrific strain to which he was subjected during the battle of the Yalu River. He was dangerously wounded during the engagement.

The largest electric sign in New England, that on the Washington-street facade of the new Grand Theatre, Boston, is composed of 1,000 incandescent lamps of 32-candle power each, and the letters which they form are four feet high. It took four men a month to make the sign, and it cost the company that erected it about $5000.

official declaration of Japan's foreign the world to her is that of Count Okuma, Minister of Foreign Affairs, contained in a speech which he made before the last general meeting of the Toho Kyokal, or Oriental Society.

Count Okuma stated that he regretted to say that Japan was far behind Europe in her enlightenment. The ted to say that Japan was far behind Europe in her enlightenment. The graduates of her university became good scholars only after a number of years' study abroad, while it was indisputable that from the common education up to the university course the Japanese were inferior to Europe. In wealth, too, he said, Japan was only equal to one-fiftieth of England at the most, and much poorer than Italy, the poorest country in Europe. In morality the Japanese might be inferior he admitted, although its people are inclined to think otherwise. In military affairs, agriculture and industry, and other things the same thing was to be observed. But Japan had a future before her, if her learning be tempered by energy and conscience.
