How Zam-Buk Cured a Bad Knee.

Mrs. S. F. Nicholls, 208 Queens St., Montreal, writes: "While returning home from a shopping tour, I slipped on the icy sidewalk and badly sprained my knee. I had to be assisted to the house where I was laid up for two weeks. My knee was very much swollen and painful. I bathed the injured member frequently with liniments I had in the house and they were not much good, so I sent for a box of Zam-Buk, as I had used this previously for cuts and burns and knew its value. For three weeks I used the Zam-Buk as an embrocation and it worked like a charm, taking away all stiffness, swelling and soreness. I am now able to go about all right and have never felt the effects of my accident since."

What the Theatres Offer

Eddie Foy, at his best in the big musical entertainment, "The Orchid," is the star of the Princess Theatre on Monday evening. Unlike most musical offerings, "The Orchid" abounds in plot, which deals with a heroine, who, having every other triumph, plans to take the first prize at the Nice, France, Flower Show with an orchid, and for Zaccary to find it in far Peru. Meanwhile, the heroine, who is a girl, is a prize-winner, and when Zaccary returns empty-handed, she tells him to find it. In rapid succession the orchid is lost and found, until all the characters turn up at Nice and straighten things out. Choke has been carrying on a love affair through an orchid with a girl named Yvonne, and she, too, turns up at the same time as the orchid. Choke adopts the name of Rupert.

At the Grand. It was away back in 1892 that that sterling drama of the Blue Grass State, "In Old Kentucky," was first produced. From then until the present season it has never been withdrawn from the stage for a single season. While its story is an old and familiar one nowadays, yet theatregoers seem to enjoy a re-telling of it on the stage from season to season, to such an extent that crowded houses are the rule wherever it is presented. With a mountain maid for a heroine, the action begins amid the peaks and ravines of Eastern Kentucky. Here the simple lass meets her blue grass sweetheart. To save him from impending danger, she follows him to his hide near Lexington, there disguises herself as a jockey, and save his fortunes rises to his horse, "Queen Bess," to victory in a famous Kentucky race on the Lexington course. A moonshiner, a Kentucky soldier, a faithful old negro servant and several other types are central figures in the story, which holds the attention of the audience from beginning to end. An attractive and novel feature of "In Old Kentucky," which comes to the Grand next week, is the fact that the play is sung, danced, played on musical instruments and otherwise disposed themselves in a manner found in no other play on the Grand stage.

At the Alexandra. Charles Taddon Chambers, the well-known dramatic actor, who is to be presented by the Royal Alexandra Players during next week, had a rather adventurous life in his early days. An Australian by birth and an Irishman by parentage, he first saw the light of day in Sydney, New South Wales, on April 22, 1870. He entered the N. S. W. civil service in 1875, but two years later became a stockholder in the bush. Five years later he visited Ireland and England for the first time. Returning in 1882 to England he became a journalist and story-writer, and at a later time a dramatic author. His plays have met with marked favor, and "The Idler" has had the stamp of popular approval. This comedy has met with a similar success in plays of the later kind, and the story is well worth close attention. Sir John Harding, before succeeding to an entailed estate and becoming a member of the English parliament, visited America, where he was known as "Gentleman Jack" in a mining camp. There, during a drunken spree, he kills a man and flees to escape punishment. This incident happened on a day prior to the opening of the play. After returning to England, and becoming a prominent member of society, the brother of the man he killed comes on a visit to London. This brother, who is now a millionaire in New York, avows vengeance that he would run down the slayer of his brother. He recognizes Harding and threatens to prosecute him. Harding has a friend, Mark Cross, a former associate of his (Harding's) wife, who has made an unhappy marriage and left the country. Upon his return he finds his friend Harding married to the girl with whom he is in love. Cross was a member of this western mining camp, and witnessed the shooting. When Lady Harding learns that her husband is about to be arrested for the crime, she pleads with Cross to prevent Strong laying the information against her husband. Cross agrees to do this on condition that Lady Harding will elope with him. She is to her husband, in order to save him she agrees to visit the apartments of Cross. Cross in the meantime has prevailed upon Strong to forgive and forget. When Cross shows a letter to that effect from Strong to Lady Harding, he insists upon her carrying out her part of the agreement and leave London at once. She appeals to his better nature and he consents to give her up. While she is there her husband comes and demands an explanation. He does not believe his wife's story. Next day Harding calls upon Cross and insists upon their fighting a duel. When they are about to begin operations Strong arrives on the scene and prevents the duel. After some further explanation Lady Harding realizes that he was in the wrong and had been unjustly suspicious of his wife.

Miss Marlowe's Repertoire. The engagement of Miss Julia Marlowe at the Princess Theatre during the latter half of next week will give the theatregoers a rare opportunity of seeing her latest great success in the Italian romance of the sixteenth century, entitled "Gloria." Miss Marlowe has found in this comedy a part that thoroughly suits her temperament, and she interprets it with all the skill and the charm that she has rendered her such a welcome visitor to Toronto. Gloria is a horn coquette. Her sole ambition seems to be to bring all sorts and conditions of men to her feet, and then when she has played with the victim sufficiently long to have tired of the sport, to send them off on a fool's errand, only to laugh when they return enraged and humiliated. Her husband, so infectious, her transition from the laughing, care-free coquette to the simulated terrors of a mock murderess so thoroughly artistic that no one wonders that Sir Philip was so easily deceived. She will also appear in her favorite play, a re-telling of the story of the dramatization of Charles Major's celebrated novel, "When Knighthood Was in Flower." The engagement here is limited to four performances, and the other productions will be "Romeo and Juliet" and "As You Like It." The sale of seats will be open Monday morning.

