Mr. and Mrs. Allan Rankine and Mr. and Mrs. H. Fielding Rankine were joint hosts and hostesses at dinner last evening at the pretty summer residence of the former at Westfield, the guests of honor being Hon. W. S. Fielding, Mrs. Fielding and their party. Many members of the Rankine family in the city were present and the function was delightful in its informality and as a get-together of the relatives of Mrs. Fielding. Mrs. L. W. P. Hodgins, Miss Florence and Miss Zillah Fielding, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Fielding, and Mrs. Headley, were the special guests. They were guests at luncheon of Mrs. Frank Rankine, 210 Germain street, after which they went to Westfield for the afternoon. Today Hon. Mr. Fielding and his party were informal guests at luncheon of Mr. and Mrs. Henry C. Rankine, McArthur Apartments, Germain street. They expect to leave on Saturday for Joggins' Bridge, N. S., near Smith's Cove, Digby. They hope later to spend a short time at the Fielding summer home at Chester, before returning to Ottawa. Mr. Fielding is seeking rest, owing to ill health.

Mrs. Hugh Mackay entertained Wednesday afternoon at a bridge of four tables at her residence at Bathurst, the guests from the city being Mrs. George K. McLeod, Mrs. J. SUMMER HINTS FOR HOME DRESSMAKER

(By HEDDA HOYT, Fashion Editor of United Press).

New York, July 25.—

Needles and pins,
Needles and pins,
When summer comes
A girl's trouble begins!

The sudden warm spell has caught many of us unawares, for we were beginning to think that a couple of silk frocks would carry us through what threatened to be a cool summer. With the warm days, womanhood has blossomed out in voices and organdies, many of which are of home making.

As has often been said, summer is the season when the poor girl shines, for summer materials come within the means of every woman. It is the season when the clothes of the rich and of the poor differ only in their cut and making. A great many women take pleasure in summer sewing and it is for the some-seamstress that this article is written.

The first thing one has to consider in choosing the summer wardrobe is fabric and color. The younger woman can wear almost any bright summery color, while the matronly figure must adhere to the "rules of the stout" and choose less conspicuous colors and designs. Small figured patterns are always lovely on the stout person, providing the colors are not too brilliant. Small-figured crepes and volles are very effective when combined with a solid color which carries out the main shade of the printed material. Large-figured materials and blatant effects are restricted to youth and effervescence.

A Pretty Frock.

Among the noticeably pretty frocks which have appeared during the last week we find the simple, almost dress-like frocks with straight and unbelted lines which have their skirts trimmed with three rows of wide insertion, each row of insertion being finished at the bottom with a pleated ruffle of the frock material. Sometimes a narrow string sash ties at a low waistline. This type of frock is very popular and is made of various materials, among which are printed silk and cotton crepes, plain crepes, all-over laces and volles. When such a frock is made of wash material the founce which finishes the banding is shirred rather than pleated for laundering purposes. While the youthful, slender figure wears this sleeveless frock without a neckpiece or any sort of arm covering, the matronly figure is apt to wear a fluffy feather boa or a short pleated cape, which combines bands of insertion with pleated material.

The Singer's Costume.

Miss Anna Case, who sang daily at the Democratic convention, wears a frock of this type, which is bound to be becoming to the matronly figure. This is a white, summery georgette, with straight, long-waisted bodice and finely pleated skirt. There are no sleeves to this frock, but a cape of pleated white georgette extends just over the shoulder, being attached at the shoulder seams. Miss Case wears the popular short wristlet gloves, leaving the remainder of the arms bare.

Of course, the tunic-skirt deserves considerable mention, since so many models are using it. Sometimes the tunic is achieved merely by attaching a pleated apron to the front of a simple frock, the tunic reaching just below the knees. Again, there may be both a front and back apron, with a double sash joining them together at the sides. The three-tiered front tunic is also noticeable, with three founces of the material forming the front of the skirt beginning at a low waistline.

A Lovely Silk Frock.

Among the lovely silk frocks one sees the colorful printed material shadowed by a complex over-dress of chiffon of a dark shade. Several such gowns used huge white polka dots on a blue background with an over-dress of navy blue chiffon. Rose-figured crepe with a brown chiffon over-dress is very lovely as one has the pretty vivid rose tints modified by the sheer over-dress.

MRS. ROSS AGAIN CHARMS HEARERS

Large Audience Attends Recital in Aid of R. C. S. Memorial.

The Rothsay Collegiate School Memorial Hall was completely filled last evening when Mrs. F. M. Ross, of St. John and Rothsay, entertained with another of her charming elocutionary recitals, a two-hour contribution to the joys of a representative audience as well as a very considerable monetary contribution to the memorial fund of the institution. Rev. Dr. W. R. Hibbard, headmaster of the school, aptly expressed the sentiments of the people in publicly thanking Mrs. Ross for her artistic and practical generosity. A veritable procession of flowers punctuated the programme, heaping up the stage, the tables, and finally the piano top. Mrs. Thomas Guy, who furnished piano incidentals, was similarly complimented with flowers.

Those who had been fortunate enough to hear Mrs. Ross were certain of the pleasure in store; others who received their audience introduction to her at Rothsay last night were unanimously added to a fast growing host of enthusiasts. Local people are getting to know through each succeeding recital why the discriminating press of the United Kingdom has referred so flatteringly to the performances of the talented lady. Her art is quite irresistible and it will be withholding a very rich treat if a more general public hearing of Mrs. Ross' selections is not eventually arranged.

Student of Human Nature.

It would appear capacious to offer any comparisons considering the well-mixed list of selections in last evening's programme. Mrs. Ross is possessed of a fine sense of humor that imparts a rare jollity to her humorous numbers. She is evidently a close student of human nature as her portrayals of childish parts would suggest. Her serious numbers are delivered with the dramatic touch of the finished actress. Our own Stephen Leacock's whimsical fun does not escape her, nor the grandeur of Kipling.

Mrs. Ross is also a writer of ability. The numbers marked anonymous on the programme appended are being credited to her, some of them at least, for the lady's modesty is quite as marked as her art. These original numbers are delectable little fictions—though typical of real life as her keen senses find it—and when reproduced by her get their full human