At the Majestic. The next week the Majestic Theatre will present "The Girl in the Blue Dress," a play by Vivian Prescott and Walter Wilson, the latest military offering. "A Child of the Regiment." In this play the author takes his audience to the theatre of the great northwest, where in a series of massive stage pictures, he weaves around the players a story of western life. The child, who is the role of "Little Major" Miss Vivian shows a little brought up as a pet of a cavalry regiment. Her guardian, a private soldier, is accused of an awful crime, and, although innocent, takes the blame to save his sweetheart from knowing that he is a traitor. The story of the little girl, whose great faith in her guardian never falters, things are fairly straitened and all ends happily. During the engagement a matinee will be given every day.

Rentz Santley Company at Gayety. The Rentz Santley Company is announced for the next week's attraction at the Gayety. The performance is of the latest kind, and is a combination of the funniest of far-fakes, the daintiest dancers, prettiest girls and catchy musical offerings. "The Girl in the Blue Dress," the title of the opening burlesque, is all that its title suggests. The closing extravaganza is entitled "The Darlings of the Demon," a musical satire on David Belasco's great drama, "The Darling of the Gods." A number of the prevailing musical hits are rendered in a charming manner by a levy of pretty show girls. The following high-class vaudeville artists will be seen: The Glocks, Charles and Anna, May Howard, the cleverest sketch artists; May Howard, the charming burlesque queen; Fred Russell, that natural Hebrew with his big voice; Marshall and King, Louise and Dottie, dainty dancers and singers; Frank Ross, versatile dialect comedian; Charles D. Weber, comic juggler; Jennie Edwards, eccentric comedian; Fisher and Berg, premier bicyclists; and Carl Anderson, character vocalist. The show will be a very funny strong men, Collins and Hart.

Welcome Re-engagement. "Brewer's Millions," the most notable farcical success of recent years, will return for a special engagement at the Princess Theatre on April 6.

T. M. A. Benefit. A theatrical event which is looked forward to by all theatregoers is the annual benefit performance of the Theatrical Mechanical Benevolent Society. This season it will be held at the Princess Theatre, on Friday afternoon April 3, and the enterprising committee have arranged to present acts and specialties from the attractions playing the various houses in the city during that week. As usual, a handsome souvenir will be given to everyone attending the performance. The receipts are devoted to the fund of the order, which is recognized as one of the most charitable of the many fraternal societies.

Conservatory Symphony Orchestra. Whatever the fate of most of his music, Hector Berlioz's "Treatise on Instrumentation" is a classic and a very fine literary work. He placed the orchestra very high indeed as a factor in artistic development of any nation, and so it has come to be regarded. But the establishment of large orchestras is a matter fraught with more difficulties than the public is aware of, the public who only attends the concert and is not exactly behind the scenes. The Toronto Conservatory Symphony Orchestra has so far exceeded the expectations of its friends and supporters, and if only proper and entirely legitimate support be given there is no reason why we should not have in Toronto an instrumental body of well-trained musicians indeed. The program for the concert on April 3 at Massey Hall will give great satisfaction, for it is neither too long nor too heavy, and the addition of Victor and Hermann, the fascinating Polish pianist, makes of the evening a most interesting occasion, as this favorite artist sells immediately for Europe. Mr. H. J. Bohme, secretary-treasurer of the orchestra, reports a most gratifying return from the subscription lists placed through the city.

Mary's Lamb. Toronto's own actor, John B. Park, is at present making a big personal hit as leading baritone with "Mary's Lamb," which is booked for the Princess Theatre. The company at present is playing in Chicago at the Illmore Theatre.

Vaudeville at Shea's. Next week at Shea's Theatre, the bill will be headed by Al. Leech and Rose. "Three Men in a Boat," a Hart musical sketch called "Examination Day at School." Al. Leech described the vaudeville field for musical comedy several seasons ago, and in fact, one of the good things missed until this season, when he returned to the fold. His offering is full of new, bright comedy and useful songs. The "Rosebuds" are Maude Gray, Tessie Hope and Valérie Elliott.

Cecil DeMille has written a romantic playlet, "The Thing," which is in some time. As the Broadway girl goes into the heart of the country to marry a farmer beau, the possibilities are many and she loses sight of none of them. Mr. Macy as Jay Bird is equally as happy in his lines. The quartet, composed of Messrs. McDonald, Ellis, McKenna and Wood, are a splendid singing organization. At the Star. "Rosebud," a two-act musical comedy about musical lyrics by Dave Marlon, is the piece de resistance offered by the "High Jinks Burlesque" this season. The book of the author is a well-developed plot. One screamingly funny situation follows fast upon another through the entire action of the play. The management, and the production, as a whole, reflects the greatest credit in their careful judgment. Between the acts of the comedy an olio, comprising the following well-known vaudeville acts, will be seen: Harry Brooks and Beatrice Gilmore, Variety Three Girls West and Williams, Phil Mills, John Price, James Doherty and others will form a great combination. It is a pleasure to hear the concert of the Conservatory Symphony Orchestra in Massey Hall on April 3 and this time, as in January, when he appeared in Massey Hall, he is insistent on using only the piano of the old firm of Heintzman & Co., Limited.
